BERKELEY (AP)—President Clark Kerr of the mammoth University of California, who was fired yesterday by the Board of Regents, blames partisan politics for the startling move that sent shock waves through the state.

"The university should serve truth and not political partisanship," Kerr told newsmen after his ouster.

The regents named long-time vice president, Harry Wellman, acting president. Little known outside the academic community, Wellman is a close friend of Kerr. He will serve until the regents appoint a successor.

McNAMARA NEXT?

Among the names mentioned as candidates are Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara, Secretary of State Dean Rusk, and Franklin D. Murphy, chancellor of the Los Angeles campus of the school.

Republican Gov. Ronald Reagan, an ex-officio regent, and Mrs. Randolph Hearst, a regent and wife of the newspaper magnate, said the vote came after Kerr demanded a vote of confidence during the regents' debate over university budget cuts and imposition of tuition, which Reagan wanted and Kerr opposed.

Contacted later on this, Kerr said these reports that he had asked for a vote of confidence were "absolutely false."

'FIERCE FIGHT'

In a closed session at which Kerr was not present, regents voted 14 to 8 after a "fierce fight" to immediately oust Kerr from his $45,000-a-year job as head of the nine-campus, 87,000-student university. He had been UC president since 1958.

Reagan, who left the meeting an hour before Kerr's dismissal was announced, had made criticism of the university an issue in his campaign for election. In Los Angeles later, Reagan called the firing "very reasonable."

Kerr had made it known that he was prepared to battle any administration moves to cut the university's budget or charge tuition. Reagan had suggested both two weeks ago.

Bagley Tells Redwood Empire Boosters Reagan Won't Wreck State Education

By WAT TAKESHITA

The hue and cry over statewide budget cuts and dire predictions for the future of education are exaggerated and "out of perspective," Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, told civic and business leaders of the Redwood Empire yesterday.

Bagley spoke to a gathering of about 120 leaders of nine Redwood Empire counties during a luncheon of the Redwood Empire Assn. at Corinthian Yacht Club in Tiburon.

"The Administration will be a tough one," said Bagley. "They have the guts to stand up and call a spade a spade."

SEES CONCENSUS

But the Assemblyman pointed out that the executive and legislative branches in Sacramento, which at first will clash, will later mesh. He predicted that the concensus that develops will bring no drastic changes.

The Reagan Administration faces a deficit of $400 million from the outset, Bagley pointed out. The Governor is proposing cuts in various departments, including education, to reduce the deficit.

"But this doesn't mean that the Administration will desecrate or eviscerate education. It just means a general tightening up."

Even with these economy moves, Bagley predicted that tax increases in some areas will be inevitable.

NORTH VS. SOUTH

Northern fears that greater Southern representation in the Legislature will result in the "rape of the North" are also unwarranted, Bagley asserted.

The proposed tightening up of the budget does not necessarily mean that a new University of California campus in the North Bay cannot be financed, said Bagley.

"It doesn't mean we'll cut down all redwoods, and it doesn't mean we'll buy them all either."

He foresees no drastic changes because most of the senior senators are from the North. "They hold the chairmanships—positions from which they can give the newer legislators proper perspective, which sometimes means hitting the guys over the head."

Furthermore, an increase in Republican representation means "a more conservatively orientated Legislature, which will be more mindful of the local voice which the Redwood Empire Assn. epitomizes and exemplifies."

Lawrence B. Thomas Killed In Accident

Lawrence B. Thomas, 55, labor leader and arbitrator, was killed early today when his car rammed a guard rail on rain-swept Fourth Street, San Rafael, near the West End Avenue approach.

Thomas, of 163 Oak Drive, was headed home from visiting friends in San Anselmo when the accident happened about 3:17 a.m., family friends said.

An unidentified witness telephoned police and Patrolman Sherwin Hool found Thomas slumped over the steering wheel, suffering from head cuts.

He was pronounced dead at Marin General Hospital.

Thomas was an official of the International Longshoremen's and Warehouseman's Union for 30 years. For the last four years, he served as an arbitrator for the union in San Francisco and the Pacific Maritime Assn.

Thomas ran for the Board of Education in 1965, but was runner-up in the race to fill two seats. Backers began circulating petitions urging the City Council to name him to the board, but this failed.

Thomas lived in San Rafael about 13 years, and in San Anselmo two years. He was born in Florida.

Survivors include his wife, Eina, and three children, Terri, Lauren and Breck, all at home.

Funeral arrangements are pending.

Court Will Move To Hospital

The hospital bedside of shooting victim Matt Cernac will be the stage Friday of a Marin Municipal Court preliminary hearing for his accused assailant.

The 9 a.m. hearing at Marin General Hospital was ordered yesterday by Judge Alvin H. Goldstein Jr. over defense objections, when Dist Atty. Bruce B. Bales requested a week's continuance to next Friday.

Bales told the court he doesn't yet have sufficient evidence against the defendant, John W. Frederick, 36, who is charged with assault with deadly weapon in the Jan. 13 shooting of the 43-year-old Cernac at the latter's San Rafael apartment.

Frederick's attorney, William O. Weissich, charged Bales with stalling in hope of acquiring enough evidence by Friday to have Frederick bound over to Marin Superior Court for trial.

Weissich declared Cernac is unable to remember any details of the shooting, and that any testimony by Cernac will be irrelevant.

Cernac's physician, Dr. Sam Hanzel, San Rafael, testified that Cernac has memory and recognized his estranged wife, but has no recollection of the shooting, or events leading up to it.

He said Cernac has a piece of

Construction Funds Given To Hamilton

The Defense Department has authorized construction of two dormitories costing a total of $818,000 and an engine warm-up pad at $149,000 at Hamilton Air Force Base.

The funds are part of a $564 million appropriation approved by Congress in 1965 for military housing, barracks and other projects, but never spent. Construction totaling $10 million is scheduled in the 12 Naval District.

FORECAST

Bay Area: Rain chance 80 per cent tonight, 70 per cent tomorrow; southerly winds 30-50 miles per hour becoming southwest 15-25 m.p.h. tonight.

Rain Totals Vary Widely Around Marin

Highest rainfall figure for the storm currently pounding Marin County was recorded today by Charles Hardy in Kent Woodlands—11.95 inches for the 24 hour period from 7 a.m. yesterday to 7 a.m. today.

In the hills above Ross, a woman reported 11.69 inches of rain to 8 a.m. today for the total storm, which began early yesterday morning.

The storm total in San Rafael at noon today stood at 10.10 inches, with 8.15 inches falling since noon yesterday.

Elsewhere in the county, rainfall figures for the total storm to 8 a.m. today were: Chevy Chase area of Larkspur, 7.85; Woodacre 8.96; Fairfax, 8.2; San Anselmo, 6.97; Point Reyes, 5.6; Mill Valley, 5.35; Sausalito, 5.15; Belvedere, 5.53; Hamilton Air Force Base, 5.4; Bolinas, 4.61; Civic Center, 5.90; Novato, 4.21; and Tamalpais Valley, 5.19.

Slides Threatening Homes On Hillside

By STEPHEN COOK

The storm which hit Marin County early yesterday has dumped more than 11 inches of rain on parts of the county, forced people from homes flooded or threatened by slides, washed out bridges and closed major roadways.

Waterlogged Kentfield firemen took 60 to 70 people to and from their flooded homes last night, carrying them by boats and on their shoulders.

Sir Francis Drake Boulevard was closed in three areas—through Kentfield and Ross by deep water, between Point Reyes and Whitehouse Pool where the bridge washed away and west of Point Reyes, when a tree fell across the road near Pierce Point Road.

Traffic to and from Inverness was blocked on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard by the bridge wash out and was diverted to Bear Valley Road.

In San Rafael, Public Works Director Norris Rawles toured the city this morning, then reported "this is the worst flooding I've seen in the 14 years I've been with the city."

At 8:45 a.m. today, a storage shed was carried away by a landslide at 460 Bret Harte Road, Rawles reported. The mud and shed severed the road at that point.

Mrs. Albert S. Giesecke of 470 Bret Harte Road said she and her husband heard "a violent roar" and the lights and the radio went out as power lines were sheared by the slide.

In Larkspur this morning, Public Works Director Warren Mistron said his men were evacuating two homes on Wilson Way which were threatened by an earth slide. Others, he said, may be threatened.

Larkspur firemen evacuated families from numbers 17 and 25 College Court in the College Park cul-de-sac. Water came into several of the homes there and firemen shut off power to half the circle's 25 homes.

Water ran seven feet deep in Granton Park near College of Marin last night and this morning. The current was so swift in the park that rescue boats were forced to use outboard motors.

Marinites Flee Flood; Rainfall 11-Plus Inches

Court Will Move To Hospital

The hospital bedside of shooting victim Matt Cernac will be the stage Friday of a Marin Municipal Court preliminary hearing for his accused assailant.

The 9 a.m. hearing at Marin General Hospital was ordered yesterday by Judge Alvin H. Goldstein Jr. over defense objections, when Dist Atty. Bruce B. Bales requested a week's continuance to next Friday.

Bales told the court he doesn't yet have sufficient evidence against the defendant, John W. Frederick, 36, who is charged with assault with deadly weapon in the Jan. 13 shooting of the 43-year-old Cernac at the latter's San Rafael apartment.

Frederick's attorney, William O. Weissich, charged Bales with stalling in hope of acquiring enough evidence by Friday to have Frederick bound over to Marin Superior Court for trial.

Weissich declared Cernac is unable to remember any details of the shooting, and that any testimony by Cernac will be irrelevant.

Cernac's physician, Dr. Sam Hanzel, San Rafael, testified that Cernac has memory and recognized his estranged wife, but has no recollection of the shooting, or events leading up to it.

He said Cernac has a piece of

Construction Funds Given To Hamilton

The Defense Department has authorized construction of two dormitories costing a total of $818,000 and an engine warm-up pad at $149,000 at Hamilton Air Force Base.

The funds are part of a $564 million appropriation approved by Congress in 1965 for military housing, barracks and other projects, but never spent. Construction totaling $10 million is scheduled in the 12 Naval District.

Rain Totals Vary Widely Around Marin

Highest rainfall figure for the storm currently pounding Marin County was recorded today by Charles Hardy in Kent Woodlands—11.95 inches for the 24 hour period from 7 a.m. yesterday to 7 a.m. today.

In the hills above Ross, a woman reported 11.69 inches of rain to 8 a.m. today for the total storm, which began early yesterday morning.

The storm total in San Rafael at noon today stood at 10.10 inches, with 8.15 inches falling since noon yesterday.

Elsewhere in the county, rainfall figures for the total storm to 8 a.m. today were: Chevy Chase area of Larkspur, 7.85; Woodacre 8.96; Fairfax, 8.2; San Anselmo, 6.97; Point Reyes, 5.6; Mill Valley, 5.35; Sausalito, 5.15; Belvedere, 5.53; Hamilton Air Force Base, 5.4; Bolinas, 4.61; Civic Center, 5.90; Novato, 4.21; and Tamalpais Valley, 5.19.

Slides Threatening Homes On Hillside

By STEPHEN COOK

The storm which hit Marin County early yesterday has dumped more than 11 inches of rain on parts of the county, forced people from homes flooded or threatened by slides, washed out bridges and closed major roadways.

Waterlogged Kentfield firemen took 60 to 70 people to and from their flooded homes last night, carrying them by boats and on their shoulders.

Sir Francis Drake Boulevard was closed in three areas—through Kentfield and Ross by deep water, between Point Reyes and Whitehouse Pool where the bridge washed away and west of Point Reyes, when a tree fell across the road near Pierce Point Road.

Traffic to and from Inverness was blocked on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard by the bridge wash out and was diverted to Bear Valley Road.

In San Rafael, Public Works Director Norris Rawles toured the city this morning, then reported "this is the worst flooding I've seen in the 14 years I've been with the city."

At 8:45 a.m. today, a storage shed was carried away by a landslide at 460 Bret Harte Road, Rawles reported. The mud and shed severed the road at that point.

Mrs. Albert S. Giesecke of 470 Bret Harte Road said she and her husband heard "a violent roar" and the lights and the radio went out as power lines were sheared by the slide.

In Larkspur this morning, Public Works Director Warren Mistron said his men were evacuating two homes on Wilson Way which were threatened by an earth slide. Others, he said, may be threatened.

Larkspur firemen evacuated families from numbers 17 and 25 College Court in the College Park cul-de-sac. Water came into several of the homes there and firemen shut off power to half the circle's 25 homes.

Water ran seven feet deep in Granton Park near College of Marin last night and this morning. The current was so swift in the park that rescue boats were forced to use outboard motors.

Aussies Burn Ky In Effigy

SYDNEY (UPI) — Visiting South Vietnamese Premier Nguyen Cao Ky was burned in effigy today by a mob of antiwar demonstrators who blocked his arrival route over the Sydney Harbor Bridge and taxed the tightest security measures in Australian history.

Ky flew to a cheering airport welcome here from Brisbane, where aggressive antiwar protestors rushed him yesterday outside the same hotel where President Johnson encountered the most hostile reception of his Far Eastern tour.

A mob of 3,000 anti-Ky demonstrators milled about the northern end of the famed bridge and forced a last-minute change in Ky's route from the airport to Kirribilli House, the official Sydney residence of Prime Minister Harold Holt.

The premier's party halted and crossed the harbor by launch instead of driving over the bridge.

The demonstrators were led by opposition Labor party leader Arthur Calwell. He had urged "massive but peaceful" marches and demonstrations against Ky.

LeMay Doubts Space Peace

WASHINGTON (AP)—Retired Gen. Curtis E. LeMay says he does not think the United States is "in space for a peaceful purpose."

"The Russians are not in space for peaceful purposes" either, he adds. "They have a program that is militarily oriented. If we are going to keep peace in space we will have to have a police force out there."

LeMay said the United States is not ready to develop a weapons system in space "but we ought to learn as much as we can about it and, if weapons systems are needed there, be in a position to build the first and build the best ones first."

The former Air Force chief in a wide-ranging interview also called for a stepped up air and naval offensive in Vietnam. The United States has no choice but to win the war there "and win it quickly," he said.

LeMay's comments taking issue with the contention that space can be preserved for peaceful purposes came a month after the United Nations General Assembly unanimously approved a treaty to ban outer space as an arena for nuclear war.

The treaty forbids the orbiting or stationing of nuclear weapons anywhere in outer space. It bars military bases, installations and fortifications and weapon testing on celestial bodies. Neither the United States nor the Soviet Union has ratified the treaty.

Cubans Execute Exile Skipper

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Havana radio said today a Cuban exile who once lost a boatload of refugees in a storm, was condemned to death and executed.

The broadcast identified the man as Enrique Gonzalez, 32, and said he was a member of the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency. A U.S. government spokesman denied two weeks ago that Gonzalez was a CIA agent.

The broadcast, monitored in Miami, said several crewmates who went with Gonzalez from Miami to pickup more would-be refugees were sentenced to prison.

Gonzalez was the sole survivor of a clandestine exile ferry voyage last October when Hurricane Inez capsized his boat not long out of western Cuba, and 44 persons drowned.

Students Condemn Sukarno

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—Nearly 2,000 students massed outside army headquarters today, accusing President Sukarno of being a Communist and shouting "Death to Sukarno" and "Hang Sukarno!"

The students chanted charges that Sukarno was involved in the Communist coup attempt of Oct. 1, 1965, and had a hand in the murder of six generals in the abortive revolt.

Leaders in Indonesia's Congress decided yesterday to hold a full congressional hearing in March or April to review Sukarno's position as president. The hearing could result in Sukarno's removal, but diplomats noted that such action has been demanded before and Sukarno is still president.

Anti-Mao Armies Defy Red Guard

HONG KONG (UPI)—Tens of thousands of militant Red Guards have moved into the southeastern Chinese province of Kiangsi to break up a "peasant army" organized by enemies of Party Chairman Mao Tse-tung, news reports here said today.

The Hong Kong newspaper Truth Daily, quoting refugees from the city of Nanchang, capital of Kiangsi province, said the huge anti-Mao force was in control of the area and daring Red Guards to try and oust it.

The report recalled a warning by Defense Minister Lin Piao that Red China's current power struggle was approaching "civil war."

The Hong Kong newspaper said the anti-Mao army was formed by a huge group of dissident Red Guards called the "August 1st Battle Corps." It was ordered by Peking to disband when it was discovered to be under the control of anti-Mao leaders.

The development came against a background of growing chaos in Red China's raging power upheaval and reports of bitter clashes between pro-and anti-Mao forces in Shanghai and Canton.

The English-language Hong Kong Times, quoting recent travelers from behind the Bamboo Curtain, said there has been frequent fighting in Red China's two largest cities between Red Guard youths and Chinese workers.

Other press reports here told of the appearance of many posters in Canton attacking Lin, Mao's chief ally and heir apparent, as "an opportunist."

According to the newspaper, the posters said Lin was a "capitalist bred by the Chinese Nationalist party" and "not qualified to be Mao's successor and certainly not the man to lead the country." Another poster reportedly said "to save China, Lin must be toppled."

Angry Red Guards, who have been spearheading Mao's "cultural revolution" purge tore the posters down as quickly as they found them, the travelers were quoted as saying.

Lin's appeal for mass support for Mao in China's power upheaval appeared in wall posters in Peking and reported by the Japan Broadcasting Corp. The agency said Lin made the statements during a recent session of the Chinese Communist party's defense committee of which Lin is chairman.

Lin was reported to have told his audience, "we are now in total civil war. We have to fight on one hand and at the same time refrain from fighting at random."

BUGLES HERALD DEADLY BATTLE

GIs, South Viet Troops Rout Cong Just Outside Saigon Field

SAIGON (UPI)—Bugle-blowing South Vietnamese paratroopers and their American advisers killed 114 Communists on the outskirts of Saigon in a bloody battle that featured wholesale valor, hand-to-hand combat and helicopter heroics.

The battle which defeated a Communist battalion of possibly 600 men massing for an attack on the Tan Son Nhut Airbase five miles from Saigon began late yesterday and continued until midnight. It was the largest battle ever fought so close to the capital.

Some of the paratroopers and such Americans as Sgt. Christian Girard of Boston, Mass., fought hand-to-hand duels as they charged head on through heavy automatic weapons and machinegun fire into heavily fortified Communist bunkers to rout the Viet Cong.

They charged to the sound of their own bugles—a tactic used by Communist human wave assaults in the Korean war. Capt. Ernest Webb of Newhall, Calif., an adviser, said "they got up and made that assault with no hesitation" in a display of mass heroism rarely seen in the war.

NEW MIGS

The battle was a highlight of a series of major Vietnam developments that included:

U.S. military sources disclosed that the Soviet Union had "more than replaced" the nine North Vietnamese MIG jets shot down by U.S. pilots this month and had given the Hanoi government a blank check to order even more of the sleek interceptors.

A Soviet-built surface-to-air missile (SAM) fired at an American fighter-bomber Friday went out of control and exploded in a populated area of North Vietnam near the industrial city of Thanh Hoa in the southern panhandle of North Vietnam.

The U.S. Navy destroyers Benner and Stoddard, using special electronic sensors to detect and pinpoint enemy radar, silenced four Communist shore batteries in two separate clashes off the coast of North Vietnam. The destroyers were not hit. They sank five seagoing barges.

RAIDS IN NORTH

U.S. pilots returned to danger-packed "MIG Alley" north of Hanoi and bombed railroad targets for the fifth consecutive day. In the south, B-52s carried out three raids, hitting enemy troop concentrations 12 miles west of Quang Nai, 38 miles northwest of Quang Tri and 14 miles west of Hue, the ancient imperial capital. A U.S. Army PQE birddog observation plane was shot down and one of the two-man crew was killed.

The battle near the Tan Son Nhut airbase was a field day for helicopters which killed at least 25 Viet Cong in the early hours of the action when the men who call themselves the Razorbacks took off from Tan Son Nhut to do battle.

At one point a daring helicopter pilot swooped down on four Viet Cong fleeing across open ground and pinned them down with rocket and machinegun fire. The helicopter landed, a crewman jumped out with his pistol and captured all four.

One of the four captured was Ly Van Bo, 19, who said he had been in the Viet Cong five months and once deserted. He said he surrendered with his rifle when the helicopter appeared and he found he had no place to flee.

The Communists were caught in the open because the rice in the paddyland where the battle was fought had recently been cut and was dotted with numerous small stacks of rice straw. The battle began when a helicopter pilot noticed a handful of Viet Cong running across the field.

Savio, Four Other Sit-In Non-Students Convicted

BERKELEY (UPI) — Mario Savio and four other non-students were convicted early today on nuisance charges resulting from a November sit-in at the University of California.

The other defendants were Jerry Rubin, 28, Steven Hamilton, 23, Stewart Albert, 26, and Michael Smith, 25, all of Berkeley. Hamilton was also convicted on trespass charges. A jury deliberated the case for 10½ hours before returning its verdict in Municipal Court.

DEADLOCK VOTE

The jury failed to reach a verdict on trespass charges against the 23-year-old Savio, Rubin, Albert and Smith. It also could not reach a verdict on nuisance and trespass charges against William Miller, 25, a sixth defendant.

Judge Floyd Talbott set Wednesday for sentencing.

Melvin Belli, the attorney representing all the defendants, said he would appeal the convictions. He added, "I wouldn't leave a patient halfway through an operation dying on the table."

SIT-IN ARRESTS

The arrests were made during a sit-in to protest the presence of Navy recruiters in the Student Union Building on campus Nov. 30. The incident touched off a partial boycott by students and some teaching assistants that lasted four days. Several thousand students stayed away from classes.

The incident occurred almost two years ago to the day when Savio led the Free Speech Movement on the campus. The 1964 crisis hit its high-point when nearly 700 persons were arrested for a sit-in in the administration building.

The bushy-haired Savio and the mustachioed Rubin have been prominent leaders in most of the student uprisings the past three years at the Berkeley campus. The student unrest had much to do with yesterday's ouster of Clark Kerr as president of the nine campus University of California system.

Bagley Backs Rousselot, Kuchel Race

BAKERSFIELD (UPI) — Assemblyman William Bagley, R-San Rafael, said Thursday John Rousselot is resigning his public relations position with the John Birch Society to run for the U.S. Senate against Thomas Kuchel, R-Calif.

Speaking on a Bakersfield television program, Bagley said he would "gladly" pay Rousselot's filing fee.

"Then the people of California could show once and for all what they think of Rousselot and the esteem in which they hold my dear friend, Senator Kuchel," Bagley said.

Bagley said he learned of Rousselot's plans from high officials in the California Republican Party.

Rousselot has announced that he will resign from the Birch Society to go into private business. When questioned on his political plans Thursday at his San Marino home, Rousselot said it was "premature" to discuss running for the Senate.

Two Hurt As Auto Hit Bridge Railing

A San Anselmo man and his wife were injured when his car hit a concrete bridge railing at Sir Francis Drake Boulevard and Tunstead Avenue yesterday at 12:30 a.m., according to San Anselmo police.

Nationwide Negro Strike Urged To Protest Powell Punishment

DETROIT (UPI)—A nationwide Negro strike to protest the treatment of Rep. Adam Clayton Powell was urged by Detroit Negro leaders today.

Plans already have been set for a "general strike" against school and work in the Michigan cities of Detroit, Muskegon, Flint and Saginaw on Feb. 13.

The Rev. Albert B. Cleage Jr., an organizer of the United Strike Committee in Support of Powell, said "conversations" have been in progress in an attempt to make the protest nationwide.

Called the "direct action reprisal campaign", the leaders have enlisted the aid of Negro comedian Dick Gregory as honorary chairman.

Cleage said, "It will be a general city-wide protest. We hope they (Negroes) will not buy or work on that day and that they will all keep their children out of school."

Cleage was an unsuccessful candidate for Congress last summer in the Democratic primary and campaigned under a "black power" flag.

He said the strike plan was devised in a meeting earlier this week with other civil rights leaders, including Stokely Carmichael, national chairman of the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee.

Powell has been denied his seat in the House while Congress investigates his involvement in a libel suit to determine whether he should be seated. He earlier lost his chairmanship of the Education Committee and some Negro spokesmen labeled the action an attack on the Negro race.

UNIVERSAL LIFE?

Scientists Say Space Dust Is Chlorophyll

BERKELEY (UPI)—A physicist-astronomer says chlorophyll, a key compound of life on earth, exists in outer space.

His theory would imply that biological life may be possible out there, too.

"The germ of life is implicit in my theory," Dr. Fred M. Johnson of Pasadena, said yesterday. "The significance of my find, if correct, is that a case for life chemistry in space can not only be inferred but the end product can be looked upon as a form of life similar to that on earth."

Johnson, a scientist with Electro-Optical Systems, Inc., a subsidiary of Xerox Corp., made his report at a specially convened symposium of skeptical astronomists and biochemists at the University of California.

NOT GRAPHITE

Johnson said he had identified interstellar dust grains as chlorophyll, not ice or graphite as scientists have believed.

Chlorophyll gives plants their green color. It is the key to photosynthesis by which light, water and carbon dioxide are converted into sugar, energy and organic life.

The stellar dust particles have been observed telescopically for more than 80 years as a sort of cloud formation in space.

"The true significance of my discovery is that biology emerges in the same category as physics and chemistry as being the same throughout space," said Johnson, who has done research in this field for 13 years.

SEARCH METHOD

Johnson said his discovery was made through spectographic studies, a process of examining the light which passes through space and using its variations to identify substances it passes through.

He said his findings came "accidentally" in his biochemistry studies in which he used a spectrograph to identify various substances. Johnson was concentrating mostly on chlorophyll.

"This is found anywhere—any green vegetable such as spinach," the scientist said. "actually, I borrowed some leaves from a neighbor. They happened to be those of heavenly bamboo.

"The absorption lines of chlorophyll," he said, "have matched up with the interstellar fingerpaints under laboratory tests."

North Koreans Take Hard Line On Ship Attack

PANMUNJON, Korea (UPI)—Communist North Korea today warned that its ships and shore batteries will fire on any South Korean ship that enters its territorial waters.

Army Maj. Gen. Pak Chungkuk told a meeting of the military armistice commission that the sinking of a southern patrol boat last Thursday was a "self-defense action" and warned against further "intrusions."

Forty South Korean sailors were lost in the incident—the most serious naval clash since the end of the Korean War.

The North Korean representative also refused to reply to U.N. command request that an investigation of the incident be handled by a third, neutral party,

U. S. Army Maj. Gen. Richard G. Cicollela, the U. N. command's senior delegate to the commission, denounced Pak's attack and demanded that the Communists "participate and cooperate in an investigation (of the incident) . . . by the neutral nations supervisory commission."

Gala Cruise Doesn't Get Far To Sea

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI)—The 313 passengers of the cruise ship Atlantic said their goodbyes and sailed away in the sunset. But they awakened today to find themselves no more than 800 yards offshore, hard aground.

The 593-foot vessel ran afoul of a sandbar after barely clearing the harbor last evening on the start of a seven-day cruise to St. Thomas, in the Virgin Islands and San Juan, Puerto Rico.

Five tugboats huffed and puffed to free the 18,100-ton liner when it first went aground in about 20 feet of water, and four tugs tried it again at high tide about 4 a.m., both times unsuccessfully.

A spokesman for the cruise lines said the next attempt would be made when high tide comes around again about 3 p.m., this time after pumping ballast water from the vessel in order to lighten her, and also possibly some fuel oil which would be pumped into barges.

The Navy tug Stallion will join the operation for the next try.

A Coast Guard cutter stood by during the night but reported the Atlantic in no danger and not in need of assistance. The passengers apparently were being well cared for. The spokesman said there were 330 crewmen aboard, outnumbering the passengers.

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—Nearly 2,000 students massed outside army headquarters today, accusing President Sukarno of being a Communist and shouting "Death to Sukarno" and "Hang Sukarno!"

The students chanted charges that Sukarno was involved in the Communist coup attempt of Oct. 1, 1965, and had a hand in the murder of six generals in the abortive revolt.

Leaders in Indonesia's Congress decided yesterday to hold a full congressional hearing in March or April to review Sukarno's position as president. The hearing could result in Sukarno's removal, but diplomats noted that such action has been demanded before and Sukarno is still president.

Anti-Mao Armies Defy Red Guard

HONG KONG (UPI)—Tens of thousands of militant Red Guards have moved into the southeastern Chinese province of Kiangsi to break up a "peasant army" organized by enemies of Party Chairman Mao Tse-tung, news reports here said today.

The Hong Kong newspaper Truth Daily, quoting refugees from the city of Nanchang, capital of Kiangsi province, said the huge anti-Mao force was in control of the area and daring Red Guards to try and oust it.

The report recalled a warning by Defense Minister Lin Piao that Red China's current power struggle was approaching "civil war."

The Hong Kong newspaper said the anti-Mao army was formed by a huge group of dissident Red Guards called the "August 1st Battle Corps." It was ordered by Peking to disband when it was discovered to be under the control of anti-Mao leaders.

The development came against a background of growing chaos in Red China's raging power upheaval and reports of bitter clashes between pro-and anti-Mao forces in Shanghai and Canton.

The English-language Hong Kong Times, quoting recent travelers from behind the Bamboo Curtain, said there has been frequent fighting in Red China's two largest cities between Red Guard youths and Chinese workers.

Other press reports here told of the appearance of many posters in Canton attacking Lin, Mao's chief ally and heir apparent, as "an opportunist."

According to the newspaper, the posters said Lin was a "capitalist bred by the Chinese Nationalist party" and "not qualified to be Mao's successor and certainly not the man to lead the country." Another poster reportedly said "to save China, Lin must be toppled."

Angry Red Guards, who have been spearheading Mao's "cultural revolution" purge tore the posters down as quickly as they found them, the travelers were quoted as saying.

Lin's appeal for mass support for Mao in China's power upheaval appeared in wall posters in Peking and reported by the Japan Broadcasting Corp. The agency said Lin made the statements during a recent session of the Chinese Communist party's defense committee of which Lin is chairman.

Lin was reported to have told his audience, "we are now in total civil war. We have to fight on one hand and at the same time refrain from fighting at random."

BUGLES HERALD DEADLY BATTLE

SAIGON (UPI)—Bugle-blowing South Vietnamese paratroopers and their American advisers killed 114 Communists on the outskirts of Saigon in a bloody battle that featured wholesale valor, hand-to-hand combat and helicopter heroics.

The battle which defeated a Communist battalion of possibly 600 men massing for an attack on the Tan Son Nhut Airbase five miles from Saigon began late yesterday and continued until midnight. It was the largest battle ever fought so close to the capital.

Some of the paratroopers and such Americans as Sgt. Christian Girard of Boston, Mass., fought hand-to-hand duels as they charged head on through heavy automatic weapons and machinegun fire into heavily fortified Communist bunkers to rout the Viet Cong.

They charged to the sound of their own bugles—a tactic used by Communist human wave assaults in the Korean war. Capt. Ernest Webb of Newhall, Calif., an adviser, said "they got up and made that assault with no hesitation" in a display of mass heroism rarely seen in the war.

NEW MIGS

The battle was a highlight of a series of major Vietnam developments that included:

U.S. military sources disclosed that the Soviet Union had "more than replaced" the nine North Vietnamese MIG jets shot down by U.S. pilots this month and had given the Hanoi government a blank check to order even more of the sleek interceptors.

A Soviet-built surface-to-air missile (SAM) fired at an American fighter-bomber Friday went out of control and exploded in a populated area of North Vietnam near the industrial city of Thanh Hoa in the southern panhandle of North Vietnam.

The U.S. Navy destroyers Benner and Stoddard, using special electronic sensors to detect and pinpoint enemy radar, silenced four Communist shore batteries in two separate clashes off the coast of North Vietnam. The destroyers were not hit. They sank five seagoing barges.

RAIDS IN NORTH

U.S. pilots returned to danger-packed "MIG Alley" north of Hanoi and bombed railroad targets for the fifth consecutive day. In the south, B-52s carried out three raids, hitting enemy troop concentrations 12 miles west of Quang Nai, 38 miles northwest of Quang Tri and 14 miles west of Hue, the ancient imperial capital. A U.S. Army PQE birddog observation plane was shot down and one of the two-man crew was killed.

The battle near the Tan Son Nhut airbase was a field day for helicopters which killed at least 25 Viet Cong in the early hours of the action when the men who call themselves the Razorbacks took off from Tan Son Nhut to do battle.

At one point a daring helicopter pilot swooped down on four Viet Cong fleeing across open ground and pinned them down with rocket and machinegun fire. The helicopter landed, a crewman jumped out with his pistol and captured all four.

One of the four captured was Ly Van Bo, 19, who said he had been in the Viet Cong five months and once deserted. He said he surrendered with his rifle when the helicopter appeared and he found he had no place to flee.

The Communists were caught in the open because the rice in the paddyland where the battle was fought had recently been cut and was dotted with numerous small stacks of rice straw. The battle began when a helicopter pilot noticed a handful of Viet Cong running across the field.

Savio, Four Other Sit-In Non-Students Convicted

BERKELEY (UPI) — Mario Savio and four other non-students were convicted early today on nuisance charges resulting from a November sit-in at the University of California.

The other defendants were Jerry Rubin, 28, Steven Hamilton, 23, Stewart Albert, 26, and Michael Smith, 25, all of Berkeley. Hamilton was also convicted on trespass charges. A jury deliberated the case for 10½ hours before returning its verdict in Municipal Court.

DEADLOCK VOTE

The jury failed to reach a verdict on trespass charges against the 23-year-old Savio, Rubin, Albert and Smith. It also could not reach a verdict on nuisance and trespass charges against William Miller, 25, a sixth defendant.

Judge Floyd Talbott set Wednesday for sentencing.

Melvin Belli, the attorney representing all the defendants, said he would appeal the convictions. He added, "I wouldn't leave a patient halfway through an operation dying on the table."

SIT-IN ARRESTS

The arrests were made during a sit-in to protest the presence of Navy recruiters in the Student Union Building on campus Nov. 30. The incident touched off a partial boycott by students and some teaching assistants that lasted four days. Several thousand students stayed away from classes.

The incident occurred almost two years ago to the day when Savio led the Free Speech Movement on the campus. The 1964 crisis hit its high-point when nearly 700 persons were arrested for a sit-in in the administration building.

The bushy-haired Savio and the mustachioed Rubin have been prominent leaders in most of the student uprisings the past three years at the Berkeley campus. The student unrest had much to do with yesterday's ouster of Clark Kerr as president of the nine campus University of California system.

Bagley Backs Rousselot, Kuchel Race

BAKERSFIELD (UPI) — Assemblyman William Bagley, R-San Rafael, said Thursday John Rousselot is resigning his public relations position with the John Birch Society to run for the U.S. Senate against Thomas Kuchel, R-Calif.

Speaking on a Bakersfield television program, Bagley said he would "gladly" pay Rousselot's filing fee.

"Then the people of California could show once and for all what they think of Rousselot and the esteem in which they hold my dear friend, Senator Kuchel," Bagley said.

Bagley said he learned of Rousselot's plans from high officials in the California Republican Party.

Rousselot has announced that he will resign from the Birch Society to go into private business. When questioned on his political plans Thursday at his San Marino home, Rousselot said it was "premature" to discuss running for the Senate.

Nationwide Negro Strike Urged To Protest Powell Punishment

DETROIT (UPI)—A nationwide Negro strike to protest the treatment of Rep. Adam Clayton Powell was urged by Detroit Negro leaders today.

Plans already have been set for a "general strike" against school and work in the Michigan cities of Detroit, Muskegon, Flint and Saginaw on Feb. 13.

The Rev. Albert B. Cleage Jr., an organizer of the United Strike Committee in Support of Powell, said "conversations" have been in progress in an attempt to make the protest nationwide.

Called the "direct action reprisal campaign", the leaders have enlisted the aid of Negro comedian Dick Gregory as honorary chairman.

Cleage said, "It will be a general city-wide protest. We hope they (Negroes) will not buy or work on that day and that they will all keep their children out of school."

Cleage was an unsuccessful candidate for Congress last summer in the Democratic primary and campaigned under a "black power" flag.

He said the strike plan was devised in a meeting earlier this week with other civil rights leaders, including Stokely Carmichael, national chairman of the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee.

Powell has been denied his seat in the House while Congress investigates his involvement in a libel suit to determine whether he should be seated. He earlier lost his chairmanship of the Education Committee and some Negro spokesmen labeled the action an attack on the Negro race.

UNIVERSAL LIFE?

Scientists Say Space Dust Is Chlorophyll

BERKELEY (UPI)—A physicist-astronomer says chlorophyll, a key compound of life on earth, exists in outer space.

His theory would imply that biological life may be possible out there, too.

"The germ of life is implicit in my theory," Dr. Fred M. Johnson of Pasadena, said yesterday. "The significance of my find, if correct, is that a case for life chemistry in space can not only be inferred but the end product can be looked upon as a form of life similar to that on earth."

Johnson, a scientist with Electro-Optical Systems, Inc., a subsidiary of Xerox Corp., made his report at a specially convened symposium of skeptical astronomists and biochemists at the University of California.

NOT GRAPHITE

Johnson said he had identified interstellar dust grains as chlorophyll, not ice or graphite as scientists have believed.

Chlorophyll gives plants their green color. It is the key to photosynthesis by which light, water and carbon dioxide are converted into sugar, energy and organic life.

The stellar dust particles have been observed telescopically for more than 80 years as a sort of cloud formation in space.

"The true significance of my discovery is that biology emerges in the same category as physics and chemistry as being the same throughout space," said Johnson, who has done research in this field for 13 years.

SEARCH METHOD

Johnson said his discovery was made through spectographic studies, a process of examining the light which passes through space and using its variations to identify substances it passes through.

He said his findings came "accidentally" in his biochemistry studies in which he used a spectrograph to identify various substances. Johnson was concentrating mostly on chlorophyll.

"This is found anywhere—any green vegetable such as spinach," the scientist said. "actually, I borrowed some leaves from a neighbor. They happened to be those of heavenly bamboo.

"The absorption lines of chlorophyll," he said, "have matched up with the interstellar fingerpaints under laboratory tests."

North Koreans Take Hard Line On Ship Attack

PANMUNJON, Korea (UPI)—Communist North Korea today warned that its ships and shore batteries will fire on any South Korean ship that enters its territorial waters.

Army Maj. Gen. Pak Chungkuk told a meeting of the military armistice commission that the sinking of a southern patrol boat last Thursday was a "self-defense action" and warned against further "intrusions."

Forty South Korean sailors were lost in the incident—the most serious naval clash since the end of the Korean War.

The North Korean representative also refused to reply to U.N. command request that an investigation of the incident be handled by a third, neutral party,

U. S. Army Maj. Gen. Richard G. Cicollela, the U. N. command's senior delegate to the commission, denounced Pak's attack and demanded that the Communists "participate and cooperate in an investigation (of the incident) . . . by the neutral nations supervisory commission."

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — The Dallas Morning News today quoted an "informed source" as having said Luci Johnson Nugent, daughter of the President would become a mother in the fall.

Gala Cruise Doesn't Get Far To Sea

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI)—The 313 passengers of the cruise ship Atlantic said their goodbyes and sailed away in the sunset. But they awakened today to find themselves no more than 800 yards offshore, hard aground.

The 593-foot vessel ran afoul of a sandbar after barely clearing the harbor last evening on the start of a seven-day cruise to St. Thomas, in the Virgin Islands and San Juan, Puerto Rico.

Five tugboats huffed and puffed to free the 18,100-ton liner when it first went aground in about 20 feet of water, and four tugs tried it again at high tide about 4 a.m., both times unsuccessfully.

A spokesman for the cruise lines said the next attempt would be made when high tide comes around again about 3 p.m., this time after pumping ballast water from the vessel in order to lighten her, and also possibly some fuel oil which would be pumped into barges.

The Navy tug Stallion will join the operation for the next try.

A Coast Guard cutter stood by during the night but reported the Atlantic in no danger and not in need of assistance. The passengers apparently were being well cared for. The spokesman said there were 330 crewmen aboard, outnumbering the passengers.

Saturn Explodes

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The third stage of the huge Saturn 5 rocket that is scheduled to orbit three astronauts late this year blew up yesterday on a test stand.

The blast could be a serious blow to the Saturn 5 moon rocket development program which already is about four months behind schedule.

Police Hurried

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — Police Supt. Joseph Giarrusso has chopped 10 minutes off his men's lunch break, leaving New Orleans policemen only 20 minutes to eat.

"It's hard enough to gulp down your lunch in 30 minutes," one veteran officer said yesterday after the order went out over the police network. "Now, we'll hardly have time to eat a hamburger."

Aussies Burn Ky In Effigy

SYDNEY (UPI) — Visiting South Vietnamese Premier Nguyen Cao Ky was burned in effigy today by a mob of antiwar demonstrators who blocked his arrival route over the Sydney Harbor Bridge and taxed the tightest security measures in Australian history.

Ky flew to a cheering airport welcome here from Brisbane, where aggressive antiwar protestors rushed him yesterday outside the same hotel where President Johnson encountered the most hostile reception of his Far Eastern tour.

A mob of 3,000 anti-Ky demonstrators milled about the northern end of the famed bridge and forced a last-minute change in Ky's route from the airport to Kirribilli House, the official Sydney residence of Prime Minister Harold Holt.

The premier's party halted and crossed the harbor by launch instead of driving over the bridge.

The demonstrators were led by opposition Labor party leader Arthur Calwell. He had urged "massive but peaceful" marches and demonstrations against Ky.

LeMay Doubts Space Peace

WASHINGTON (AP)—Retired Gen. Curtis E. LeMay says he does not think the United States is "in space for a peaceful purpose."

"The Russians are not in space for peaceful purposes" either, he adds. "They have a program that is militarily oriented. If we are going to keep peace in space we will have to have a police force out there."

LeMay said the United States is not ready to develop a weapons system in space "but we ought to learn as much as we can about it and, if weapons systems are needed there, be in a position to build the first and build the best ones first."

The former Air Force chief in a wide-ranging interview also called for a stepped up air and naval offensive in Vietnam. The United States has no choice but to win the war there "and win it quickly," he said.

LeMay's comments taking issue with the contention that space can be preserved for peaceful purposes came a month after the United Nations General Assembly unanimously approved a treaty to ban outer space as an arena for nuclear war.

The treaty forbids the orbiting or stationing of nuclear weapons anywhere in outer space. It bars military bases, installations and fortifications and weapon testing on celestial bodies. Neither the United States nor the Soviet Union has ratified the treaty.

Cubans Execute Exile Skipper

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Havana radio said today a Cuban exile who once lost a boatload of refugees in a storm, was condemned to death and executed.

The broadcast identified the man as Enrique Gonzalez, 32, and said he was a member of the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency. A U.S. government spokesman denied two weeks ago that Gonzalez was a CIA agent.

The broadcast, monitored in Miami, said several crewmates who went with Gonzalez from Miami to pickup more would-be refugees were sentenced to prison.

Gonzalez was the sole survivor of a clandestine exile ferry voyage last October when Hurricane Inez capsized his boat not long out of western Cuba, and 44 persons drowned.

"The true significance of my discovery is that biology emerges in the same category as physics and chemistry as being the same throughout space," said Johnson, who has done research in this field for 13 years.

SEARCH METHOD

Johnson said his discovery was made through spectographic studies, a process of examining the light which passes through space and using its variations to identify substances it passes through.

He said his findings came "accidentally" in his biochemistry studies in which he used a spectrograph to identify various substances. Johnson was concentrating mostly on chlorophyll.

"This is found anywhere—any green vegetable such as spinach," the scientist said. "actually, I borrowed some leaves from a neighbor. They happened to be those of heavenly bamboo.

"The absorption lines of chlorophyll," he said, "have matched up with the interstellar fingerpaints under laboratory tests."

North Koreans Take Hard Line On Ship Attack

PANMUNJON, Korea (UPI)—Communist North Korea today warned that its ships and shore batteries will fire on any South Korean ship that enters its territorial waters.

Army Maj. Gen. Pak Chung-kuk told a meeting of the military armistice commission that the sinking of a southern patrol boat last Thursday was a "self-defense action" and warned against further "intrusions."

Forty South Korean sailors were lost in the incident—the most serious naval clash since the end of the Korean War.

The North Korean representative also refused to reply to U.N. command request that an investigation of the incident be handled by a third, neutral party.

U. S. Army Maj. Gen. Richard G. Cicollela, the U. N. command's senior delegate to the commission, denounced Pak's attack and demanded that the Communists "participate and cooperate in an investigation (of the incident) . . . by the neutral nations supervisory commission."

Officer Thwarted

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) —Patrolman Robert E. Martin was assigned recently to a special detachment aimed at curbing burglaries. Thursday night, burglars broke into his car and made off with a list of 50 suspected and known criminals which Martin had compiled during his investigation.

Luci Expecting?

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — The Dallas Morning News today quoted an "informed source" as having said Luci Johnson Nugent, daughter of the President would become a mother in the fall.

Gala Cruise Doesn't Get Far To Sea

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI)—The 313 passengers of the cruise ship Atlantic said their goodbyes and sailed away in the sunset. But they awakened today to find themselves no more than 800 yards offshore, hard aground.

The 593-foot vessel ran afoul of a sandbar after barely clearing the harbor last evening on the start of a seven-day cruise to St. Thomas, in the Virgin Islands and San Juan, Puerto Rico.

Five tugboats huffed and puffed to free the 18,100-ton liner when it first went aground in about 20 feet of water, and four tugs tried it again at high tide about 4 a.m., both times unsuccessfully.

A spokesman for the cruise lines said the next attempt would be made when high tide comes around again about 3 p.m., this time after pumping ballast water from the vessel in order to lighten her, and also possibly some fuel oil which would be pumped into barges.

The Navy tug Stallion will join the operation for the next try.

A Coast Guard cutter stood by during the night but reported the Atlantic in no danger and not in need of assistance. The passengers apparently were being well cared for. The spokesman said there were 330 crewmen aboard, outnumbering the passengers.

Red Cross Effort

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The president of the American Red Cross, Gen. James F. Collins, says his organization was attempting to meet its North Vietnamese counterpart to discuss treatment of prisoners of war.

court were "almost lost," Kentfield fire chief Kenneth Kamp reported, when their motor died and their boat was swept toward the rushing creek. The two stopped the boat by grabbing a fence at the last moment, Kamp said.

People were evacuated in Granton Park, on Berens Drive and from apartments on Kent Avenue. When they ran out of boats, Kentfield firemen carried families out on their shoulders.

At 11:30 p.m. yesterday, a Greyhound Bus was trapped in water on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard near Ross General Hospital. Kentfield firemen walked in, with water coming over the tops of their waders, and carried out the driver and his one passenger on their shoulders.

BASE FLOODED

Housing near the main entrance to Hamilton Air Force Base was invaded by three and a half to four feet of water. An undetermined number of families were evacuated as 100 airmen fought to contain the rising waters.

In Sausalito, the Sausalito Cruising Club, perched atop a a 130 foot barge which broke loose from its moorings at about 8 p.m. yesterday, just as about 25 members prepared to sit down to dinner after their Friday night "happy hour."

Its permanent gangplank was ripped away, as were telephone and power lines. The craft drifted to 10 feet from shore.

Club member Harry Kramer reported that one member was dispatched to the firemen, while the rest sat down to a chicken cacciatori dinner by candlelight. "We had a good dinner, but no hot coffee, and the bar stayed open," he said.

Firemen, police and a Coast Guard Crew secured the 300-ton barge after an hour-and-a-half struggle. Three elderly people were evacuated by Coast Guard launch and the rest climbed to shore by hopping to a nearby sailboat tied to the pier, firemen reported.

Back in San Rafael, Rawles reported that some of the flooded areas in the city were reaching a critical state.

Point San Pedro Road was under water and just barely passable from Knight Drive to Riviera Drive at 10:30 a.m., he said. Water rose above the wheels of cars and logs and other debris floated in the water on the road.

BRETE HARTE

Heavily flooded as usual were roads in the Bret Harte Area, Rawles reported. Also flooded were streets in the downtown section. Rawles said no one was evacuated, though water did enter some homes in the Bret Harte area.

Parts of the city's industrial district were under three feet of water.

In Corte Madera, a lagoon overflowed and sent water into 15 or 20 homes on Mohawk Avenue, between Lakeside Drive and Hickory Avenue. Residents told police water rose through their backyards until it was seeping into living rooms and bedrooms at about 9 a.m. None asked to be evacuated.

In Tiburon, the firehouse was awash with about three inches of water in the floor. Tiburon Boulevard in the shopping area was under water but passable.

Belvedere firemen reported water in at least one home on Cove Road.

Policemen and firemen in Ross and Kentfield evacuated at least 25 motorists last night, after they ignored barricades and tried to negotiate flooded roads.

In San Rafael, last night, Mr. and Mrs. Hal McIntyre of Sausalito were rescued from their car when it plunged into waters flooding Woodland Avenue. Water was reported to be up to the roof of their car today, outside 55 Woodland.

At College of Marin, floodwaters tore up pavement on the college's main parking lot on College Avenue and at another lot on Kent Avenue. Water also got into the engineering building there, Chief Kamp reported.

He reported four feet of water on College Avenue, two feet on Kent Avenue and seven feet on the hidden streets of Granton Park.

Chief Kamp said flooding was worse than that which forced families to evacuate last January, but not equal to the floods which struck in 1955.

PG&E BUSY

More than 50 workmen of Pacific Gas and Electric Co. were kept on throughout the night, dealing with hundreds of calls complaining of power failures.

One of the largest areas affected was Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, where 1,500 customers from Butterfield Road to the Miracle Mile were without power from 6:24 a.m. to 10:15 a.m. today.

About 900 homes on the south of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard in San Anselmo had no electricity from 5:40 to 7:40 a.m. today. Other blackouts affected smaller areas.

For the most part, damage was caused by downed trees and gusty winds, which whipped and crossed the overhead lines, according to Z. P. Melcon, district electrical superintendent for P. G. and E.

ROAD CLOSED

In more isolated areas of the county, Public Works Director Donald R. Frost reported Chileno Valley Road closed due to heavy flooding, and the Shoreline Highway flooded south of Point Reyes. There were numerous slides on Panoramic Highway and Lucas Valley Road, he said, but neither were closed.

Rock slides also blocked streets in Mill Valley and Sausalito. In Mill Valley, slides closed East Blithedale Avenue from the Alto line to Camino Alto, and on Sycamore Avenue from Nelson Avenue to Camino Alto.

A section of Eveiyn Avenue was washed out, and a small slide was reported on Eldridge Avenue at Cottage Avenue, also Mill Valley.

Lights were reported out in the western end of the community from 4:15 a.m. to 8 a.m.

Sausalito police said slides menaced tourists at Buckley Avenue and Reed Street, Woodward Avenue and Easterby Street, Prospect and Cable Avenues, and on Sausalito Boulevard.

Supervisor Ernest N. Kettenhofen, surveying what he called the "worst flooding of Ross Valley in years," said today that he will ask County Administrator Alan Bruce to have the public works department make "a complete survey of storm damage for the board of supervisors."

He said the present deluge proved the "urgent need for completion of the Corte Madera Flood Control Project."

Marin County was reported by weather stations to be the hardest hit area in the state by the storm, which brought heavy rains from Paso Robles to Washington.

GALE WARNINGS

Seven diesel locomotives and a freight car were derailed in a snow shed at Norden in the high Sierra.

Because heavy snow impeded the arrival of work repair crews, the eastbound City of San Francisco to Chicago was cancelled. A westbound passenger train was stopped at Sparks, Nev., and buses had to be sent. to bring out the 112 passengers.

Southern Pacific Railroad expected the tieup to last at least 24 hours.

Storm Accidents Plague Traffic All Over Marin

More than two dozen minor accidents, three involving minor injuries, were reported in Marin during the storm which hit yesterday.

Alice J. Lyon, 43, of 110 Garden Lane, San Rafael, suffered possible fractured ribs when her car skidded and hit the abutment on the Cal-Park overpass on Highway 101. She was treated at Marin General Hospital and cited for driving with three worn tires.

David R. Freedheim, 34, of 564 Sausalito Boulevard, Sausalito, was treated in Marin General Hospital for a face injury after his car hit a chain link fence near Sir Francis Drake Boulevard on Highway 101.

Wendy Haydock, 16, of 11 Forest Avenue, Mill Valley, a passenger in a car driven by Constance Haynes, 16, of 87 San Carlos Avenue, Sausalito suffered a cut to the head in an accident near the Shoreline Highway off ramp of Highway 101, when their car collided with one driven by Victor J. Perry, 29, of Reno. Perry was cited for failing to yield right of way.

Budget On Agenda

Mill Valley Parks and Recreation Commission will review its budget requests for 1967-68 Monday at 8 p.m. in the board room of the new library. Also on the agenda is discussion of future development of Project 17.

ganizations to make their opinions known to the Governor's office early in the session.

"We have an open and new Administration," Bagley concluded. "Right now is your opportunity to communicate."

Commenting on specific issues, Bagley said he is "viscerally opposed" to the concept of tuition for state universities, "but you have to balance that with the economic question."

"One thing that does hurt the university and the state is the punitive attitude expressed: 'Let's charge those kids tuition and teach them a lesson.' This is an economic problem and not one of discipline. Discipline must me dealt with but not by punitive action indiscriminately."

LIVERMORE ADDED

Bagley described as "brilliant" the appointment of Norman Livermore of San Rafael as administrator of the Natural Resources Agency.

He foresees closer cooperation between the legislators and the Golden Gate Bridge District board of directors.

Quentin Denies Nazi-Muslim Impact On Riot

While admitting there were groups of neo-Nazis as well as Black Muslims in San Quentin prison, Associate Warden James W. L. Park denied a wire-service report today that both groups were behind Wednesday's near-riot.

He said: "There were some of each group involved in the confrontation but I don't think it is true to say that it was Nazi or Black Muslim inspired." There were only 40 hard-core Nazi sympathizers in the whole prison, he said.

He added: "We do not condone extremists of any variety. In general you will always find people in prison who will seek out any way of expressing hostility and anger."

Today, authorities were speeding up their revised method of feeding inmates.

Prisoners were being unlocked from their cells one tier at a time and Park expected the total 4,000 inmates would be fed in four hours.

Yesterday, it took prison chefs from noon to 7:30 to feed the men one hot meal. About 100 men go to the mess hall at a time.

Park said: "Things are fairly orderly and quiet."

Trustees To Talk Over Hiring Plans

Procedures and criteria to select a new superintendent will be considered Monday by Mill Valley School District trustees at 8 p.m. in the district office, 26 Miller Avenue.

Also on the agenda is review of an analysis of the district's education program by Dr. Glenn Skelton, director of instruction, and a recommendation from the policy development committee to require periodic inspection of schools for structural safety.

$3,000 Blaze In Apartment

A towel left hanging over an electric heater started a fire which caused an estimated $3,000 damage to a Corte Madera apartment house, Corte Madera Fire Chief Frank L. Nelson reported today.

Dick Newberry and Scott Crosby, occupants of the top apartment at 28 Edison Avenue were at the movies when fire broke out about 10:32 p.m.

Damage was confined to the bathroom, where the fire started, and to the hallway outside, said Nelson.

He said another occupant of the building, Gino Seminiani, grabbed a garden hose and kept the fire in check before firemen arrived. The three story house is owned by Graham McPhail.

the bullet in his head, and said the loss of memory of the shooting details is "almost surely permanent."

San Rafael police officer Donald A. Merkley told the court he went to Cernac's apartment at 1825 Lincoln Avenue, San Rafael, where Frederick met him. The defendant's white shirt was covered with blood, Merkley said.

Frederick led him, Merkley said, into the apartment where Cernac lay wounded by a .22 caliber bullet. Frederick then refused to say anything without a lawyer present.

Judge Goldstein granted a request by Weissich to reduce Frederick's $25,000 bail, setting it at $2,500. Frederick, a title examiner of 50 Sullivan Lane, Novato, has been in county jail since the shooting.

Weissich said Frederick also has no recollection of the shooting because he was extremely intoxicated.

Pair Adrift In Bay Found By Searchers

A Sausalito yachtsman and his female companion, lost for six hours in gale-driven rains on San Francisco Bay during the night, were found safe at 8:30 a.m. this morning aboard their 27-foot cabin cruiser in Hospital Cove.

Larry Pauza of 416 Bee Street, Apt. B, and an unidentified friend left Tiburon Tommie's pier at midnight, bound for Sausalito. A friend reported the vessel missing two hours later. A Coast Guard cutter found the boat, "What About Me II," adrift in Hospital Cove, out of gas.

Symphony Cancelled

Tomorrow night's performance of the Marin Symphony Orchestra at the College of Marin has been cancelled because of the storm. The Marin Symphony Guild, concert sponsor, hoped to reschedule it.

Meeting Blacked Out

The Muir Woods Improvement Assn. was forced to cancel its meeting last night because the storm knocked out power in the group's clubhouse on Ridge Avenue.

KERR

over when it resulted in Kerr's dismissal.

Kerr told a news conference later, "The university should serve truth and not political partisanship. I was not at the meeting, but the vote was 14 to 8 and the governor was one of the 14."

The 55-year-old educator said regents were obliged "not to respond too quickly to the swirls of political winds in the state. Because there is a new governor doesn't mean there needs to be a new president of the university. This has never happened before in the United States."

Reagan said the Kerr issue "was not on the agenda and his request (for a confidence vote) came as a "decision one way or another."

Mrs Hearst called Kerr's demand for a vote of confidence the president's "second ultimatum" to the regents and said she voted against him because "I reluctantly came to the conclusion that the president lacked the qualities of stable leadership so imperative to the future of the university." Kerr, she said, "stated he would never resign." She did not give details about the first "ultimatum."

Kerr's troubles date to December 1964 when masses of students staged a huge sit-in at Sproul Hall, the administration building, in behalf of more political freedom on campus. Police dragged students bodily from the building. More than 700 were arrested.

Kerr's ouster came after two days of argument by the regents over Reagan's hopes of trimming the higher education budget from $278 million to $192 million.

When Kerr took the reins of the university, there were seven campuses, totaling 43,000 students.

Today, in its 99th year, the university has nine campuses and 87,000 students — the biggest university in the United states.

Suspense and relief, shock and joy—and a prediction of chaos from influential Democrat Jesse M. Unruh—were statewide reactions today to the firing of Kerr.

"The timing was bad," said Assembly Speaker Unruh, D-Inglewood, in his first major controversy with Republican Gov. Reagan. The governor, an ex-officio regent, voted to fire Kerr.

Many Republicans in the legislature and across the state praised the regents' action. Not all Democrats joined Unruh in denouncing the move. The Democrats hold only slim majorities in the Assembly and Senate.

State school chief Dr. Max Rafferty said "a mere change in administration is just the first step toward a long-range solution." Rafferty, a supporter of Reagan in the 1966 election, referred to "the mess in Berkeley" caused by student demonstrations.

In Los Angeles, former Democratic Gov. Edmund G. Brown said Reagan seemed "dedicated to destroying the greatest university in the world."

Some educators said they were "shocked and surprised" at Kerr's firing. At the University of California Davis campus, the student legislature voted unanimously to express "love for President Kerr and what he stands for."

In Berkeley, former student Mario Savio met with the Student Strike Committee, which issued a statement saying "Good riddance to bad rubbish. The new Reagan adninistration has begun auspiciously . . ."

Senate President Hugh M. Burns, D-Fresno, called for restraint" along the university's critical road ahead. He made no direct comment on Kerr but said he hoped the next president would be "a strong administrator."

Another Democratic senator, J. Eugene McAteer, said he withdrew his support from Kerr when "he allowed two police officers to be imprisoned in their car during the student outbreak in 1964."

Los Angeles Mayor Samuel W. Yorty, who ran against Brown in the Democratic primary last June, said Kerr was a supporter of Brown's "who should have resigned" when Reagan won last November. Yorty called Kerr "a fine man . . . but too vacillating."

Chancellor Glenn S. Dumke of the California state college system said Kerr "has made a significant and constructive impact on the development of public higher education in California and to the recognition and respect it has earned throughout the world."

But Republican Assemblyman Don Mulford of Piedmont, whose district includes the Berkeley campus, said the firing was "the beginning of a new era at Berkeley."

Many of India's health problems are traced to lack of good and adequate housing.

OBITUARIES

Traffic Victim Ruby White

Funeral arrangements were pending today for Mrs. Ruby J. White, 24, of San Anselmo, killed yesterday in an auto accident on Highway 101 north of St. Vincent's Hill.

Her three children who were with her in the car escaped from the wreck uninjured.

According to California Highway Patrol officer Don R. McDonel, Mrs. White, of 404 San Francisco Boulevard, was driving north about 9:45 a.m.

She was north of Marinwood overpass when her car crossed the center divider, rolled over and landed 180 feet away, facing south in the southbound fast lane.

Mrs. White, a divorcee who had planned to re-marry within a few weeks, was dead on arrival at the Marin General Hospital at 10:30 a.m.

McDonel was still out today investigating the accident before making his final report. He said there were no witnesses.

The surviving children, Denise Irene, 6; Cheryl Marie, 4; and Roberta, 3 were considered too young to be helpful on details, he said.

The youngsters are staying with Mrs. White's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond G. Sidbeck who live at the same address at 404 San Francisco Boulevard.

The parents were waiting to hear from a brother, Ronald Sidbeck, serving with the Navy in Vietnam, before making funeral arrangements with the Chapel of the Hills, San Anselmo.

Mrs. White was the fourth person killed in Marin traffic accidents this year, and not the third as reported yesterday. Two lives had been lost in traffic up to Jan. 20, 1966.

A native of Sacramento, she lived in Marin County for 10 years. She resided at 95 Magee Avenue.

Mrs. Batchelder attended Sacramento State College.

She is survived by her husband, three daughters, Gina, 12, Lynn, 11, and Maria, 10, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. Grant of Sacramento.

Burial was to have been yesterday.

CHARLES KLOEHN

Funeral for Charles H. Kloehn, a resident of Fairfax for the past five years, will be at 1:30 p.m. Monday at Gantner-Maison-Domergue, 777 Valencia Street, San Francisco.

Kloehn, 84, died Thursday at at a San Francisco hospital after a lengthy illness. He lived with his sister and brother-in-law, Mrs. and Mrs. Arthur Tobin, at 47 Arroyo Road.

Born in Germany, Kloehn came to San Francisco with his parents at the age of 2, attending schools there and later working for a time as a boilermaker at the Union Iron Works. From 1905 to 1950, he was a motorman with the San Francisco Municipal Railway.

Kloehn was a member of Foresters of America and a member-at-large of the Amalgamated Transit Union.

He is survived by his sister, Mrs. Tobin, and a brother, Emil G. Kloehn of Richmond.

Burial will be in Mount Olivet Memorial Park in Colma.

MRS. McGUFFIN

Mrs. Almirah A. McGuffin, 88, died yesterday in a local convalescent hospital where she had been a patient since November.

Mrs. McGuffin formerly lived at 331 Devon Drive, San Rafael. Born in Ohio, she moved to California with her family when she was a year old. She lived in Marin County 16 years.

She was a member of the Redwoods Presbyterian Church of Larkspur.

Survivors include two sisters, Mrs. Dorothy Levy of San Anselmo and Mrs. Peggy Heide of Eureka.

Family services were held today at the Chapel of the Hills Funeral Home in San Anselmo.

Road Congestion To Be Discussed

Vincent S. Yoder, project engineer with the California State Division of Highways, will discuss expected problems of highway congestion in Marin County at a meeting of the Men's Club of Congregation Rodef Sholom tomorrow at 10 a.m.

The meeting, in the form of a traditional "lox and bagel brunch," will be held at the Temple Social Hall at 170 North San Pedro Road, Santa Venetia.

Policemen and firemen in Ross and Kentfield evacuated at least 25 motorists last night, after they ignored barricades and tried to negotiate flooded roads.

In San Rafael, last night, Mr. and Mrs. Hal McIntyre of Sausalito were rescued from their car when it plunged into waters flooding Woodland Avenue. Water was reported to be up to the roof of their car today, outside 55 Woodland.

At College of Marin, floodwaters tore up pavement on the college's main parking lot on College Avenue and at another lot on Kent Avenue. Water also got into the engineering building there, Chief Kamp reported.

He reported four feet of water on College Avenue, two feet on Kent Avenue and seven feet on the hidden streets of Granton Park.

Chief Kamp said flooding was worse than that which forced families to evacuate last January, but not equal to the floods which struck in 1955.

PG&E BUSY

More than 50 workmen of Pacific Gas and Electric Co. were kept on throughout the night, dealing with hundreds of calls complaining of power failures.

One of the largest areas affected was Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, where 1,500 customers from Butterfield Road to the Miracle Mile were without power from 6:24 a.m. to 10:15 a.m. today.

About 900 homes on the south of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard in San Anselmo had no electricity from 5:40 to 7:40 a.m. today. Other blackouts affected smaller areas.

For the most part, damage was caused by downed trees and gusty winds, which whipped and crossed the overhead lines, according to Z. P. Melcon, district electrical superintendent for P. G. and E.

ROAD CLOSED

In more isolated areas of the county, Public Works Director Donald R. Frost reported Chileno Valley Road closed due to heavy flooding, and the Shoreline Highway flooded south of Point Reyes. There were numerous slides on Panoramic Highway and Lucas Valley Road, he said, but neither were closed.

Rock slides also blocked streets in Mill Valley and Sausalito. In Mill Valley, slides closed East Blithedale Avenue from the Alto line to Camino Alto, and on Sycamore Avenue from Nelson Avenue to Camino Alto.

A section of Evelyn Avenue was washed out, and a small slide was reported on Eldridge Avenue at Cottage Avenue, also Mill Valley.

Lights were reported out in the western end of the community from 4:15 a.m. to 8 a.m.

Sausalito police said slides menaced tourists at Buckley Avenue and Reed Street, Woodward Avenue and Easterby Street, Prospect and Cable Avenues, and on Sausalito Boulevard.

Supervisor Ernest N. Kettenhofen, surveying what he called the "worst flooding of Ross Valley in years," said today that he will ask County Administrator Alan Bruce to have the public works department make "a complete survey of storm damage for the board of supervisors."

He said the present deluge proved the "urgent need for completion of the Corte Madera Flood Control Project."

Marin County was reported by weather stations to be the hardest hit area in the state by the storm, which brought heavy rains from Paso Robles to Washington.

GALE WARNINGS

Seven diesel locomotives and a freight car were derailed in a snow shed at Norden in the high Sierra.

Because heavy snow impeded the arrival of work repair crews, the eastbound City of San Francisco to Chicago was cancelled. A westbound passenger train was stopped at Sparks, Nev., and buses had to be sent. to bring out the 112 passengers.

Southern Pacific Railroad expected the tieup to last at least 24 hours.

Storm Accidents Plague Traffic All Over Marin

More than two dozen minor accidents, three involving minor injuries, were reported in Marin during the storm which hit yesterday.

Alice J. Lyon, 43, of 110 Garden Lane, San Rafael, suffered possible fractured ribs when her car skidded and hit the abutment on the Cal-Park overpass on Highway 101. She was treated at Marin General Hospital and cited for driving with three worn tires.

David R. Freedheim, 34, of 564 Sausalito Boulevard, Sausalito, was treated in Marin General Hospital for a face injury after his car hit a chain link fence near Sir Francis Drake Boulevard on Highway 101.

Wendy Haydock, 16, of 11 Forest Avenue, Mill Valley, a passenger in a car driven by Constance Haynes, 16, of 87 San Carlos Avenue, Sausalito suffered a cut to the head in an accident near the Shoreline Highway off ramp of Highway 101, when their car collided with one driven by Victor J. Perry, 29, of Reno. Perry was cited for failing to yield right of way.

Budget On Agenda

Mill Valley Parks and Recreation Commission will review its budget requests for 1967-68 Monday at 8 p.m. in the board room of the new library. Also on the agenda is discussion of future development of Project 17.

"We have an open and new Administration," Bagley concluded. "Right now is your opportunity to communicate."

Commenting on specific issues, Bagley said he is "viscerally opposed" to the concept of tuition for state universities, "but you have to balance that with the economic question."

"One thing that does hurt the university and the state is the punitive attitude expressed: 'Let's charge those kids tuition and teach them a lesson.' This is an economic problem and not one of discipline. Discipline must me dealt with but not by punitive action indiscriminately."

LIVERMORE ADDED

Bagley described as "brilliant" the appointment of Norman Livermore of San Rafael as administrator of the Natural Resources Agency.

He foresees closer cooperation between the legislators and the Golden Gate Bridge District board of directors.

Quentin Denies Nazi-Muslim Impact On Riot

While admitting there were groups of neo-Nazis as well as Black Muslims in San Quentin prison, Associate Warden James W. L. Park denied a wire-service report today that both groups were behind Wednesday's near-riot.

He said: "There were some of each group involved in the confrontation but I don't think it is true to say that it was Nazi or Black Muslim inspired." There were only 40 hard-core Nazi sympathizers in the whole prison, he said.

He added: "We do not condone extremists of any variety. In general you will always find people in prison who will seek out any way of expressing hostility and anger."

Today, authorities were speeding up their revised method of feeding inmates.

Prisoners were being unlocked from their cells one tier at a time and Park expected the total 4,000 inmates would be fed in four hours.

Yesterday, it took prison chefs from noon to 7:30 to feed the men one hot meal. About 100 men go to the mess hall at a time.

Park said: "Things are fairly orderly and quiet."

Trustees To Talk Over Hiring Plans

Procedures and criteria to select a new superintendent will be considered Monday by Mill Valley School District trustees at 8 p.m. in the district office, 26 Miller Avenue.

Also on the agenda is review of an analysis of the district's education program by Dr. Glenn Skelton, director of instruction, and a recommendation from the policy development committee to require periodic inspection of schools for structural safety.

$3,000 Blaze In Apartment

A towel left hanging over an electric heater started a fire which caused an estimated $3,000 damage to a Corte Madera apartment house, Corte Madera Fire Chief Frank L. Nelson reported today.

Dick Newberry and Scott Crosby, occupants of the top apartment at 28 Edison Avenue were at the movies when fire broke out about 10:32 p.m.

Damage was confined to the bathroom, where the fire started, and to the hallway outside, said Nelson.

He said another occupant of the building, Gino Seminiani, grabbed a garden hose and kept the fire in check before firemen arrived. The three story house is owned by Graham McPhail.

the bullet in his head, and said the loss of memory of the shooting details is "almost surely permanent."

San Rafael police officer Donald A. Merkley told the court he went to Cernac's apartment at 1825 Lincoln Avenue, San Rafael, where Frederick met him. The defendant's white shirt was covered with blood, Merkley said.

Frederick led him, Merkley said, into the apartment where Cernac lay wounded by a .22 caliber bullet. Frederick then refused to say anything without a lawyer present.

Judge Goldstein granted a request by Weissich to reduce Frederick's $25,000 bail, setting it at $2,500. Frederick, a title examiner of 50 Sullivan Lane, Novato, has been in county jail since the shooting.

Weissich said Frederick also has no recollection of the shooting because he was extremely intoxicated.

Pair Adrift In Bay Found By Searchers

A Sausalito yachtsman and his female companion, lost for six hours in gale-driven rains on San Francisco Bay during the night, were found safe at 8:30 a.m. this morning aboard their 27-foot cabin cruiser in Hospital Cove.

Larry Pauza of 416 Bee Street, Apt. B, and an unidentified friend left Tiburon Tommie's pier at midnight, bound for Sausalito. A friend reported the vessel missing two hours later. A Coast Guard cutter found the boat, "What About Me II," adrift in Hospital Cove, out of gas.

Symphony Cancelled

Tomorrow night's performance of the Marin Symphony Orchestra at the College of Marin has been cancelled because of the storm. The Marin Symphony Guild, concert sponsor, hoped to reschedule it.

Meeting Blacked Out

The Muir Woods Improvement Assn. was forced to cancel its meeting last night because the storm knocked out power in the group's clubhouse on Ridge Avenue.

over when it resulted in Kerr's dismissal.

Kerr told a news conference later, "The university should serve truth and not political partisanship. I was not at the meeting, but the vote was 14 to 8 and the governor was one of the 14."

The 55-year-old educator said regents were obliged "not to respond too quickly to the swirls of political winds in the state. Because there is a new governor doesn't mean there needs to be a new president of the university. This has never happened before in the United States."

Reagan said the Kerr issue "was not on the agenda and his request (for a confidence vote) came as a "decision one way or another."

Mrs Hearst called Kerr's demand for a vote of confidence the president's "second ultimatum" to the regents and said she voted against him because "I reluctantly came to the conclusion that the president lacked the qualities of stable leadership so imperative to the future of the university." Kerr, she said, "stated he would never resign." She did not give details about the first "ultimatum."

Kerr's troubles date to December 1964 when masses of students staged a huge sit-in at Sproul Hall, the administration building, in behalf of more political freedom on campus. Police dragged students bodily from the building. More than 700 were arrested.

Kerr's ouster came after two days of argument by the regents over Reagan's hopes of trimming the higher education budget from $278 million to $192 million.

When Kerr took the reins of the university, there were seven campuses, totaling 43,000 students.

Today, in its 99th year, the university has nine campuses and 87,000 students — the biggest university in the United states.

Suspense and relief, shock and joy—and a prediction of chaos from influential Democrat Jesse M. Unruh—were statewide reactions today to the firing of Kerr.

"The timing was bad," said Assembly Speaker Unruh, D-Inglewood, in his first major controversy with Republican Gov. Reagan. The governor, an ex-officio regent, voted to fire Kerr.

Many Republicans in the legislature and across the state praised the regents' action. Not all Democrats joined Unruh in denouncing the move. The Democrats hold only slim majorities in the Assembly and Senate.

State school chief Dr. Max Rafferty said "a mere change in administration is just the first step toward a long-range solution." Rafferty, a supporter of Reagan in the 1966 election, referred to "the mess in Berkeley" caused by student demonstrations.

In Los Angeles, former Democratic Gov. Edmund G. Brown said Reagan seemed "dedicated to destroying the greatest university in the world."

Some educators said they were "shocked and surprised" at Kerr's firing. At the University of California Davis campus, the student legislature voted unanimously to express "love for President Kerr and what he stands for."

In Berkeley, former student Mario Savio met with the Student Strike Committee, which issued a statement saying "Good riddance to bad rubbish. The new Reagan adninistration has begun auspiciously . . ."

Senate President Hugh M. Burns, D-Fresno, called for restraint" along the university's critical road ahead. He made no direct comment on Kerr but said he hoped the next president would be "a strong administrator."

Another Democratic senator, J. Eugene McAteer, said he withdrew his support from Kerr when "he allowed two police officers to be imprisoned in their car during the student outbreak in 1964."

Los Angeles Mayor Samuel W. Yorty, who ran against Brown in the Democratic primary last June, said Kerr was a supporter of Brown's "who should have resigned" when Reagan won last November. Yorty called Kerr "a fine man . . . but too vacillating."

Chancellor Glenn S. Dumke of the California state college system said Kerr "has made a significant and constructive impact on the development of public higher education in California and to the recognition and respect it has earned throughout the world."

But Republican Assemblyman Don Mulford of Piedmont, whose district includes the Berkeley campus, said the firing was "the beginning of a new era at Berkeley."

Many of India's health problems are traced to lack of good and adequate housing.

OBITUARIES

Traffic Victim Ruby White

Funeral arrangements were pending today for Mrs. Ruby J. White, 24, of San Anselmo, killed yesterday in an auto accident on Highway 101 north of St. Vincent's Hill.

Her three children who were with her in the car escaped from the wreck uninjured.

According to California Highway Patrol officer Don R. McDonel, Mrs. White, of 404 San Francisco Boulevard, was driving north about 9:45 a.m.

She was north of Marinwood overpass when her car crossed the center divider, rolled over and landed 180 feet away, facing south in the southbound fast lane.

Mrs. White, a divorcee who had planned to re-marry within a few weeks, was dead on arrival at the Marin General Hospital at 10:30 a.m.

McDonel was still out today investigating the accident before making his final report. He said there were no witnesses.

The surviving children, Denise Irene, 6; Cheryl Marie, 4; and Roberta, 3 were considered too young to be helpful on details, he said.

The youngsters are staying with Mrs. White's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond G. Sidbeck who live at the same address at 404 San Francisco Boulevard.

The parents were waiting to hear from a brother, Ronald Sidbeck, serving with the Navy in Vietnam, before making funeral arrangements with the Chapel of the Hills, San Anselmo.

Mrs. White was the fourth person killed in Marin traffic accidents this year, and not the third as reported yesterday. Two lives had been lost in traffic up to Jan. 20, 1966.

Her husband, Donald J. Batchelder, is an architect and member of Mill Valley Planning Commission.

A native of Sacramento, she lived in Marin County for 10 years. She resided at 95 Magee Avenue.

Mrs. Batchelder attended Sacramento State College.

She is survived by her husband, three daughters, Gina, 12, Lynn, 11, and Maria, 10, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. Grant of Sacramento.

Burial was to have been yesterday.

CHARLES KLOEHN

Funeral for Charles H. Kloehn, a resident of Fairfax for the past five years, will be at 1:30 p.m. Monday at Gantner-Maison-Domergue, 777 Valencia Street, San Francisco.

Kloehn, 84, died Thursday at at a San Francisco hospital after a lengthy illness. He lived with his sister and brother-in-law, Mrs. and Mrs. Arthur Tobin, at 47 Arroyo Road.

Born in Germany, Kloehn came to San Francisco with his parents at the age of 2, attending schools there and later working for a time as a boilermaker at the Union Iron Works. From 1905 to 1950, he was a motorman with the San Francisco Municipal Railway.

Kloehn was a member of Foresters of America and a member-at-large of the Amalgamated Transit Union.

He is survived by his sister, Mrs. Tobin, and a brother, Emil G. Kloehn of Richmond.

Burial will be in Mount Olivet Memorial Park in Colma.

MRS. McGUFFIN

Mrs. Almirah A. McGuffin, 88, died yesterday in a local convalescent hospital where she had been a patient since November.

Mrs. McGuffin formerly lived at 331 Devon Drive, San Rafael. Born in Ohio, she moved to California with her family when she was a year old. She lived in Marin County 16 years.

She was a member of the Redwoods Presbyterian Church of Larkspur.

Survivors include two sisters, Mrs. Dorothy Levy of San Anselmo and Mrs. Peggy Heide of Eureka.

Family services were held today at the Chapel of the Hills Funeral Home in San Anselmo.

Road Congestion To Be Discussed

Vincent S. Yoder, project engineer with the California State Division of Highways, will discuss expected problems of highway congestion in Marin County at a meeting of the Men's Club of Congregation Rodef Sholom tomorrow at 10 a.m.

The meeting, in the form of a traditional "lox and bagel brunch," will be held at the Temple Social Hall at 170 North San Pedro Road, Santa Venetia.

WILD NIGHT—Members of the Sausalito Cruising Club had to be rescued by firemen last night after wild winds and a heavy surge tore their clubhouse from its moorings at the height of the storm. The 25 persons aboard ate dinner by candlelight on their tossing barge as rescuers toiled.

court were "almost lost," Kentfield fire chief Kenneth Kamp reported, when their motor died and their boat was swept toward the rushing creek. The two stopped the boat by grabbing a fence at the last moment, Kamp said.

People were evacuated in Granton Park, on Berens Drive and from apartments on Kent Avenue. When they ran out of boats, Kentfield firemen carried families out on their shoulders.

At 11:30 p.m. yesterday, a Greyhound Bus was trapped in water on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard near Ross General Hospital. Kentfield firemen walked in, with water coming over the tops of their waders, and carried out the driver and his one passenger on their shoulders.

BASE FLOODED

Housing near the main entrance to Hamilton Air Force Base was invaded by three and a half to four feet of water. An undetermined number of families were evacuated as 100 airmen fought to contain the rising waters.

In Sausalito, the Sausalito Cruising Club, perched atop a a 130 foot barge which broke loose from its moorings at about 8 p.m. yesterday, just as about 25 members prepared to sit down to dinner after their Friday night "happy hour."

Its permanent gangplank was ripped away, as were telephone and power lines. The craft drifted to 10 feet from shore.

Club member Harry Kramer reported that one member was dispatched to the firemen, while the rest sat down to a chicken cacciatori dinner by candlelight. "We had a good dinner, but no hot coffee, and the bar stayed open," he said.

Firemen, police and a Coast Guard Crew secured the 300-ton barge after an hour-and-a-half struggle. Three elderly people were evacuated by Coast Guard launch and the rest climbed to shore by hopping to a nearby sailboat tied to the pier, firemen reported.

Back in San Rafael, Rawles reported that some of the flooded areas in the city were reaching a critical state.

Point San Pedro Road was under water and just barely passable from Knight Drive to Riviera Drive at 10:30 a.m., he said. Water rose above the wheels of cars and logs and other debris floated in the water on the road.

BRETE HARTE

Heavily flooded as usual were roads in the Bret Harte Area, Rawles reported. Also flooded were streets in the downtown section. Rawles said no one was evacuated, though water did enter some homes in the Bret Harte area.

Parts of the city's industrial district were under three feet of water.

In Corte Madera, a lagoon overflowed and sent water into 15 or 20 homes on Mohawk Avenue, between Lakeside Drive and Hickory Avenue. Residents told police water rose through their backyards until it was seeping into living rooms and bedrooms at about 9 a.m. None asked to be evacuated.

In Tiburon, the firehouse was awash with about three inches of water in the floor. Tiburon Boulevard in the shopping area was under water but passable.

Belvedere firemen reported water in at least one home on Cove Road.

Policemen and firemen in Ross and Kentfield evacuated at least 25 motorists last night, after they ignored barricades and tried to negotiate flooded roads.

In San Rafael, last night, Mr. and Mrs. Hal McIntyre of Sausalito were rescued from their car when it plunged into waters flooding Woodland Avenue. Water was reported to be up to the roof of their car today, outside 55 Woodland.

Dick Newberry and Scott Crosby, occupants of the top apartment at 28 Edison Avenue were at the movies when fire broke out about 10:32 p.m.

Damage was confined to the bathroom, where the fire started, and to the hallway outside, said Nelson.

He said another occupant of the building, Gino Seminiani, grabbed a garden hose and kept the fire in check before firemen arrived. The three story house is owned by Graham McPhail.

the bullet in his head, and said the loss of memory of the shooting details is "almost surely permanent."

San Rafael police officer Donald A. Merkley told the court he went to Cernac's apartment at 1825 Lincoln Avenue, San Rafael, where Frederick met him. The defendant's white shirt was covered with blood, Merkley said.

Frederick led him, Merkley said, into the apartment where Cernac lay wounded by a .22 caliber bullet. Frederick then refused to say anything without a lawyer present.

Judge Goldstein granted a request by Weissich to reduce Frederick's $25,000 bail, setting it at $2,500. Frederick, a title examiner of 50 Sullivan Lane, Novato, has been in county jail since the shooting.

Weissich said Frederick also has no recollection of the shooting because he was extremely intoxicated.

Pair Adrift In Bay Found By Searchers

A Sausalito yachtsman and his female companion, lost for six hours in gale-driven rains on San Francisco Bay during the night, were found safe at 8:30 a.m. this morning aboard their 27-foot cabin cruiser in Hospital Cove.

Larry Pauza of 416 Bee Street, Apt. B, and an unidentified friend left Tiburon Tommie's pier at midnight, bound for Sausalito. A friend reported the vessel missing two hours later. A Coast Guard cutter found the boat, "What About Me II," adrift in Hospital Cove, out of gas.

Symphony Cancelled

Tomorrow night's performance of the Marin Symphony Orchestra at the College of Marin has been cancelled because of the storm. The Marin Symphony Guild, concert sponsor, hoped to reschedule it.

Meeting Blacked Out

The Muir Woods Improvement Assn. was forced to cancel its meeting last night because the storm knocked out power in the group's clubhouse on Ridge Avenue.

KERR

over when it resulted in Kerr's dismissal.

Kerr told a news conference later, "The university should serve truth and not political partisanship. I was not at the meeting, but the vote was 14 to 8 and the governor was one of the 14."

The 55-year-old educator said regents were obliged "not to respond too quickly to the swirls of political winds in the state. Because there is a new governor doesn't mean there needs to be a new president of the university. This has never happened before in the United States."

Reagan said the Kerr issue "was not on the agenda and his request (for a confidence vote) came as a "decision one way or another."

Mrs. Hearst called Kerr's demand for a vote of confidence the president's "second ultimatum" to the regents and said she voted against him because "I reluctantly came to the conclusion that the president lacked the qualities of stable leadership so imperative to the future of the university." Kerr, she said, "stated he would never resign." She did not give details about the first "ultimatum."

Kerr's troubles date to December 1964 when masses of students staged a huge sit-in at Sproul Hall, the administration building, in behalf of more political freedom on campus. Police dragged students bodily from the building. More than 700 were arrested.

Kerr's ouster came after two days of argument by the regents over Reagan's hopes of trimming the higher education budget from $278 million to $192 million.

When Kerr took the reins of the university, there were seven campuses, totaling 43,000 students.

Today, in its 99th year, the university has nine campuses and 87,000 students — the biggest university in the United states.

Suspense and relief, shock and joy—and a prediction of chaos from influential Democrat Jesse M. Unruh—were statewide reactions today to the firing of Kerr.

"The timing was bad," said Assembly Speaker Unruh, D-Inglewood, in his first major controversy with Republican Gov. Reagan. The governor, an ex-officio regent, voted to fire Kerr.

Many Republicans in the legislature and across the state praised the regents' action. Not all Democrats joined Unruh in denouncing the move. The Democrats hold only slim majorities in the Assembly and Senate.

State school chief Dr. Max Rafferty said "a mere change in administration is just the first step toward a long-range solution." Rafferty, a supporter of Reagan in the 1966 election, referred to "the mess in Berkeley" caused by student demonstrations.

In Los Angeles, former Democratic Gov. Edmund G. Brown said Reagan seemed "dedicated to destroying the greatest university in the world."

Some educators said they were "shocked and surprised" at Kerr's firing. At the University of California Davis campus, the student legislature voted unanimously to express "love for President Kerr and what he stands for."

In Berkeley, former student Mario Savio met with the Student Strike Committee, which issued a statement saying "Good riddance to bad rubbish. The new Reagan administration has begun auspiciously . . ."

Senate President Hugh M. Burns, D-Fresno, called for restraint" along the university's critical road ahead. He made no direct comment on Kerr but said he hoped the next president would be "a strong administrator."

Another Democratic senator, J. Eugene McAteer, said he withdrew his support from Kerr when "he allowed two police officers to be imprisoned in their car during the student outbreak in 1964."

Los Angeles Mayor Samuel W. Yorty, who ran against Brown in the Democratic primary last June, said Kerr was a supporter of Brown's "who should have resigned" when Reagan won last November. Yorty called Kerr "a fine man . . . but too vacillating."

Chancellor Glenn S. Dumke of the California state college system said Kerr "has made a significant and constructive impact on the development of public higher education in California and to the recognition and respect it has earned throughout the world."

But Republican Assemblyman Don Mulford of Piedmont, whose district includes the Berkeley campus, said the firing was "the beginning of a new era at Berkeley."

Many of India's health problems are traced to lack of good and adequate housing.

OBITUARIES

Traffic Victim Ruby White

Funeral arrangements were pending today for Mrs. Ruby J. White, 24, of San Anselmo, killed yesterday in an auto accident on Highway 101 north of St. Vincent's Hill.

Her three children who were with her in the car escaped from the wreck uninjured.

According to California Highway Patrol officer Don R. McDonel, Mrs. White, of 404 San Francisco Boulevard, was driving north about 9:45 a.m.

She was north of Marinwood overpass when her car crossed the center divider, rolled over and landed 180 feet away, facing south in the southbound fast lane.

Mrs. White, a divorcee who had planned to re-marry within a few weeks, was dead on arrival at the Marin General Hospital at 10:30 a.m.

McDonel was still out today investigating the accident before making his final report. He said there were no witnesses.

The surviving children, Denise Irene, 6; Cheryl Marie, 4; and Roberta, 3 were considered too young to be helpful on details, he said.

The youngsters are staying with Mrs. White's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond G. Sidbeck who live at the same address at 404 San Francisco Boulevard.

The parents were waiting to hear from a brother, Ronald Sidbeck, serving with the Navy in Vietnam, before making funeral arrangements with the Chapel of the Hills, San Anselmo.

Mrs. White was the fourth person killed in Marin traffic accidents this year, and not the third as reported yesterday. Two lives had been lost in traffic up to Jan. 20, 1966.

Her husband, Donald J. Batchelder, is an architect and member of Mill Valley Planning Commission.

A native of Sacramento, she lived in Marin County for 10 years. She resided at 95 Magee Avenue.

Mrs. Batchelder attended Sacramento State College.

She is survived by her husband, three daughters, Gina, 12, Lynn, 11, and Maria, 10, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. Grant of Sacramento.

Burial was to have been yesterday.

CHARLES KLOEHN

Funeral for Charles H. Kloehn, a resident of Fairfax for the past five years, will be at 1:30 p.m. Monday at Gantner-Maison-Domergue, 777 Valencia Street, San Francisco.

Kloehn, 84, died Thursday at at a San Francisco hospital after a lengthy illness. He lived with his sister and brother-in-law, Mrs. and Mrs. Arthur Tobin, at 47 Arroyo Road.

Born in Germany, Kloehn came to San Francisco with his parents at the age of 2, attending schools there and later working for a time as a boilermaker at the Union Iron Works. From 1905 to 1950, he was a motorman with the San Francisco Municipal Railway.

Kloehn was a member of Foresters of America and a member-at-large of the Amalgamated Transit Union.

He is survived by his sister, Mrs. Tobin, and a brother, Emil G. Kloehn of Richmond.

Burial will be in Mount Olivet Memorial Park in Colma.

MRS. McGUFFIN

Mrs. Almirah A. McGuffin, 88, died yesterday in a local convalescent hospital where she had been a patient since November.

Mrs. McGuffin formerly lived at 331 Devon Drive, San Rafael. Born in Ohio, she moved to California with her family when she was a year old. She lived in Marin County 16 years.

She was a member of the Redwoods Presbyterian Church of Larkspur.

Survivors include two sisters, Mrs. Dorothy Levy of San Anselmo and Mrs. Peggy Heide of Eureka.

Family services were held today at the Chapel of the Hills Funeral Home in San Anselmo.

Road Congestion To Be Discussed

Vincent S. Yoder, project engineer with the California State Division of Highways, will discuss expected problems of highway congestion in Marin County at a meeting of the Men's Club of Congregation Rodef Sholom tomorrow at 10 a.m.

The meeting, in the form of a traditional "lox and bagel brunch," will be held at the Temple Social Hall at 170 North San Pedro Road, Santa Venetia.

Galitzine Fashions The Most Feminine

By LEONORA DODSWORTH

ROME (AP) — The real woman, not the swinging teen-ager, is once more getting all the attention from designers in the Italian spring and summer fashion presentations.

Irene Galitzine offered the most feminine clothes so far in the Rome couture collections, although all the designers so far have abandoned the "beat" look in favor of the more mature beauty.

Galitzine showed Tuesday night at the end of the second day of the five-day Rome showings. Her skirts were significantly longer. They half covered the knee.

Petal-pleated skirts made a pretty play on dress and jacket outfits. On the move, the skirts spun and flickered. When still, they fell into soft, soft folds.

Loose coats had the familiar bulky shoulders which are the Galitzine signature. All the interest was kept at the top, with high half-belts and horizontal welt seaming spanning the ribcage.

Redingotes and dresses — there were no suits — frequently had apron folds both front and back. They gave a sandwich-board look which was echoed on the other dresses that carried neck-to-hem panels or buttoned-on plastrons. Yet another dress category had a softly gathered high waist.

Two tiers of shutter pleats formed the skirt on a long-bodied navy silk dress. It was accompanied by an elongated jacket with an open shirt neck and a pair of vertical slit pockets under the bust.

The womanly look really came across in hostess gowns in billowing, flower-printed jersey, light as a breeze. They were drapey and floating and utterly at ease. Softly gathered jersey pants went with rippling capes or batwing-wide sleeved tops.

Alba and Francesca, the inventive Rome hairdressers who have put long locks back into fashion, gave independent suspension to the ponytail by anchoring it to the wearer's head on the end of a gold or silver metal spring.

Birthday Celebrated, Turn Of Century Fashions Shown

By MOLLY MARIN

The Harrison Leppos were hosts Thursday night at a dinner party at their home in Mill Valley honoring the birthday of Henry White of San Francisco. Guests were a few close friends of Henry and his wife, Esme, who are well known in Marin County. Present were Messrs. and Mesdames E. R. McWilliams of San Rafael, Melville Duncan of Ross and Charles Fulcher of San Francisco and Mesdames Ralph Scovel of Shingle Springs and John Lesoine of Ross.

THE VIGNETTE SHOW of authentic turn of the century fashions brought raves from members and guests attending Thursday's luncheon given by the Women's Auxiliary of the Corinthian Yacht Club. The detail and fabric in the selections modeled by Mrs. Richard Phillips of Sausalito were a far cry from the current mini-skirt and vinyl fads. Mrs. John Alexander of Sausalito gave an informal commentary and showed accessories—a fabulous fan collection and purses of all descriptions, as well as elaborate handkerchiefs, often embellished with fine needlework done by the owner in leisure time. In 1900, the average shoe size was 4½, the average waist 21 inches. Old wedding veils are used as a backing in the repair of the delicate fabrics in the age of elegance collection.

AMONG THE CHAIRMEN of hostesses for the lecture-tea of the San Francisco Opera Guild on Feb. 7 at the Fairmont Hotel will be Mrs. Joseph Hickingbotham of San Rafael and Mrs. Leon Smith of Tiburon. Metropolitan Opera tenor Giovanni Martinelli will be the speaker at the event, which will replace the guild's annual lunch.

EIGHTY FRIENDS have been invited to share a "champagne toast to Betty McKegney" from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. Thursday by Mesdames Dick DeBerry, William Ferguson and Benton Mathews. The party, which will honor Tiburon's librarian for her community service, will be held at the DeBerry home on Belvedere's west shore.

HAVING A SPECIAL interest while attending the Crosby tournament are Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Wiechers of the Marin Country Club Estates. Mr. Wiecher's nephew, Jim Wiechers, is playing in the tournament as a pro.

MR. AND MRS. MURT SULLIVAN of Country Club Estates are also attending the Crosby. They are staying with Mrs. Sullivan's aunt and family, Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Daniels in Carmel.

Miss Cognato Is Engaged To Marry

Announcement has been made by Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Cognato of Ross of the engagement of their daughter, Donna Marie, to Edward F. Ghiringhelli Jr. of San Rafael.

The bride-elect is the sister of Victor Cognato and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Leone, all of Ross. She was graduated from Redwood High School and attended College of Marin. Donna is presently employed with Goodman Building Supply Co. in Mill Valley.

Edward is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Ghilinghelli and the brother of Martha, James, Rosemary, Joseph, David, Paul and John Ghiringhelli, all of San Rafael. Mr. and Mrs. Orin R. Olden of Mountain View and Ambrose G. Ghiringhelli of San Rafael are his grandparents.

The future bridegroom was graduated from Marin Catholic High School and attended College of Marin and San Francisco State College where he majored in physical therapy. He is now serving with the U.S. Navy at Hospital Corps School in San Diego.

New Church Women's Club Elects Former Therapist

Mrs. James E. Hoff is the first president of the Young Wives, the newest group of the Episcopal Church of Our Saviour in Mill Valley.

Founded last month, it has as its purpose providing a social outlet for young couples in the church and helping new ones to become better acquainted.

Kate received her B.S. degree in physical therapy from the University of Minnesota and before her marriage worked as a physical therapist for the Palo Alto clinic. She also worked as a physical therapist in Modesto and Chico before she and her husband, a staff accountant with the Arthur Anderson Co. in San Francisco, moved to Tiburon six months ago.

They have one daughter, Gretchen, who is two and a half years old.

Kate's main interests outside of her profession, which she does not follow at present, are choral singing—she is a member of the Winifred Baker chorale—piano, entertaining, water sports and doing things with her family.

MRS. JAMES HOFF

Council To View Adoption Movie

Special guests at the Tuesday meeting of the North Bay Council of the Children's Home Society will be the new members of the five chapters. Featured at the meeting at 10:30 a.m. at Sonoma Joe's, will be the movie, "The Story of Adoption."

New members who will attend from Tom Thumb are Mesdames Burt Richardson, Ronald Bell, Richard MacIntosh, and Robert Sockolov. From Peter Pan will come Mesdames W. Penn Arnett, John Morse and Forest Willet. Coming from Jolly Rogers are Mesdames Robert Taverna, Reubin Valtierra, J. Howard Adams and George Schilling.

P-TA Plans Family Night At Symphony

A new activity for Edna Maguire School Parent-Teacher Assn. in Mill Valley will be "Family Night at the Marin Symphony" tomorrow when the orchestra presents its second concert of the season at the College of Marin gymnasium.

At 6:30 p.m. parents and students will meet at the school for dessert served by Mr. and Mrs. Jack Younger before going to the concert.

Miss Edna Maguire, for whom the school was named, has been invited as a special guest. Mrs. Robert Graver and Mrs. Lloyd Clarke are co-chairmen for the project sponsored by the performing arts department of the P-TA.

Jeannie Winter Will Be Bride In October Rite

Mr. and Mrs. Albert W. Winter of Novato have announced the engagement of their daughter, Jeannie Marie and Charles Richard Houck.

Jeannie is the sister of Mrs. Arthur H. Cherry of Oakland and they are the granddaughters of Mr. and Mrs. Matthias Freising of Berkeley. She was graduated from Novato High School and Healds Business College.

Charles is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles I. Houck of Orinda. He is the grandson of Mrs. Charlotte Nocholas of San Bruno. He was graduated from George Washington High School in San Francisco and Contra Costa College in San Pablo.

Jeannie and Charles are both employed with Wells Fargo Bank in San Francisco.

An Oct. 21 wedding is planned.

Rainbow For Girls To Honor Members

The eight new members of the San Rafael Order of Rainbow for Girls will be honored at a tea from 2 to 4 p.m. tomorrow at the San Rafael home of Karen Pullin.

To be honored are Sandra Marshall, Candy Miller, Susan McCauley, Marsha Wegner, Michelle Laird, Geri-Lyn Royo, Donna Youngclaus and Shirley Dougan.

Assisting at the tea will be Lee Jordan, Diane Pharis, Mary Davis, Carolyn Weikel and Jan Peterson.

MR. AND MRS. Peter Wonacott following their marriage at Christ Presbyterian Church in Terra Linda. The bride, the former Janita Ringchop, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Ringchop of San Rafael. The newlyweds will live in Denver, Colo. (Gaton photo)

Miss Cognato Is Engaged To Marry

Announcement has been made by Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Cognato of Ross of the engagement of their daughter, Donna Marie, to Edward F. Ghiringhelli Jr. of San Rafael.

The bride-elect is the sister of Victor Cognato and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Leone, all of Ross. She was graduated from Redwood High School and attended College of Marin. Donna is presently employed with Goodman Building Supply Co. in Mill Valley.

Edward is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Ghilinghelli and the brother of Martha, James, Rosemary, Joseph, David, Paul and John Ghiringhelli, all of San Rafael. Mr. and Mrs. Orin R. Olden of Mountain View and Ambrose G. Ghiringhelli of San Rafael are his grandparents.

The future bridegroom was graduated from Marin Catholic High School and attended College of Marin and San Francisco State College where he majored in physical therapy. He is now serving with the U.S. Navy at Hospital Corps School in San Diego.

New Church Women's Club Elects Former Therapist

Mrs. James E. Hoff is the first president of the Young Wives, the newest group of the Episcopal Church of Our Saviour in Mill Valley.

Founded last month, it has as its purpose providing a social outlet for young couples in the church and helping new ones to become better acquainted.

Kate received her B.S. degree in physical therapy from the University of Minnesota and before her marriage worked as a physical therapist for the Palo Alto clinic. She also worked as a physical therapist in Modesto and Chico before she and her husband, a staff accountant with the Arthur Anderson Co. in San Francisco, moved to Tiburon six months ago.

They have one daughter, Gretchen, who is two and a half years old.

Kate's main interests outside of her profession, which she does not follow at present, are choral singing—she is a member of the Winifred Baker chorale—piano, entertaining, water sports and doing things with her family.

Galitzine Fashions The Most Feminine

By LEONORA DODSWORTH

ROME (AP) — The real woman, not the swinging teen-ager, is once more getting all the attention from designers in the Italian spring and summer fashion presentations.

Irene Galitzine offered the most feminine clothes so far in the Rome couture collections, although all the designers so far have abandoned the "beat" look in favor of the more mature beauty.

Galitzine showed Tuesday night at the end of the second day of the five-day Rome showings. Her skirts were significantly longer. They half covered the knee.

Petal-pleated skirts made a pretty play on dress and jacket outfits. On the move, the skirts spun and flickered. When still, they fell into soft, soft folds.

Loose coats had the familiar bulky shoulders which are the Galitzine signature. All the interest was kept at the top, with high half-belts and horizontal welt seaming spanning the rib-cage.

Redingotes and dresses — there were no suits — frequently had apron folds both front and back. They gave a sandwich-board look which was echoed on the other dresses that carried neck-to-hem panels or buttoned-on plastrons. Yet another dress category had a softly gathered high waist.

Two tiers of shutter pleats formed the skirt on a long-bodied navy silk dress. It was accompanied by an elongated jacket with an open shirt neck and a pair of vertical slit pockets under the bust.

The womanly look really came across in hostess gowns in billowing, flower-printed jersey, light as a breeze. They were drapey and floating and utterly at ease. Softly gathered jersey pants went with rippling capes or batwing-wide sleeved tops.

Alba and Francesca, the inventive Rome hairdressers who have put long locks back into fashion, gave independent suspension to the ponytail by anchoring it to the wearer's head on the end of a gold or silver metal spring.

COMING UP POPPIES

The multi-colored artificial poppies shaping the evening coat at far left are fresh from New York designer Norman Norell's spring collection. Next, a Pucci print with boldly colored tropical leaves brightens a miniskirt beach outfit by Emilio Pucci, center. An extravagant wig tops off the ensemble from the showings in Florence. Above is an acid-green cocktail helmet from designer Jean Barthet's collection to be shown in Paris. It is outlined with white linen which fastens at the throat with the help of a diamond and emerald maple leaf. (UPI and AP Wirephotos)

THE SUBURBAN SCENE

Birthday Celebrated, Turn Of Century Fashions Shown

By MOLLY MARIN

The Harrison Leppos were hosts Thursday night at a dinner party at their home in Mill Valley honoring the birthday of Henry White of San Francisco. Guests were a few close friends of Henry and his wife, Esme, who are well known in Marin County. Present were Messrs. and Mesdames E. R. McWilliams of San Rafael, Melville Duncan of Ross and Charles Fulcher of San Francisco and Mesdames Ralph Scovel of Shingle Springs and John Lesoine of Ross.

THE VIGNETTE SHOW of authentic turn of the century fashions brought raves from members and guests attending Thursday's luncheon given by the Women's Auxiliary of the Corinthian Yacht Club. The detail and fabric in the selections modeled by Mrs. Richard Phillips of Sausalito were a far cry from the current mini-skirt and vinyl fads. Mrs. John Alexander of Sausalito gave an informal commentary and showed accessories—a fabulous fan collection and purses of all descriptions, as well as elaborate handkerchiefs, often embellished with fine needlework done by the owner in leisure time. In 1900, the average shoe size was 4½, the average waist 21 inches. Old wedding veils are used as a backing in the repair of the delicate fabrics in the age of elegance collection.

AMONG THE CHAIRMEN of hostesses for the lecture-tea of the San Francisco Opera Guild on Feb. 7 at the Fairmont Hotel will be Mrs. Joseph Hickingbotham of San Rafael and Mrs. Leon Smith of Tiburon. Metropolitan Opera tenor Giovanni Martinelli will be the speaker at the event, which will replace the guild's annual lunch.

EIGHTY FRIENDS have been invited to share a "champagne toast to Betty McKegney" from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. Thursday by Mesdames Dick DeBerry, William Ferguson and Benton Mathews. The party, which will honor Tiburon's librarian for her community service, will be held at the DeBerry home on Belvedere's west shore.

HAVING A SPECIAL interest while attending the Crosby tournament are Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Wiechers of the Marin Country Club Estates. Mr. Wiecher's nephew, Jim Wiechers, is playing in the tournament as a pro.

MR. AND MRS. MURT SULLIVAN of Country Club Estates are also attending the Crosby. They are staying with Mrs. Sullivan's aunt and family, Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Daniels in Carmel.

P-TA Plans Family Night At Symphony

A new activity for Edna Maguire School Parent - Teacher Assn. in Mill Valley will be "Family Night at the Marin Symphony" tomorrow when the orchestra presents its second concert of the season at the College of Marin gymnasium.

At 6:30 p.m. parents and students will meet at the school for dessert served by Mr. and Mrs. Jack Younger before going to the concert.

Miss Edna Maguire, for whom the school was named, has been invited as a special guest. Mrs. Robert Graver and Mrs. Lloyd Clarke are co-chairmen for the project sponsored by the performing arts department of the P-TA.

Jeannie Winter Will Be Bride In October Rite

Mr. and Mrs. Albert W. Winter of Novato have announced the engagement of their daughter, Jeannie Marie and Charles Richard Houck.

Jeannie is the sister of Mrs. Arthur H. Cherry of Oakland and they are the granddaughters of Mr. and Mrs. Matthias Freising of Berkeley. She was graduated from Novato High School and Healds Business College.

Charles is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles I. Houck of Orinda. He is the grandson of Mrs. Charlotte Nocholas of San Bruno. He was graduated from George Washington High School in San Francisco and Contra Costa College in San Pablo.

Jeannie and Charles are both employed with Wells Fargo Bank in San Francisco.

An Oct. 21 wedding is planned.

By EUNICE FARMER

I was one of those lucky young marrieds who got a new sewing machine for Christmas, but it scares me to death. What is the best way to begin to learn, and what type of material is best for me to learn on?

MRS. B. J

DEAR MRS. B. J.:

Glad you asked this question. I'm sure there are lots of young gals who were lucky enough to get a new sewing machine. First, concentrate on reading the manual in order to learn a little about threading and caring for your machine.

Next, buy some inexpensive cotton and practice marking darts and seams and then stitching them. Learn to pin the seams instead of basting (the fabric won't slip if it's pinned). Pins are placed in a horizontal position on a vertical seam. Usually, the pins are placed about an inch apart with the heads closest to the outer edge.

Usually a skirt is the easiest thing to begin on, either use a bonded wool or a firm cotton and read the instructions carefully before cutting. Perhaps a friend could help you begin, then search around for an adult sewing class given at the schools or extension services. Better yet, find a good sewing school if there is one available.

The biggest mistake beginners make is to choose a pattern that is too difficult for them and then they get nervous and frustrated and give up. You must walk before you run, so begin at the beginning and remember that perfection comes with practice. Sewing today is the "in" thing to do.

MRS. A. TURNER, Readstown, Wis., is this week's Tailor Trix pressing board winner for her following suggestion.

Here's a tip that will really help busy mothers who have Boy or Girl Scouts in the family! If you're like me, sewing badges on shirts is a little job that somehow I never get around to and yet, our kiddies are so proud of them and really want to show them off. Use the milky type household glue on the back of the badge and carefully hold it in place on the shirt or sash.

If you get around to it, you can sew around the edges later, however the glue will hold the threads in place and won't allow raveling.

DEAR EUNICE FARMER,

I am making a coat for myself from a man's overcoat. Will you please tell me what to do about changing the buttonholes to the other side?

MRS. R. J. F

DEAR MRS. R. J. F.:

If the original buttonhole has the large key-hole at one end, it would be almost impossible to whip it together. However, you may try this first. The button can be sewed over the old buttonhole and a new buttonhole can be made on the right front.

Instead, you may wish to buy the corded type decorative frogs for a closing. This will give you the new military look and cover up the old buttonhole.

DEAR EUNICE FARMER,

When I made my buttonholes, I made them through the interfacing, and they looked great until I turned them. Now the front of my suit seems to draw up too tight. What can I do to remedy this?

MRS. V. B.

DEAR MRS. V. B.:

I don't recommend making the bound buttonholes through the interfacing. I use a strip of permanent finish organdy as a base for the buttonholes. After they have been cut and turned, you may cut the organdy away from around the buttonhole, press, and then apply your interfacing.

Try it, I know you'll agree that this is the only way to keep the garment from looking pulled.

This is a good time to be experimenting with my method of making gusset type details. Almost every pattern we use has some form of this frustrating detail which I have tried to simplify with my step-by-step illustrated leaflet called "The Secret of Gussets." Send 10 cents and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Eunice Farmer, in care of the Independent-Journal and your copy will be sent to you.

Nancy Carusone To Marry In April Rite

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph John Carusone of San Rafael are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Nancy Jo, to Lt. William Frederick Swartz of Los Angeles.

NANCY JO CARUSONE

The bride-elect, who was graduated from the University of California at Santa Barbara, is a stewardess with United Air Lines. She is affiliated with Alpha Phi sorority. Leah Carusone, a student at San Jose State College, is her sister.

The future bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter F. Swartz of Los Angeles, was also graduated from the University of California at Santa Barbara where he was a member of Kappa Sigma fraternity. He is serving with the Marine Corps. He is the brother of Mrs. John W. Batcheller of Dublin and Don, Tom and Patty Swartz of Los Angeles.

An April 8 wedding is planned.

Concert Cancelled Because Of Illness

The concert featuring soprano Gwen Curatilo scheduled tonight at Angelica Hall, Dominican College campus, has been cancelled because of the singer's illness. The concert, first of a series sponsored by the Council of Music and Arts of nine Dixie district schools, will be rescheduled later.

Guild's President Enjoys Tennis, Golf

A Feb. 4 Mardi Gras fund-raising event for members of the Fairfax-San Anselmo Guild of Louise A. Boyd Natural Science Museum, is among the projects being planned by the guild's new president, Mrs. Louis Vaccaro of Fairfax.

Jean Vaccaro, whose husband is district representative for Pacific Gas and Electric Co., was graduated from Tamalpais High School and has resided in Marin for 29 years. She and her husband are the parents of Valoree Jean, 7, and Christopher Louis, 5.

Her home life with her husband and family interests her most, but when time allows, Jean enjoys playing golf, tennis, the piano and an interest in art.

The new president has been a member of the guild since its beginning four years ago and has held the offices of corresponding secretary and Festival of Trees chairman.

Serving with Mrs. Vaccaro will be Mesdames Marvin Christensen, vice president; William Barash, recording secretary; George Stump, treasurer; and Leonard Kristensen, festival chairman.

School Plans Party

Little Lambs Nursery School in Tiburon will host a party on Feb. 3 for the parents of both its sessions, according to director Joy Crandall. A parent committee of six members is planning a dinner to preceed the program at the school.

If you get around to it, you can sew around the edges later, however the glue will hold the threads in place and won't allow raveling.

DEAR EUNICE FARMER,

I am making a coat for myself from a man's overcoat. Will you please tell me what to do about changing the buttonholes to the other side?

MRS. R. J. F

DEAR MRS. R. J. F.:

If the original buttonhole has the large key-hole at one end, it would be almost impossible to whip it together. However, you may try this first. The button can be sewed over the old buttonhole and a new buttonhole can be made on the right front.

Instead, you may wish to buy the corded type decorative frogs for a closing. This will give you the new military look and cover up the old buttonhole.

DEAR EUNICE FARMER,

When I made my buttonholes, I made them through the interfacing, and they looked great until I turned them. Now the front of my suit seems to draw up too tight. What can I do to remedy this?

MRS. V. B.

DEAR MRS. V. B.:

I don't recommend making the bound buttonholes through the interfacing. I use a strip of permanent finish organdy as a base for the buttonholes. After they have been cut and turned, you may cut the organdy away from around the buttonhole, press, and then apply your interfacing.

Try it, I know you'll agree that this is the only way to keep the garment from looking pulled.

This is a good time to be experimenting with my method of making gusset type details. Almost every pattern we use has some form of this frustrating detail which I have tried to simplify with my step-by-step illustrated leaflet called "The Secret of Gussets." Send 10 cents and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Eunice Farmer, in care of the Independent-Journal and your copy will be sent to you.

Nancy Carusone To Marry In April Rite

NANCY JO CARUSONE

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph John Carusone of San Rafael are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Nancy Jo, to Lt. William Frederick Swartz of Los Angeles.

The bride-elect, who was graduated from the University of California at Santa Barbara, is a stewardess with United Air Lines. She is affiliated with Alpha Phi sorority. Leah Carusone, a student at San Jose State College, is her sister.

The future bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter F. Swartz of Los Angeles, was also graduated from the University of California at Santa Barbara where he was a member of Kappa Sigma fraternity. He is serving with the Marine Corps. He is the brother of Mrs. John W. Batcheller of Dublin and Don, Tom and Patty Swartz of Los Angeles.

An April 8 wedding is planned.

Concert Cancelled Because Of Illness

The concert featuring soprano Gwen Curatilo scheduled tonight at Angelica Hall, Dominican College campus, has been cancelled because of the singer's illness. The concert, first of a series sponsored by the Council of Music and Arts of nine Dixie district schools, will be rescheduled later.

Guild's President Enjoys Tennis, Golf

A Feb. 4 Mardi Gras fund-raising event for members of the Fairfax-San Anselmo Guild of Louise A. Boyd Natural Science Museum, is among the projects being planned by the guild's new president, Mrs. Louis Vaccaro of Fairfax.

Jean Vaccaro, whose husband is district representative for Pacific Gas and Electric Co., was graduated from Tamalpais High School and has resided in Marin for 29 years. She and her husband are the parents of Valoree Jean, 7, and Christopher Louis, 5.

Her home life with her husband and family interests her most, but when time allows, Jean enjoys playing golf, tennis, the piano and an interest in art.

The new president has been a member of the guild since its beginning four years ago and has held the offices of corresponding secretary and Festival of Trees chairman.

Serving with Mrs. Vaccaro will be Mesdames Marvin Christensen, vice president; William Barash, recording secretary; George Stump, treasurer; and Leonard Kristensen, festival chairman.

School Plans Party

Little Lambs Nursery School in Tiburon will host a party on Feb. 3 for the parents of both its sessions, according to director Joy Crandall. A parent committee of six members is planning a dinner to preceed the program at the school.

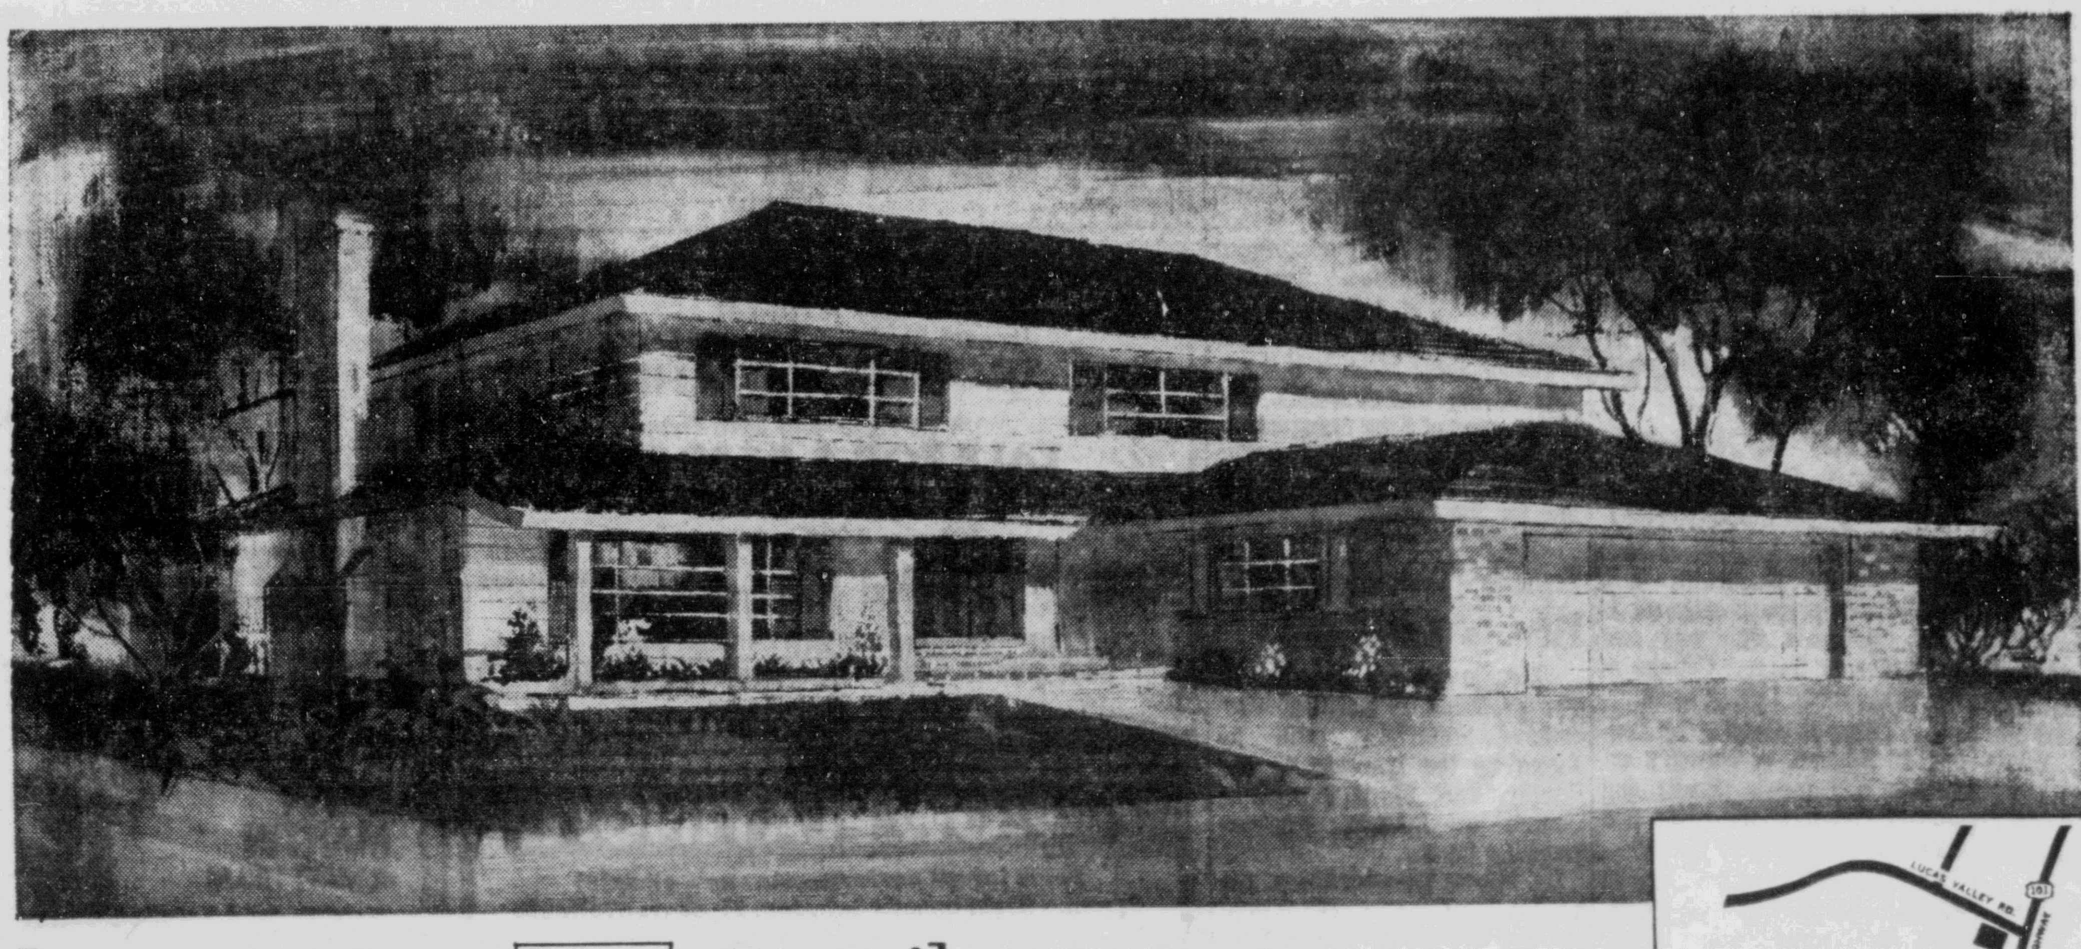
This San Rafael Park home has an enormous 246 square foot master bedroom, an immense 288 square foot living room, and, overall, a gigantic 2220 square feet of interior living area.



[naturally, it's a huge success!]

This home has a lot more going for it, too. As one of the distinguished homes at San Rafael Park, it is situated in the picturesque city of San Rafael in the heart of marvelous Marin County. The climate is considered one of the world's seven finest. The address is one of the Bay Area's most desirable. You can pay twice as much for homes not fifteen minutes away. One look at San Rafael Park, and you'll wonder why anyone would ever want to. These three, four and five bedroom, two and three bath homes, priced from a fetching $32,950. Need more convincing? Financing should do it. 6¼%-30-year loans, FHA and VA loans to $30,000 makes it easy for you to own one of these fine homes.

TALENTED YOUNG QUARTET TO PLAY

Workshop Is Set Monday For Pianists

A day-long Robert Dumm Piano Workshop will be sponsored at St. Paul's Episcopal Church in San Rafael Monday by the Marin County branch of the Music Teachers Assn. of California.

Robert Dumm, professor of music at the Boston Conservatory, is a pianist, composer, editor and teacher.

He holds degrees from the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor, where he and his wife founded a piano school that enrolled 350 in class and private lessons. Since then his piano workshops have won him a nation-wide following.

Scheduled for adults are: Registration from 9 a.m. to 9:30 a.m.; 9:30 a.m.-10:45 a.m., First Impressions, presentation of a new piano piece; 11 a.m.-12:30 p.m., Target Practice, most effective use of the lesson time; 12:30 p.m.-1:30 p.m., lunch; and 1:30 p.m.-3:30 p.m., new and teachable repertory.

From 4 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. will be a junior workshop on "What Is a Phrase?" This is open to all teachers and students with no affiliation necessary.

Storm Brews Over Medal In New Film

BONN, Germany (AP) — A political storm is brewing over a movie in which a son of Foreign Minister Willy Brandt playfully wears an Iron Cross on his bathing suit.

Lars Brandt, 16, toys with one of Germany's highest wartime decorations in the film version of Guenter Grass' novel "Cat and Mouse." The decoration is the knight's cross, one of the higher grades of the Iron Cross.

The film, to be premiered in Berlin in February, received a $75,000 subsidy from the interior ministry. That was before Brandt's Social Democratic party joined the government last month and before Brandt became foreign minister and vice chancellor.

Producer Hansjuergen Pohland says the government wants its money back unless he cuts some scenes, including the one in which young Brandt wears the decoration.

Seminary Choir Will Make Tour

Courses ranging from the Bible to Israeli folk dancing will be held during the winter semester of the Joint Seminar of Jewish Studies which opens Monday at Congregation Rodef Sholom, 170 North San Pedro Road, San Rafael and to continue for six consecutive Monday evenings.

Sponsors are Congregation Rodef Sholom, Congregation Kol Shofar, the Marin center of the United Jewish Centers and the Bureau of Jewish Education.

Registration for the seminar is being handled by the sponsoring groups.

Annual Dinner

The San Anselmo Chamber of Commerce Thursday made final plans for the chamber's annual dinner meeting today at 8 p. m. at the San Geronimo Golf club house.

Soprano Jane Marsh Signs Opera Contract

Mill Valley's soprano Jane Marsh, winner of last year's Tchaikovsky vocal competition in Moscow, will make her San Francisco opera debut this fall.

She will sing the role of Pamina in a new production of Mozart's "The Magic Flute," it was announced today by Director Kurt Herbert Adler.

Miss Marsh made her first professional appearance in this role in Chautauqua, N.Y., in 1964.

A daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Earle Marsh of Mill Valley, Jane made her very first operatic appearance at the Paul Masson vineyards in the summer of 1963 while taking part in the Merola Opera program. In 1965 she opened the Spoleto Festival as Desdemona in "Otello."

Her San Francisco opera debut, which will mark her first performance with a major opera company, is the result of a long standing agreement with Adler. Though offered contracts with the world's leading opera houses since winning the Moscow competition, Jane has promised to make her major opera debut with the San Francisco Opera.

Greek Princess Hears Science Fiction Music

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Princess Irene of Greece spent a day in the San Francisco area yesterday listening first to electronic, science fiction music and finally to the San Francisco Symphony.

The science fiction concert was conducted for the princess by Miss Pauline Oliveros, director of the Tape Music Center at Mills College in Oakland.

The composition was called "Bye, Bye Butterfly," a five-minute tape recital played on two huge electronic devices.

"I don't know how much you know about electronics," said Miss Oliveros, explaining her composition.

The princess held out her hands, palms up, and said, "I don't know anything. I'll believe everything you say."

After the electronic concert, Princess Irene attended a small reception given by Dr. C. Easton Rothwell, president of Mills.

In the evening, the princess went to the symphony where Swiss pianist Margrit Weber was the soloist in a performance of Richard Strauss' youthful "Burleske" for piano and orchestra.

The princess is on a month's tour of the United States. She is the sister of King Constantine, the present king of Greece. The 24-year-old princess is second in line for the throne.

Seminar Courses To Open Monday

The chapel choir of Golden Gate Baptist Seminary, Mill Valley, will present concerts at nine California churches and at California Baptist College in Riverside from Feb. 6 to 12.

The group is directed by Carlyle D. Bennett. A women's ensemble and men's chorus and quartet comprise the choir and also will perform.

Family Troubles Film Is Scheduled

"Trouble in the Family," a film produced by National Educational Television, will be shown by the Institute on the Family, Jan. 27 at 8 p.m. in Church in Ignacio, Pacheco Shopping Center.

Dr. Martin Kirschenbaum, the institute's director of family training and research, and Mrs. Shirley Luthman, director of training will discuss family conjoint therapy after the showing.

Heavy Snow Warnings For Sierra

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Heavy snow fell over seven western and northwestern states today and warnings were issued again to mountain travelers.

The snow clogged highways and mountain passes from central California to Washington State and inland across Idaho to western Montana.

Little relief was expected from the snow until Monday.

At Lakeview, Ore., a winter sports section, 15 inches of new snow fell in 24 hours up to 1 a.m. Six inches of the fall was in the last six hours.

Mount Shasta, Calif., received 18 inches of snow in the last 36 hours and weathermen reported some mountain passes in the Cascades were clogged with eight feet of snow.

Elsewhere in the country, mostly fair and rather mild temperatures prevailed.

New Corporation Yard Is Open

Sausalito Department of Public Works Thursday moved into its new $45,000 corporation yard on Nevada Street, Supt. of Public Works Norman Wohlshlaeger reported.

An open house is planned next month to show off the new facility, designed by architect Aaron Green. Future use of the old yard at 408 Bee Street is undecided.

WHERE HAVE THEY GONE?

Beatles Wander Far From Bright Lights In Search Of New Ideas

By JOAN DEPPA

LONDON (UPI)—Once upon a time there were four lads from Liverpool who made music with such a joyous beat that all the kingdom rejoiced at the sound and they became marvellously rich.

And then one day they became bored.

PAUL PHILOSOPHIZES

"The days when three guitarists and a drummer can stand up and sing and do nothing on stage must be over," said Paul McCartney, sometimes known as the cute one.

Ringo Starr twisted the rings on his fingers that some of his followers believed had a sort of mystic quality, like his big nose and his long hair.

"We can't do the same act, with a couple of numbers and a couple of jokes," he said. "We'd have to rehearse something new."

So with the wise one, John Lennon, and the quiet one, George Harrison, the Beatles quietly retired to ponder this future.

'WE'RE OLD MEN'

"We can't go on holding hands forever," said John Lennon. "We have been the Beatles as best we ever will be—those four jolly lads. But we're not those people anymore. We're old men."

All at once the people missed them and a hue and cry was heard up and down the land.

Some said they had fallen from favor after an unfortunate incident in the far distant land of the Philippines. Some, who had misinterpreted the wise one's remarks about religion, blamed it on blasphemy.

Others, who were envious, called them lazy, and a few even said good riddance.

But the Beatles, with wisdom gained from their many strange experiences, realized that if they were bored then the people would soon become bored with them too. So they set off separately in search of new adventures.

Those who said they would not often appear together on stage again were right, because the foursome had decided the joyous screams of the people drowned out their music.

"When we're on stage nobody can hear us or listen to us," said Paul, the cute one, brushing a moustache which has come with age (23).

But those who predicted their music never would be heard again in the land were wrong, because the four had many wondrous plans and were truly talented unlike many of their imitators.

They quietly admitted they had no magic formula for success, but found great pleasure in inventing new sounds in a secluded recording studio.

"Now we take time because we haven't any pressing engagements like tours to limit us," said Paul. "All we want is to make one track better than the last. We just make out tracks, then listen to them and decide from what we have what will be a single, what will go on an LP."

Also, they planned another movie so that if their followers could not see them in person they could at least laugh at their jesting, which some said was more enjoyable than their music.

Success makes one wary of failure and so they waited for the right story. Ringo, called by some the sad one and by others the ugly one, vowed, "Until the script is to all our likings we won't do it."

So all the kingdom waited through the long, cold winter while the story of the four young lads from Liverpool became legend and the strange memories of the phenomena called Beatlemania became a distant dream.

Three Begin Their Marine Corps Duty

Three Marin men have started their six-month Marine Corps training at San Diego after enlisting in the county's Marine Corps Reserve Unit in San Rafael.

They are Peter I. Teller of 150 Shady Lane, Ross; and Robert M. Simpton of 445 Vista Grande and Kit P. Thomas of 49 Serra Way, both of San Rafael.

WHERE HAVE THEY GONE?

By JOAN DEPPA

LONDON (UPI)—Once upon a time there were four lads from Liverpool who made music with such a joyous beat that all the kingdom rejoiced at the sound and they became marvellously rich.

And then one day they became bored.

PAUL PHILOSOPHIZES

"The days when three guitarists and a drummer can stand up and sing and do nothing on stage must be over," said Paul McCartney, sometimes known as the cute one.

Ringo Starr twisted the rings on his fingers that some of his followers believed had a sort of mystic quality, like his big nose and his long hair.

"We can't do the same act, with a couple of numbers and a couple of jokes," he said. "We'd have to rehearse something new."

So with the wise one, John Lennon, and the quiet one, George Harrison, the Beatles quietly retired to ponder this future.

'WE'RE OLD MEN'

"We can't go on holding hands forever," said John Lennon. "We have been the Beatles as best we ever will be—those four jolly lads. But we're not those people anymore. We're old men."

All at once the people missed them and a hue and cry was heard up and down the land.

Some said they had fallen from favor after an unfortunate incident in the far distant land of the Philippines. Some, who had misinterpreted the wise one's remarks about religion, blamed it on blasphemy.

Others, who were envious, called them lazy, and a few even said good riddance.

But the Beatles, with wisdom gained from their many strange experiences, realized that if they were bored then the people would soon become bored with them too. So they set off separately in search of new adventures.

Those who said they would not often appear together on stage again were right, because the foursome had decided the joyous screams of the people drowned out their music.

"When we're on stage nobody can hear us or listen to us," said Paul, the cute one, brushing a moustache which has come with age (23).

But those who predicted their music never would be heard again in the land were wrong, because the four had many wondrous plans and were truly talented unlike many of their imitators.

They quietly admitted they had no magic formula for success, but found great pleasure in inventing new sounds in a secluded recording studio.

"Now we take time because we haven't any pressing engagements like tours to limit us," said Paul. "All we want is to make one track better than the last. We just make out tracks, then listen to them and decide from what we have what will be a single, what will go on an LP."

Also, they planned another movie so that if their followers could not see them in person they could at least laugh at their jesting, which some said was more enjoyable than their music.

Success makes one wary of failure and so they waited for the right story. Ringo, called by some the sad one and by others the ugly one, vowed, "Until the script is to all our likings we won't do it."

So all the kingdom waited through the long, cold winter while the story of the four young lads from Liverpool became legend and the strange memories of the phenomena called Beatlemania became a distant dream.

Workshop Is Set Monday For Pianists

A day-long Robert Dumm Piano Workshop will be sponsored at St. Paul's Episcopal Church in San Rafael Monday by the Marin County branch of the Music Teachers Assn. of California.

Robert Dumm, professor of music at the Boston Conservatory, is a pianist, composer, editor and teacher.

He holds degrees from the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor, where he and his wife founded a piano school that enrolled 350 in class and private lessons. Since then his piano workshops have won him a nation-wide following.

Scheduled for adults are: Registration from 9 a.m. to 9:30 a.m.; 9:30 a.m.-10:45 a.m., First Impressions, presentation of a new piano piece; 11 a.m.-12:30 p.m., Target Practice, most effective use of the lesson time; 12:30 p.m.-1:30 p.m., lunch; and 1:30 p.m.-3:30 p.m., new and teachable repertory.

From 4 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. will be a junior workshop on "What Is a Phrase?" This is open to all teachers and students with no affiliation necessary.

Robert Lamb, 263 Madrone Avenue, Larkspur, is registrar.

Storm Brews Over Medal In New Film

BONN, Germany (AP) — A political storm is brewing over a movie in which a son of Foreign Minister Willy Brandt playfully wears an Iron Cross on his bathing suit.

Lars Brandt, 16, toys with one of Germany's highest wartime decorations in the film version of Guenter Grass' novel "Cat and Mouse." The decoration is the knight's cross, one of the higher grades of the Iron Cross.

The film, to be premiered in Berlin in February, received a $75,000 subsidy from the interior ministry. That was before Brandt's Social Democratic party joined the government last month and before Brandt became foreign minister and vice chancellor.

Producer Hansjuergen Pohland says the government wants its money back unless he cuts some scenes, including the one in which young Brandt wears the decoration.

Seminary Choir Will Make Tour

Courses ranging from the Bible to Israeli folk dancing will be held during the winter semester of the Joint Seminar of Jewish Studies which opens Monday at Congregation Rodef Sholom, 170 North San Pedro Road, San Rafael and to continue for six consecutive Monday evenings.

Sponsors are Congregation Rodef Sholom, Congregation Kol Shofar, the Marin center of the United Jewish Centers and the Bureau of Jewish Education.

Registration for the seminar is being handled by the sponsoring groups.

Annual Dinner

The San Anselmo Chamber of Commerce Thursday made final plans for the chamber's annual dinner meeting today at 8 p. m. at the San Geronimo Golf club house.

Soprano Jane Marsh Signs Opera Contract

Mill Valley's soprano Jane Marsh, winner of last year's Tchaikovsky vocal competition in Moscow, will make her San Francisco opera debut this fall.

She will sing the role of Pamina in a new production of Mozart's "The Magic Flute," it was announced today by Director Kurt Herbert Adler.

Miss Marsh made her first professional appearance in this role in Chautauqua, N.Y., in 1964.

A daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Earle Marsh of Mill Valley, Jane made her very first operatic appearance at the Paul Masson vineyards in the summer of 1963 while taking part in the Merola Opera program. In 1965 she opened the Spoleto Festival as Desdemona in "Otello."

Her San Francisco opera debut, which will mark her first performance with a major opera company, is the result of a long standing agreement with Adler. Though offered contracts with the world's leading opera houses since winning the Moscow competition, Jane has promised to make her major opera debut with the San Francisco Opera.

Greek Princess Hears Science Fiction Music

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Princess Irene of Greece spent a day in the San Francisco area yesterday listening first to electronic, science fiction music and finally to the San Francisco Symphony.

The science fiction concert was conducted for the princess by Miss Pauline Oliveros, director of the Tape Music Center at Mills College in Oakland.

The composition was called "Bye, Bye Butterfly," a five-minute tape recital played on two huge electronic devices.

"I don't know how much you know about electronics," said Miss Oliveros, explaining her composition.

The princess held out her hands, palms up, and said, "I don't know anything. I'll believe everything you say."

After the electronic concert, Princess Irene attended a small reception given by Dr. C. Easton Rothwell, president of Mills.

In the evening, the princess went to the symphony where Swiss pianist Margrit Weber was the soloist in a performance of Richard Strauss' youthful "Burleske" for piano and orchestra.

The princess is on a month's tour of the United States. She is the sister of King Constantine, the present king of Greece. The 24-year-old princess is second in line for the throne.

Seminar Courses To Open Monday

The chapel choir of Golden Gate Baptist Seminary, Mill Valley, will present concerts at nine California churches and at California Baptist College in Riverside from Feb. 6 to 12.

The group is directed by Carlyle D. Bennett. A women's ensemble and men's chorus and quartet comprise the choir and also will perform.

The tour will take the choir to Baptist churches in Ridgecrest, San Bernardino, San Diego, Orange, El Monte, Santa Paula, Bakersfield, Fresno, and Manteca.

Family Troubles Film Is Scheduled

"Trouble in the Family," a film produced by National Educational Television, will be shown by the Institute on the Family, Jan. 27 at 8 p.m. in Church in Ignacio, Pacheco Shopping Center.

Dr. Martin Kirschenbaum, the institute's director of family training and research, and Mrs. Shirley Luthman, director of training will discuss family conjoint therapy after the showing.

Heavy Snow Warnings For Sierra

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Heavy snow fell over seven western and northwestern states today and warnings were issued again to mountain travelers.

The snow clogged highways and mountain passes from central California to Washington State and inland across Idaho to western Montana.

Little relief was expected from the snow until Monday.

At Lakeview, Ore., a winter sports section, 15 inches of new snow fell in 24 hours up to 1 a.m. Six inches of the fall was in the last six hours.

Klamath Falls, Ore., and Missoula, Mont., got one inch of new snow.

Mount Shasta, Calif., received 18 inches of snow in the last 36 hours and weathermen reported some mountain passes in the Cascades were clogged with eight feet of snow.

Elsewhere in the country, mostly fair and rather mild temperatures prevailed.

New Corporation Yard Is Open

Sausalito Department of Public Works Thursday moved into its new $45,000 corporation yard on Nevada Street, Supt. of Public Works Norman Wohlshlaeger reported.

An open house is planned next month to show off the new facility, designed by architect Aaron Green. Future use of the old yard at 408 Bee Street is undecided.

Legion Speaking Test Tomorrow

Christine Smith of 198 Tulane Drive, Larkspur, will represent Marin County tomorrow in the 30th American Legion High School oratorical contest in Napa. She is a senior at Marin Catholic High School.

The contest is co-sponsored in Marin by the Legion and county schools superintendent.

State finals for the Legion contest will be March 4 in Glendale.

Fairfax Car Wash Permit Requested

Permission to build a self-service car wash between 1573 and 1581 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, Fairfax, will be sought by Donald K. Sherwood of San Rafael from the Fairfax Planning Commission at its meeting Thursday in the council chambers at 8 p.m.

Also on the agenda will be an application by Paul D. Buchholz of San Rafael for rezoning land at Sir Francis Drake Boulevard from residential to commercial.

Three Begin Their Marine Corps Duty

Three Marin men have started their six-month Marine Corps training at San Diego after enlisting in the county's Marine Corps Reserve Unit in San Rafael.

They are Peter I. Teller of 150 Shady Lane, Ross; and Robert M. Simpton of 445 Vista Grande and Kit P. Thomas of 49 Serra Way, both of San Rafael.

"The days when three guitarists and a drummer can stand up and sing and do nothing on stage must be over," said Paul McCartney, sometimes known as the cute one.

Ringo Starr twisted the rings on his fingers that some of his followers believed had a sort of mystic quality, like his big nose and his long hair.

"We can't do the same act, with a couple of numbers and a couple of jokes," he said. "We'd have to rehearse something new."

So with the wise one, John Lennon, and the quiet one, George Harrison, the Beatles quietly retired to ponder this future.

'WE'RE OLD MEN'

"We can't go on holding hands forever," said John Lennon. "We have been the Beatles as best we ever will be —those four jolly lads. But we're not those people anymore. We're old men."

All at once the people missed them and a hue and cry was heard up and down the land.

Some said they had fallen from favor after an unfortunate incident in the far distant land of the Philippines. Some, who had misinterpreted the wise one's remarks about religion, blamed it on blasphemy.

Others, who were envious, called them lazy, and a few even said good riddance.

But the Beatles, with wisdom gained from their many strange experiences, realized that if they were bored then the people would soon become bored with them too. So they set off separately in search of new adventures.

Those who said they would not often appear together on stage again were right, because the foursome had decided the joyous screams of the people drowned out their music.

"When we're on stage nobody can hear us or listen to us," said Paul, the cute one, brushing a moustache which has come with age (23).

But those who predicted their music never would be heard again in the land were wrong, because the four had many wondrous plans and were truly talented unlike many of their imitators.

They quietly admitted they had no magic formula for success, but found great pleasure in inventing new sounds in a secluded recording studio.

"Now we take time because we haven't any pressing engagements like tours to limit us," said Paul. "All we want is to make one track better than the last. We just make out tracks, then listen to them and decide from what we have what will be a single, what will go on an LP."

Also, they planned another movie so that if their followers could not see them in person they could at least laugh at their jesting, which some said was more enjoyable than their music.

Success makes one wary of failure and so they waited for the right story. Ringo, called by some the sad one and by others the ugly one, vowed, "Until the script is to all our likings we won't do it."

So all the kingdom waited through the long, cold winter while the story of the four young lads from Liverpool became legend and the strange memories of the phenomena called Beatlemania became a distant dream.

Three Begin Their Marine Corps Duty

Three Marin men have started their six-month Marine Corps training at San Diego after enlisting in the county's Marine Corps Reserve Unit in San Rafael.

They are Peter I. Teller of 150 Shady Lane, Ross; and Robert M. Simpton of 445 Vista Grande and Kit P. Thomas of 49 Serra Way, both of San Rafael.

Workshop Is Set Monday For Pianists

A day-long Robert Dumm Piano Workshop will be sponsored at St. Paul's Episcopal Church in San Rafael Monday by the Marin County branch of the Music Teachers Assn. of California.

Robert Dumm, professor of music at the Boston Conservatory, is a pianist, composer, editor and teacher.

He holds degrees from the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor, where he and his wife founded a piano school that enrolled 350 in class and private lessons. Since then his piano workshops have won him a nation-wide following.

Scheduled for adults are: Registration from 9 a.m. to 9:30 a.m.; 9:30 a.m.-10:45 a.m., First Impressions, presentation of a new piano piece; 11 a.m.-12:30 p.m., Target Practice, most effective use of the lesson time; 12:30 p.m.-1:30 p.m., lunch; and 1:30 p.m.-3:30 p.m., new and teachable repertory.

From 4 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. will be a junior workshop on "What Is a Phrase?" This is open to all teachers and students with no affiliation necessary.

Robert Lamb, 263 Madrone Avenue, Larkspur, is registrar.

Storm Brews Over Medal In New Film

BONN, Germany (AP) — A political storm is brewing over a movie in which a son of Foreign Minister Willy Brandt playfully wears an Iron Cross on his bathing suit.

Lars Brandt, 16, toys with one of Germany's highest wartime decorations in the film version of Guenter Grass' novel "Cat and Mouse." The decoration is the knight's cross, one of the higher grades of the Iron Cross.

The film, to be premiered in Berlin in February, received a $75,000 subsidy from the interior ministry. That was before Brandt's Social Democratic party joined the government last month and before Brandt became foreign minister and vice chancellor.

Producer Hansjuergen Pohland says the government wants its money back unless he cuts some scenes, including the one in which young Brandt wears the decoration.

Seminary Choir Will Make Tour

Courses ranging from the Bible to Israeli folk dancing will be held during the winter semester of the Joint Seminar of Jewish Studies which opens Monday at Congregation Rodef Sholom, 170 North San Pedro Road, San Rafael and to continue for six consecutive Monday evenings.

Sponsors are Congregation Rodef Sholom, Congregation Kol Shofar, the Marin center of the United Jewish Centers and the Bureau of Jewish Education.

Registration for the seminar is being handled by the sponsoring groups.

Annual Dinner

The San Anselmo Chamber of Commerce Thursday made final plans for the chamber's annual dinner meeting today at 8 p. m. at the San Geronimo Golf club house.

Soprano Jane Marsh Signs Opera Contract

Mill Valley's soprano Jane Marsh, winner of last year's Tchaikovsky vocal competition in Moscow, will make her San Francisco opera debut this fall.

She will sing the role of Pamina in a new production of Mozart's "The Magic Flute," it was announced today by Director Kurt Herbert Adler.

Miss Marsh made her first professional appearance in this role in Chautauqua, N.Y., in 1964.

A daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Earle Marsh of Mill Valley, Jane made her very first operatic appearance at the Paul Masson vineyards in the summer of 1963 while taking part in the Merola Opera program. In 1965 she opened the Spoleto Festival as Desdemona in "Otello."

Her San Francisco opera debut, which will mark her first performance with a major opera company, is the result of a long standing agreement with Adler. Though offered contracts with the world's leading opera houses since winning the Moscow competition, Jane has promised to make her major opera debut with the San Francisco Opera.

Greek Princess Hears Science Fiction Music

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Princess Irene of Greece spent a day in the San Francisco area yesterday listening first to electronic, science fiction music and finally to the San Francisco Symphony.

The science fiction concert was conducted for the princess by Miss Pauline Oliveros, director of the Tape Music Center at Mills College in Oakland.

The composition was called "Bye, Bye Butterfly," a five-minute tape recital played on two huge electronic devices.

"I don't know how much you know about electronics," said Miss Oliveros, explaining her composition.

The princess held out her hands, palms up, and said, "I don't know anything. I'll believe everything you say."

After the electronic concert, Princess Irene attended a small reception given by Dr. C. Easton Rothwell, president of Mills.

In the evening, the princess went to the symphony where Swiss pianist Margrit Weber was the soloist in a performance of Richard Strauss' youthful "Burleske" for piano and orchestra.

The princess is on a month's tour of the United States. She is the sister of King Constantine, the present king of Greece. The 24-year-old princess is second in line for the throne.

Seminar Courses To Open Monday

The chapel choir of Golden Gate Baptist Seminary, Mill Valley, will present concerts at nine California churches and at California Baptist College in Riverside from Feb. 6 to 12.

The group is directed by Carlyle D. Bennett. A women's ensemble and men's chorus and quartet comprise the choir and also will perform.

The tour will take the choir to Baptist churches in Ridgecrest, San Bernardino, San Diego, Orange, El Monte, Santa Paula, Bakersfield, Fresno, and Manteca.

Family Troubles Film Is Scheduled

"Trouble in the Family," a film produced by National Educational Television, will be shown by the Institute on the Family, Jan. 27 at 8 p.m. in Church in Ignacio, Pacheco Shopping Center.

Heavy Snow Warnings For Sierra

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Heavy snow fell over seven western and northwestern states today and warnings were issued again to mountain travelers.

The snow clogged highways and mountain passes from central California to Washington State and inland across Idaho to western Montana.

Little relief was expected from the snow until Monday.

At Lakeview, Ore., a winter sports section, 15 inches of new snow fell in 24 hours up to 1 a.m. Six inches of the fall was in the last six hours.

Klamath Falls, Ore., and Missoula, Mont., got one inch of new snow.

Mount Shasta, Calif., received 18 inches of snow in the last 36 hours and weathermen reported some mountain passes in the Cascades were clogged with eight feet of snow.

Elsewhere in the country, mostly fair and rather mild temperatures prevailed.

New Corporation Yard Is Open

Sausalito Department of Public Works Thursday moved into its new $45,000 corporation yard on Nevada Street, Supt. of Public Works Norman Wohlshlaeger reported.

An open house is planned next month to show off the new facility, designed by architect Aaron Green. Future use of the old yard at 408 Bee Street is undecided.

WHERE HAVE THEY GONE?

By JOAN DEPPA

LONDON (UPI)—Once upon a time there were four lads from Liverpool who made music with such a joyous beat that all the kingdom rejoiced at the sound and they became marvellously rich.

And then one day they became bored.

PAUL PHILOSOPHIZES

"The days when three guitarists and a drummer can stand up and sing and do nothing on stage must be over," said Paul McCartney, sometimes known as the cute one.

Ringo Starr twisted the rings on his fingers that some of his followers believed had a sort of mystic quality, like his big nose and his long hair.

"We can't do the same act, with a couple of numbers and a couple of jokes," he said. "We'd have to rehearse something new."

So with the wise one, John Lennon, and the quiet one, George Harrison, the Beatles quietly retired to ponder this future.

'WE'RE OLD MEN'

"We can't go on holding hands forever," said John Lennon. "We have been the Beatles as best we ever will be—those four jolly lads. But we're not those people anymore. We're old men."

All at once the people missed them and a hue and cry was heard up and down the land.

Some said they had fallen from favor after an unfortunate incident in the far distant land of the Philippines. Some, who had misinterpreted the wise one's remarks about religion, blamed it on blasphemy.

Others, who were envious, called them lazy, and a few even said good riddance.

But the Beatles, with wisdom gained from their many strange experiences, realized that if they were bored then the people would soon become bored with them too. So they set off separately in search of new adventures.

Those who said they would not often appear together on stage again were right, because the foursome had decided the joyous screams of the people drowned out their music.

"When we're on stage nobody can hear us or listen to us," said Paul, the cute one, brushing a moustache which has come with age (23).

But those who predicted their music never would be heard again in the land were wrong, because the four had many wondrous plans and were truly talented unlike many of their imitators.

They quietly admitted they had no magic formula for success, but found great pleasure in inventing new sounds in a secluded recording studio.

"Now we take time because we haven't any pressing engagements like tours to limit us," said Paul. "All we want is to make one track better than the last. We just make out tracks, then listen to them and decide from what we have what will be a single, what will go on an LP."

Also, they planned another movie so that if their followers could not see them in person they could at least laugh at their jesting, which some said was more enjoyable than their music.

Success makes one wary of failure and so they waited for the right story. Ringo, called by some the sad one and by others the ugly one, vowed, "Until the script is to all our likings we won't do it."

So all the kingdom waited through the long, cold winter while the story of the four young lads from Liverpool became legend and the strange memories of the phenomena called Beatlemania became a distant dream.

Three Begin Their Marine Corps Duty

Three Marin men have started their six-month Marine Corps training at San Diego after enlisting in the county's Marine Corps Reserve Unit in San Rafael.

They are Peter I. Teller of 150 Shady Lane, Ross; and Robert M. Simpton of 445 Vista Grande and Kit P. Thomas of 49 Serra Way, both of San Rafael.

Dr. Martin Kirschenbaum, the institute's director of family training and research, and Mrs. Shirley Luthman, director of training will discuss family conjoint therapy after the showing.

Heavy Snow Warnings For Sierra

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Heavy snow fell over seven western and northwestern states today and warnings were issued again to mountain travelers.

The snow clogged highways and mountain passes from central California to Washington State and inland across Idaho to western Montana.

Little relief was expected from the snow until Monday.

At Lakeview, Ore., a winter sports section, 15 inches of new snow fell in 24 hours up to 1 a.m. Six inches of the fall was in the last six hours.

Klamath Falls, Ore., and Missoula, Mont., got one inch of new snow.

Mount Shasta, Calif., received 18 inches of snow in the last 36 hours and weathermen reported some mountain passes in the Cascades were clogged with eight feet of snow.

Elsewhere in the country, mostly fair and rather mild temperatures prevailed.

New Corporation Yard Is Open

Sausalito Department of Public Works Thursday moved into its new $45,000 corporation yard on Nevada Street, Supt. of Public Works Norman Wohlshlaeger reported.

An open house is planned next month to show off the new facility, designed by architect Aaron Green. Future use of the old yard at 408 Bee Street is undecided.

State finals for the Legion contest will be March 4 in Glendale.

Fairfax Car Wash Permit Requested

Permission to build a self-service car wash between 1573 and 1581 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, Fairfax, will be sought by Donald K. Sherwood of San Rafael from the Fairfax Planning Commission at its meeting Thursday in the council chambers at 8 p.m.

Also on the agenda will be an application by Paul D. Buchholz of San Rafael for rezoning land at Sir Francis Drake Boulevard from residential to commercial.

WHERE HAVE THEY GONE?

By JOAN DEPPA

LONDON (UPI)—Once upon a time there were four lads from Liverpool who made music with such a joyous beat that all the kingdom rejoiced at the sound and they became marvellously rich.

And then one day they became bored.

PAUL PHILOSOPHIZES

"The days when three guitarists and a drummer can stand up and sing and do nothing on stage must be over," said Paul McCartney, sometimes known as the cute one.

Ringo Starr twisted the rings on his fingers that some of his followers believed had a sort of mystic quality, like his big nose and his long hair.

"We can't do the same act, with a couple of numbers and a couple of jokes," he said. "We'd have to rehearse something new."

So with the wise one, John Lennon, and the quiet one, George Harrison, the Beatles quietly retired to ponder this future.

'WE'RE OLD MEN'

"We can't go on holding hands forever," said John Lennon. "We have been the Beatles as best we ever will be—those four jolly lads. But we're not those people anymore. We're old men."

All at once the people missed them and a hue and cry was heard up and down the land.

Some said they had fallen from favor after an unfortunate incident in the far distant land of the Philippines. Some, who had misinterpreted the wise one's remarks about religion, blamed it on blasphemy.

Others, who were envious, called them lazy, and a few even said good riddance.

But the Beatles, with wisdom gained from their many strange experiences, realized that if they were bored then the people would soon become bored with them too. So they set off separately in search of new adventures.

Those who said they would not often appear together on stage again were right, because the foursome had decided the joyous screams of the people drowned out their music.

"When we're on stage nobody can hear us or listen to us," said Paul, the cute one, brushing a moustache which has come with age (23).

But those who predicted their music never would be heard again in the land were wrong, because the four had many wondrous plans and were truly talented unlike many of their imitators.

They quietly admitted they had no magic formula for success, but found great pleasure in inventing new sounds in a secluded recording studio.

"Now we take time because we haven't any pressing engagements like tours to limit us," said Paul. "All we want is to make one track better than the last. We just make out tracks, then listen to them and decide from what we have what will be a single, what will go on an LP."

Also, they planned another movie so that if their followers could not see them in person they could at least laugh at their jesting, which some said was more enjoyable than their music.

Success makes one wary of failure and so they waited for the right story. Ringo, called by some the sad one and by others the ugly one, vowed, "Until the script is to all our likings we won't do it."

So all the kingdom waited through the long, cold winter while the story of the four young lads from Liverpool became legend and the strange memories of the phenomena called Beatlemania became a distant dream.

Three Begin Their Marine Corps Duty

Three Marin men have started their six-month Marine Corps training at San Diego after enlisting in the county's Marine Corps Reserve Unit in San Rafael.

They are Peter I. Teller of 150 Shady Lane, Ross; and Robert M. Simpton of 445 Vista Grande and Kit P. Thomas of 49 Serra Way, both of San Rafael.

'66 BUICK SKYLARK

Here's the closest-to-new 1966 Buick Skylark 4-dr. hardtop you'll ever find. Just over 6,000 miles on this little car that our used car manager has driven throughout 1966.

Astro Blue with blue full vinyl interior that you can't tell from a new car on our showroom floor. Fully equipped including power steering, V-8 engine, automatic, radio, heater, w/w tires, tinted glass, etc.

The new price on this car was $3607 but we've reduced the price down below average Blue Book price of $2715 to our price of $2650.

This car has never been registered and the purchaser will be the first owner of record. It carries a full 2-year or 24,000 mile new car General Motors guarantee.

EAGER BEAGLES STAR IN CONCERT

The master of a hunt pack, John Gelsner, leads a pack of beagles across the stage during a rehearsal of the New York Philharmonic playing Leopold Mozart's "Hunting Symphony." All went well at rehearsal yesterday afternoon, but in the evening performance the pack scattered in all directions, to the vast amusement of the audience. (AP Wirephoto)

Two Drivers Fined On Alcohol Charges

John William Walton Jr., 48, of Berkeley, was fined $230 and placed on a year's probation Thursday in Marin Municipal Court for drunken driving. California Highway Patrol arrested him Nov. 19 on Highway 101.

Peter Y. Brady, 19, San Francisco, was fined $174 and placed on probation until he is 21, also for drunken driving. Sausalito police arrested him Dec. 11 on Spencer Avenue.

GENERAL EXPECTS VIETNAM CUTBACK

Army Chief Of Staff Sees Some Troops Withdrawal, But Long-Drawn Police Job

FT. BENNING, Ga. (AP) — The Army chief of staff says withdrawal of major U.S. military units from Vietnam may be possible within 1½-to-2½ years because enemy strength is being broken down into small units that could be contained by smaller American units.

Gen. Harold K. Johnson said, however, that he is not optimistic the fighting will end in that time span. He said the war with Viet Cong terrorists "may last up to eight years."

Johnson spoke yesterday to more than 1,000 infantry officers, many of them Vietnam veterans undergoing staff training here. At that time his speech was classified by the Army. It was released for publication by Fort Benning yesterday. The Columbus Ga. Enquirer obtained a recording of the speech and made its abstract available to The Associated Press.

On the air war, one captain in the training group asked Johnson why the United States did not step up its bombing of North Vietnam to win the war.

"Win?" Johnson replied. "Leveling cities? What did we win in World War II? We won an opportunity to turn around and pay for helping reconstruct something we spent three years destroying. This is what this so-called unconditional victory means, a chance to help pay for what you destroy."

Johnson said the mass operations of U.S. troops in South Vietnam had forced the Viet Cong to break their units down into smaller forces and smaller American forces "are breaking even with them."

TERRORISTS BUSY

But he said even smaller enemy terrorist groups "are assassinating 30 people a week. They're getting ahead of us."

The four-star general said there will be few operations in the war as big as Operation Cedar Falls, the largest U.S. sweep of the war which he said involved 26 battalions.

Johnson said the operation was so big that Defense Department reports of 144 Americans killed in action last week meant an average of only one man lost per battalion per day.

Johnson said also that the United States is in good shape for military manpower and that he sees no need for a reserve callup.

Elaborating on the air war, Johnson said England did not quit in World War II because it was bombed by Germany and that Germany and Japan did not quit fighting because they were bombed.

LITTLE INDUSTRY

"And what are you going to bomb if you start bombing industry?" Johnson asked. "One plant. That's the industry they have in Vietnam."

Johnson said the U.S. goals in Vietnam remain the same as always: "Simply to restore peace and security within the borders of South Vietnam where a normal police force can maintain law and order."

Johnson also reviewed the military situation in Thailand, where guerrilla action is reported intensified in northeast provinces. He said the "bare-bones structure" of Special Forces and Air Force activities has been established there, but added that Thai military officials feel they can cope with the guerrilla activity.

Doctor Surprised By Truth Of 'Thinking Young' Adage

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Thinking young may keep you that way, a University of Michigan researcher says.

If you can't run a mile, lift 100 pounds, or do all those vigorous things you did in your youth, it may be because you really don't want to.

"There is no doubt that our population loses its physical conditioning and it may be completely unnecessary," says Dr. F. James Conway.

Dr. Conway told the Midwest regional meeting of the American College Sports Medicine Conference last night that his research has revealed no apparent medical cause for a man losing the capacity to do exercise as he grows older.

"This certainly has been a big surprise," he said.

The Public Health Service has financed the research by Conway, an associate professor of internal medicine at the University of Michigan Medical School.

His verdcit is that man may lose his ability to do exercise simply because he stops wanting to exercise.

"I think the trouble with most of us is that life really gets easier as we get older," Dr. Conway said. "We become more proficient in a job; we just settle in.

"We're not used to exercising as much and gradually lose our desire to do so," he said. "Our muscles get weaker. Then we lose our inclination, feel less and less like doing it.

The muscles could be toned up and strength regained, even in old age, through exercise, Dr. Conway told the meeting.

Borrowing For General Fund

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Controller Houston I. Flournoy has announced the state general fund will have to borrow $120 million this month.

The step will bring the total borrowed for the 1966-67 year to $434 million. The controller said $50 million will come from the pooled money investment account, while $70 million will be taken from the surplus money investment fund.

Flournoy described the level of borrowing as "unprecedented." He said it was a legacy inherited from the administration of Gov. Edmund G. Brown.

Board Adopts Plan To End Pollution

OAKLAND (UPI) —The long-range-goal of ending pollution in San Francisco Bay was adopted Thursday by Regional Water Quality Control Board No. 2.

San Francisco was asked to report later this year on what it has done to solve the problem of combined sewage and storm sewers bypassing treatment plants during rainy weather. The city is studying the problem with a $100,000 federal grant.

The board asked the San Francisco Port Authority to investigate the need for dockside sewer connections for ships. The city also would be required year-round to keep the water pure near Fisherman's Wharf and the Marina in addition to other basins and aquatic parks.

Under the plan, discharges of untreated sewage from communities surrounding the bay would not exceed limits prescribed by drinking water standards set up by the U. S. Public Health Service.

Scientist On TV

Gerald Talbot, director of the Tiburon Marine Laboratory, will be a guest on the television program "Community Circle" tomorrow over Station KRON, Channel 4, San Francisco, at 10 a.m.

New Finance Post Created In Capitol

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A new $24,336-a-year job in the Finance Department has been created by the Personnel Board.

The post apparently will be filled by Robert Harkness, now director of the General Services Department.

The new job is assistant director of finance for state services. A career civil servant, Harkness has the right to return to his former job of assistant finance director if Gov. Reagan appoints a new general services director.

The naming of Harkness to the new post would head off a chain reaction which would disrupt the Finance Department at the key budget preparation time. The assistant director's job is held by Roy Bell.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Country Children Less Liable To Mental Ills Than Urbanites

VAN DELLEN

City children are more likely to develop emotional disturbances than those from the country. They do not have as many natural and healthy ways to work out their problems. The country child can retreat into a field or tree and yell or just sit quietly. When angry he can run for miles or throw stones without fear of breaking a window. He has more avenues through which he can release tensions or express joys.

THIS IS A point in favor of more city parks, boys clubs, swimming pools, and athletic programs.

It has been estimated that one of every 10 children has a recognizable emotional problem. The majority could be helped but their conflicts are not recognized so they carry their problems into adulthood. We do not know how many of these youngsters become the future inmates of mental hospitals.

These children are of average intelligence and are not physically handicapped. They can be rich or poor, or black or white.

THE MOST easily recognized are those whose behavior is so disturbing or so atypical that their families and teachers cannot stand to have them around.

At the other extreme are those whose problems are not annoying or obvious because they are quiet and withdrawn. The majority are restless in the classroom and their attention starts to wander within a few minutes after being seated. Some talk, others squirm, clench the fists, or grimace.

NOT EVERYONE with a marked distractability, short attention span and sense of irratability and overactivity has an emotional problem. These symptoms also stem from poor vision or hearing and language deficiencies.

Many of these youngsters improve after receiving the proper psycho-agent. Some need sedatives or tranquilizers whereas others require a stimulant or antidepressant. The best response to drug therapy occurs in overactive children.

WHEN THE parents cannot handle the youngster, a boarding school may be recommended.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the I-J.)

DAMAGED HEART AND SWIMMING

P. S. writes: Can a person with a leaky heart valve as a result of rheumatic fever go swimming?

REPLY

This is an individual problem but in general the person with a damaged heart valve cannot take vigorous activity, in or out of the water. In addition to the physical exertion involved, the effect of cold water and air upon the action of the heart must be considered.

ALLERGY SPASM

N. Z. writes: Could intestinal allergy cause bowel spasm?

REPLY

This possibility exists, although anxiety and coarse foods are more common of spastic bowel. On the other hand, the symptoms of food allergy and spasm are somewhat similar and it may be difficult to distinguish one from the other.

VERTIGO

F. B. writes What makes the bed feel as if it were going around when a person is lying down?

REPLY

The most common cause of this type of dizziness is a disturbance in the labyrinth of the ear. Why not have your symptom investigated?

CREAKY JOINTS

Mrs. S. writes: My husband has been a heavy milk drinker but has decided to cut down because he thinks too much milk makes his bones crack. Is this possible?

REPLY

No. It's old age, and not milk, that makes the old joints creak.

TRY A MONOCLE

B. A. writes: Recently I was fitted with glasses that have blue plastic frames. After wearing them for a few days the skin behind my ears broke out into a rash. I suppose I'm allergic to the frames, because I also have other allergies: hay fever, asthma, and eczema. What can I do?

REPLY

You have a perfect excuse for using a monocle if you are a man or lorgnette if you are a woman. Alternatives would be the prince-nez or metal frames. Apparently you are sensitive to some ingredient in the plastic frames.

Here's the closest-to-new 1966 Buick Skylark 4-dr. hardtop you'll ever find. Just over 6,000 miles on this little car that our used car manager has driven throughout 1966.

Astro Blue with blue full vinyl interior that you can't tell from a new car on our showroom floor. Fully equipped including power steering, V-8 engine, automatic, radio, heater, w/w tires, tinted glass, etc.

The new price on this car was $3607 but we've reduced the price down below average Blue Book price of $2715 to our price of $2650.

This car has never been registered and the purchaser will be the first owner of record. It carries a full 2-year or 24,000 mile new car General Motors guarantee.

Executive Car
'66 BUICK SKYLARK

Here's the closest-to-new 1966 Buick Skylark 4-dr. hardtop you'll ever find. Just over 6,000 miles on this little car that our used car manager has driven throughout 1966.

Astro Blue with blue full vinyl interior that you can't tell from a new car on our showroom floor. Fully equipped including power steering, V-8 engine, automatic, radio, heater, w/w tires, tinted glass, etc.

The new price on this car was $3607 but we've reduced the price down below average Blue Book price of $2715 to our price of $2650.

This car has never been registered and the purchaser will be the first owner of record. It carries a full 2-year or 24,000 mile new car General Motors guarantee.

Marin As The Gulls See Her

All of Marin County—except for the tips of Point Reyes on the west and Tiburon, San Quentin and San Pedro points on the east—is spread to view in this aerial shot. In the lower right, at the end of Golden Gate Bridge is Fort Baker with its small harbor. The highlands in the foreground, now virtually deserted, may one day hold the planned community of Marincello, spreading from the ridgeline westward toward the ocean. The ridge, itself, running north, serves to divide pastoral West Marin from the more highly developed eastern section. On one side a succession of bays and inlets—Rodeo Lagoon, Tennessee Cove, Stinson Beach and Bolinas Bay, Drake's and Tomales bays. On the other side, the communities of Sausalito, Tamalpais Valley, Mill Valley, Corte Madera and the cities to the north of them. Where the rain falls heaviest is clearly shown by the dark areas with their lush, green vegetation.

Dominican Students Make Honor List

Nineteen Marin County students at Dominican College of San Rafael have been named to the President's List, according to Sister M. Patrick, president.

They are: Lynn Gratonik of Belvedere; Carla Pincini of Fairfax; Susan Tescher of Mill Valley; Rita Lago and Jeanne Looney of San Anselmo; Sharon Sanders, Cleoni Tocalino and Nancy Tocalino of Novato; and JoAnn Augustine, Arville Bagge, Susan Burns, Denise Cronin, Mary Donohue, Maureen Donovan, Leslie Leonardi, Marilyn Moore, Judith Rossi, Donna Spencer and Carol Winters, all of San Rafael.

EAGER BEAGLES STAR IN CONCERT

The master of a hunt pack, John Gelsner, leads a pack of beagles across the stage during a rehearsal of the New York Philharmonic playing Leopold Mozart's "Hunting Symphony." All went well at rehearsal yesterday afternoon, but in the evening performance the pack scattered in all directions, to the vast amusement of the audience. (AP Wirephoto)

Two Drivers Fined On Alcohol Charges

John William Walton Jr., 48, of Berkeley, was fined $230 and placed on a year's probation Thursday in Marin Municipal Court for drunken driving. California Highway Patrol arrested him Nov. 19 on Highway 101.

Peter Y. Brady, 19, San Francisco, was fined $174 and placed on probation until he is 21, also for drunken driving. Sausalito police arrested him Dec. 11 on Spencer Avenue.

GENERAL EXPECTS VIETNAM CUTBACK

FT. BENNING, Ga. (AP) — The Army chief of staff says withdrawal of major U.S. military units from Vietnam may be possible within 1½-to-2½ years because enemy strength is being broken down into small units that could be contained by smaller American units.

Gen. Harold K. Johnson said, however, that he is not optimistic the fighting will end in that time span. He said the war with Viet Cong terrorists "may last up to eight years."

Johnson spoke yesterday to more than 1,000 infantry officers, many of them Vietnam veterans undergoing staff training here. At that time his speech was classified by the Army. It was released for publication by Fort Benning yesterday. The Columbus Ga. Enquirer obtained a recording of the speech and made its abstract available to The Associated Press.

On the air war, one captain in the training group asked Johnson why the United States did not step up its bombing of North Vietnam to win the war.

"Win?" Johnson replied. "Leveling cities? What did we win in World War II? We won an opportunity to turn around and pay for helping reconstruct something we spent three years destroying. This is what this so-called unconditional victory means, a chance to help pay for what you destroy."

Johnson said the mass operations of U.S. troops in South Vietnam had forced the Viet Cong to break their units down into smaller forces and smaller American forces "are breaking even with them."

TERRORISTS BUSY

But he said even smaller enemy terrorist groups "are assassinating 30 people a week. They're getting ahead of us."

The four-star general said there will be few operations in the war as big as Operation Cedar Falls, the largest U.S. sweep of the war which he said involved 26 battalions.

Johnson said the operation was so big that Defense Department reports of 144 Americans killed in action last week meant an average of only one man lost per battalion per day.

Johnson said also that the United States is in good shape for military manpower and that he sees no need for a reserve callup.

Elaborating on the air war, Johnson said England did not quit in World War II because it was bombed by Germany and that Germany and Japan did not quit fighting because they were bombed.

LITTLE INDUSTRY

"And what are you going to bomb if you start bombing industry?" Johnson asked. "One plant. That's the industry they have in Vietnam."

Johnson said the U.S. goals in Vietnam remain the same as always: "Simply to restore peace and security within the borders of South Vietnam where a normal police force can maintain law and order."

Johnson also reviewed the military situation in Thailand, where guerrilla action is reported intensified in northeast provinces. He said the "bare-bones structure" of Special Forces and Air Force activities has been established there, but added that Thai military officials feel they can cope with the guerrilla activity.

Doctor Surprised By Truth Of 'Thinking Young' Adage

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Thinking young may keep you that way, a University of Michigan researcher says.

If you can't run a mile, lift 100 pounds, or do all those vigorous things you did in your youth, it may be because you really don't want to.

"There is no doubt that our population loses its physical conditioning and it may be completely unnecessary," says Dr. F. James Conway.

Dr. Conway told the Midwest regional meeting of the American College Sports Medicine Conference last night that his research has revealed no apparent medical cause for a man losing the capacity to do exercise as he grows older.

"This certainly has been a big surprise," he said.

The Public Health Service has financed the research by Conway, an associate professor of internal medicine at the University of Michigan Medical School.

His verdcit is that man may lose his ability to do exercise simply because he stops wanting to exercise.

"I think the trouble with most of us is that life really gets easier as we get older," Dr. Conway said. "We become more proficient in a job; we just settle in.

"We're not used to exercising as much and gradually lose our desire to do so," he said. "Our muscles get weaker. Then we lose our inclination, feel less and less like doing it.

The muscles could be toned up and strength regained, even in old age, through exercise, Dr. Conway told the meeting.

Borrowing For General Fund

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Controller Houston I. Flournoy has announced the state general fund will have to borrow $120 million this month.

The step will bring the total borrowed for the 1966-67 year to $434 million. The controller said $50 million will come from the pooled money investment account, while $70 million will be taken from the surplus money investment fund.

Flournoy described the level of borrowing as "unprecedented." He said it was a legacy inherited from the administration of Gov. Edmund G. Brown.

Board Adopts Plan To End Pollution

OAKLAND (UPI) —The long-range-goal of ending pollution in San Francisco Bay was adopted Thursday by Regional Water Quality Control Board No. 2.

San Francisco was asked to report later this year on what it has done to solve the problem of combined sewage and storm sewers bypassing treatment plants during rainy weather. The city is studying the problem with a $100,000 federal grant.

The board asked the San Francisco Port Authority to investigate the need for dockside sewer connections for ships. The city also would be required year-round to keep the water pure near Fisherman's Wharf and the Marina in addition to other basins and aquatic parks.

Under the plan, discharges of untreated sewage from communities surrounding the bay would not exceed limits prescribed by drinking water standards set up by the U. S. Public Health Service.

Scientist On TV

Gerald Talbot, director of the Tiburon Marine Laboratory, will be a guest on the television program "Community Circle" tomorrow over Station KRON, Channel 4, San Francisco, at 10 a.m.

New Finance Post Created In Capitol

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A new $24,336-a-year job in the Finance Department has been created by the Personnel Board.

The post apparently will be filled by Robert Harkness, now director of the General Services Department.

The new job is assistant director of finance for state services. A career civil servant, Harkness has the right to return to his former job of assistant finance director if Gov. Reagan appoints a new general services director.

The naming of Harkness to the new post would head off a chain reaction which would disrupt the Finance Department at the key budget preparation time. The assistant director's job is held by Roy Bell.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

VAN DELLEN

City children are more likely to develop emotional disturbances than those from the country. They do not have as many natural and healthy ways to work out their problems. The country child can retreat into a field or tree and yell or just sit quietly. When angry he can run for miles or throw stones without fear of breaking a window. He has more avenues through which he can release tensions or express joys.

THIS IS A point in favor of more city parks, boys clubs, swimming pools, and athletic programs.

It has been estimated that one of every 10 children has a recognizable emotional problem. The majority could be helped but their conflicts are not recognized so they carry their problems into adulthood. We do not know how many of these youngsters become the future inmates of mental hospitals.

These children are of average intelligence and are not physically handicapped. They can be rich or poor, or black or white.

THE MOST easily recognized are those whose behavior is so disturbing or so atypical that their families and teachers cannot stand to have them around.

At the other extreme are those whose problems are not annoying or obvious because they are quiet and withdrawn. The majority are restless in the classroom and their attention starts to wander within a few minutes after being seated. Some talk, others squirm, clench the fists, or grimace.

NOT EVERYONE with a marked distractability, short attention span and sense of irratability and overactivity has an emotional problem. These symptoms also stem from poor vision or hearing and language deficiencies.

Many of these youngsters improve after receiving the proper psycho-agent. Some need sedatives or tranquilizers whereas others require a stimulant or antidepressant. The best response to drug therapy occurs in overactive children.

WHEN THE parents cannot handle the youngster, a boarding school may be recommended.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the I-J.)

DAMAGED HEART AND SWIMMING

P. S. writes: Can a person with a leaky heart valve as a result of rheumatic fever go swimming?

REPLY

This is an individual problem but in general the person with a damaged heart valve cannot take vigorous activity, in or out of the water. In addition to the physical exertion involved, the effect of cold water and air upon the action of the heart must be considered.

ALLERGY SPASM

N. Z. writes: Could intestinal allergy cause bowel spasm?

REPLY

This possibility exists, although anxiety and coarse foods are more common of spastic bowel. On the other hand, the symptoms of food allergy and spasm are somewhat similar and it may be difficult to distinguish one from the other.

VERTIGO

F. B. writes What makes the bed feel as if it were going around when a person is lying down?

REPLY

The most common cause of this type of dizziness is a disturbance in the labyrinth of the ear. Why not have your symptom investigated?

CREAKY JOINTS

Mrs. S. writes: My husband has been a heavy milk drinker but has decided to cut down because he thinks too much milk makes his bones crack. Is this possible?

REPLY

No. It's old age, and not milk, that makes the old joints creak.

TRY A MONOCLE

B. A. writes: Recently I was fitted with glasses that have blue plastic frames. After wearing them for a few days the skin behind my ears broke out into a rash. I suppose I'm allergic to the frames, because I also have other allergies: hay fever, asthma, and eczema. What can I do?

REPLY

You have a perfect excuse for using a monocle if you are a man or lorgnette if you are a woman. Alternatives would be the prince-nez or metal frames. Apparently you are sensitive to some ingredient in the plastic frames.

Today's Health Hint — Don't mix household cleaners.

EAGER BEAGLES STAR IN CONCERT

The master of a hunt pack, John Gelsner, leads a pack of beagles across the stage during a rehearsal of the New York Philharmonic playing Leopold Mozart's "Hunting Symphony." All went well at rehearsal yesterday afternoon, but in the evening performance the pack scattered in all directions, to the vast amusement of the audience. (AP Wirephoto)

GENERAL EXPECTS VIETNAM CUTBACK

FT. BENNING, Ga. (AP) — The Army chief of staff says withdrawal of major U.S. military units from Vietnam may be possible within 1½-to-2½ years because enemy strength is being broken down into small units that could be contained by smaller American units.

Gen. Harold K. Johnson said, however, that he is not optimistic the fighting will end in that time span. He said the war with Viet Cong terrorists "may last up to eight years."

Johnson spoke yesterday to more than 1,000 infantry officers, many of them Vietnam veterans undergoing staff training here. At that time his speech was classified by the Army. It was released for publication by Fort Benning yesterday. The Columbus Ga. Enquirer obtained a recording of the speech and made its abstract available to The Associated Press.

On the air war, one captain in the training group asked Johnson why the United States did not step up its bombing of North Vietnam to win the war.

"Win?" Johnson replied. "Leveling cities? What did we win in World War II? We won an opportunity to turn around and pay for helping reconstruct something we spent three years destroying. This is what this so-called unconditional victory means, a chance to help pay for what you destroy."

Johnson said the mass operations of U.S. troops in South Vietnam had forced the Viet Cong to break their units down into smaller forces and smaller American forces "are breaking even with them."

TERRORISTS BUSY

But he said even smaller enemy terrorist groups "are assassinating 30 people a week. They're getting ahead of us."

The four-star general said there will be few operations in the war as big as Operation Cedar Falls, the largest U.S. sweep of the war which he said involved 26 battalions.

Johnson said the operation was so big that Defense Department reports of 144 Americans killed in action last week meant an average of only one man lost per battalion per day.

Johnson said also that the United States is in good shape for military manpower and that he sees no need for a reserve callup.

Elaborating on the air war, Johnson said England did not quit in World War II because it was bombed by Germany and that Germany and Japan did not quit fighting because they were bombed.

LITTLE INDUSTRY

"And what are you going to bomb if you start bombing industry?" Johnson asked. "One plant. That's the industry they have in Vietnam."

Johnson said the U.S. goals in Vietnam remain the same as always: "Simply to restore peace and security within the borders of South Vietnam where a normal police force can maintain law and order."

Johnson also reviewed the military situation in Thailand, where guerrilla action is reported intensified in northeast provinces. He said the "bare-bones structure" of Special Forces and Air Force activities has been established there, but added that Thai military officials feel they can cope with the guerrilla activity.

Doctor Surprised By Truth Of 'Thinking Young' Adage

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Thinking young may keep you that way, a University of Michigan researcher says.

If you can't run a mile, lift 100 pounds, or do all those vigorous things you did in your youth, it may be because you really don't want to.

"There is no doubt that our population loses its physical conditioning and it may be completely unnecessary," says Dr. F. James Conway.

Dr. Conway told the Midwest regional meeting of the American College Sports Medicine Conference last night that his research has revealed no apparent medical cause for a man losing the capacity to do exercise as he grows older.

"This certainly has been a big surprise," he said.

The Public Health Service has financed the research by Conway, an associate professor of internal medicine at the University of Michigan Medical School.

His verdcit is that man may lose his ability to do exercise simply because he stops wanting to exercise.

"I think the trouble with most of us is that life really gets easier as we get older," Dr. Conway said. "We become more proficient in a job; we just settle in.

"We're not used to exercising as much and gradually lose our desire to do so," he said. "Our muscles get weaker. Then we lose our inclination, feel less and less like doing it.

The muscles could be toned up and strength regained, even in old age, through exercise, Dr. Conway told the meeting.

Board Adopts Plan To End Pollution

OAKLAND (UPI) —The long-range-goal of ending pollution in San Francisco Bay was adopted Thursday by Regional Water Quality Control Board No. 2.

San Francisco was asked to report later this year on what it has done to solve the problem of combined sewage and storm sewers bypassing treatment plants during rainy weather. The city is studying the problem with a $100,000 federal grant.

The board asked the San Francisco Port Authority to investigate the need for dockside sewer connections for ships. The city also would be required year-round to keep the water pure near Fisherman's Wharf and the Marina in addition to other basins and aquatic parks.

Under the plan, discharges of untreated sewage from communities surrounding the bay would not exceed limits prescribed by drinking water standards set up by the U. S. Public Health Service.

Two Drivers Fined On Alcohol Charges

John William Walton Jr., 48, of Berkeley, was fined $230 and placed on a year's probation Thursday in Marin Municipal Court for drunken driving. California Highway Patrol arrested him Nov. 19 on Highway 101.

Peter Y. Brady, 19, San Francisco, was fined $174 and placed on probation until he is 21, also for drunken driving. Sausalito police arrested him Dec. 11 on Spencer Avenue.

Borrowing For General Fund

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Controller Houston I. Flournoy has announced the state general fund will have to borrow $120 million this month.

The step will bring the total borrowed for the 1966-67 year to $434 million. The controller said $50 million will come from the pooled money investment account, while $70 million will be taken from the surplus money investment fund.

Flournoy described the level of borrowing as "unprecedented." He said it was a legacy inherited from the administration of Gov. Edmund G. Brown.

Scientist On TV

Gerald Talbot, director of the Tiburon Marine Laboratory, will be a guest on the television program "Community Circle" tomorrow over Station KRON, Channel 4, San Francisco, at 10 a.m.

New Finance Post Created In Capitol

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A new $24,336-a-year job in the Finance Department has been created by the Personnel Board.

The post apparently will be filled by Robert Harkness, now director of the General Services Department.

The new job is assistant director of finance for state services. A career civil servant, Harkness has the right to return to his former job of assistant finance director if Gov. Reagan appoints a new general services director.

The naming of Harkness to the new post would head off a chain reaction which would disrupt the Finance Department at the key budget preparation time. The assistant director's job is held by Roy Bell.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

VAN DELLEN

City children are more likely to develop emotional disturbances than those from the country. They do not have as many natural and healthy ways to work out their problems. The country child can retreat into a field or tree and yell or just sit quietly. When angry he can run for miles or throw stones without fear of breaking a window. He has more avenues through which he can release tensions or express joys.

THIS IS A point in favor of more city parks, boys clubs, swimming pools, and athletic programs.

It has been estimated that one of every 10 children has a recognizable emotional problem. The majority could be helped but their conflicts are not recognized so they carry their problems into adulthood. We do not know how many of these youngsters become the future inmates of mental hospitals.

These children are of average intelligence and are not physically handicapped. They can be rich or poor, or black or white.

THE MOST easily recognized are those whose behavior is so disturbing or so atypical that their families and teachers cannot stand to have them around.

At the other extreme are those whose problems are not annoying or obvious because they are quiet and withdrawn. The majority are restless in the classroom and their attention starts to wander within a few minutes after being seated. Some talk, others squirm, clench the fists, or grimace.

NOT EVERYONE with a marked distractability, short attention span and sense of irratability and overactivity has an emotional problem. These symptoms also stem from poor vision or hearing and language deficiencies.

Many of these youngsters improve after receiving the proper psycho-agent. Some need sedatives or tranquilizers whereas others require a stimulant or antidepressant. The best response to drug therapy occurs in overactive children.

WHEN THE parents cannot handle the youngster, a boarding school may be recommended.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the I-J.)

DAMAGED HEART AND SWIMMING

P. S. writes: Can a person with a leaky heart valve as a result of rheumatic fever go swimming?

REPLY

This is an individual problem but in general the person with a damaged heart valve cannot take vigorous activity, in or out of the water. In addition to the physical exertion involved, the effect of cold water and air upon the action of the heart must be considered.

ALLERGY SPASM

N. Z. writes: Could intestinal allergy cause bowel spasm?

REPLY

This possibility exists, although anxiety and coarse foods are more common of spastic bowel. On the other hand, the symptoms of food allergy and spasm are somewhat similar and it may be difficult to distinguish one from the other.

VERTIGO

F. B. writes What makes the bed feel as if it were going around when a person is lying down?

REPLY

The most common cause of this type of dizziness is a disturbance in the labyrinth of the ear. Why not have your symptom investigated?

CREAKY JOINTS

Mrs. S. writes: My husband has been a heavy milk drinker but has decided to cut down because he thinks too much milk makes his bones crack. Is this possible?

REPLY

No. It's old age, and not milk, that makes the old joints creak.

TRY A MONOCLE

B. A. writes: Recently I was fitted with glasses that have blue plastic frames. After wearing them for a few days the skin behind my ears broke out into a rash. I suppose I'm allergic to the frames, because I also have other allergies: hay fever, asthma, and eczema. What can I do?

REPLY

You have a perfect excuse for using a monocle if you are a man or lorgnette if you are a woman. Alternatives would be the prince-nez or metal frames. Apparently you are sensitive to some ingredient in the plastic frames.

Today's Health Hint — Don't mix household cleaners.

Pan Am Donates To Airport Chapel

NEW YORK UPI) — A contribution of $20,000 has been made by Pan American World Airways to the building fund of the Tri-Faith Chapels at John F. Kennedy International Airport. the three major faiths in the United States have built chapels, side by side, on a three-acre site at the airport.

The Catholic and Protestant Chapels are now open and the Jewish Chapel is expected to be dedicated in April. The three faiths are engaged in a united campaign to raise at least $1 million to complete the chapels

Redwoods Presbytery To Meet In Larkspur

The Presbytery of the Redwoods, representing 50 Presbyterian churches along the northern coast of California, will meet Jan. 27 and 28 at Redwoods Presbyterian Church in Larkspur.

Host for the conference will be Rev. Frank S. Hamilton, who was recently elected moderator of the presbytery. He will be installed during opening exercises and will preside at the meetings.

The sessions begin at 1 p.m. on Friday, Jan. 27, and will conclude at noon the following day.

A communion service will highlight the opening day with Rev. Hamilton leading it, and Rev. James M. Brown of Eureka, the outgoing moderator, preaching the sermon.

A major item of business will be voting on the denomination's proposed "Confession of 1967"—a brief contemporary statement of faith intended to up-date the church's present constitution.

Stands would call for the elimination of racial discrimination, backing governmental efforts to eliminate poverty, taking steps to ban nuclear weapons, and advocating the spread of information on family planning.

A spokesman said the changes would be the first since the middle of the 17th Century.

The document is under study by 188 presbyteries throughout the country. It will be voted on by the church's general assembly next May, to be held in Portland, Ore.

REV. FRANK S. HAMILTON
New church moderator

Grace Lutheran Church To Hold Annual Meeting

The annual congregational dinner meeting of Grace Lutheran Church in Novato will be held tomorrow at 6 p.m. At this time, plans for the new year will be adopted.

Following dinner, members will have the opportunity to attend the first voters' meeting of the year.

At this time the new church officers and board chairmen will be introduced, and the presidential gavel will be turned over to William Cramer by Reuben Kaehler, retiring president.

Plans for future activities and programs will be briefly outlined, and the members will also have the opportunity to view a short film dealing with the Missouri Synod's Ebenezer thankoffering program for 1967.

Service Schedule

The early church service at Trinity Lutheran Church, 333 Woodland Avenue, has been moved forward to 8:30 a.m., beginning tomorrow. A second service is held at 10:30 a.m.

Special Unity Week Service

The Faith Lutheran Church, 355 Los Ranchitos Road, will celebrate Christian Unity Week at the 9:30 and 11 a.m. services tomorrow.

In recognition of the special week, Rev. Toivo Harjunpaa, associate professor of historical theology at Pacific Lutheran Seminary and at Theological Union Seminary at Berkeley, is a Bay Area ecumenical leader.

Professor Harjunpaa was born, reared and ordained in Finland where he was chaplain to the Archbishop of Finland and precentor at the Cathedral of Turku.

Rev. Kenneth Reeves, missionary evangelist of the American Board of Missions to the Jews, will give a demonstration of the traditional Jewish Seder Feast (Christ in the Jewish Passover) at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow at the Bethel Baptist Church, 1929 Novato Boulevard.

The table will be set in traditional style and Rev. Reeves will wear the Orthodox Jewish costume.

Reform Judaism To Be Viewed At Convention

The future of Reform Judaism will be discussed at the regional biennial convention of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations at a three-day meeting beginning Jan. 27 in Sacramento.

Delegates from Rodef Sholom of San Rafael will include Rabbi Hoffman and Robert D. Slate, president of the board of directors.

Among the national leaders attending will be Rabbi Maurice N. Eisendrath, UAHC president; Rabbi Erwin L. Herman, national director of regions and Rabbi Malcom Stern, director of rabbinical placement.

Among topics to be covered are prayer book revision and the function of liturgy.

Retreat Meeting

The annual communion breakfast of the Marist Retreat will be held at 9:30 a.m. Sunday, Jan. 29, at St. Peter's Seminary in San Rafael. Annual retreats will start on July 7 and extend through Aug. 18.

Migrant Minister To Talk At Unity Octave Gathering

Churches in Terra Linda and Lucas Valley will continue their Christian Unity Octave tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. with a joint service at St. Isabella's Catholic Church.

Guest speaker will be Rev. Philip Farnham, associate director of the California Migrant Ministry. He will discuss "The Meaning of Delano for the Church and Society." A question and answer session will follow.

Rev. Farnham was the director of the National Farm Workers Assn. consumer's boycott of the DiGiorgio Corp. He began his new job last fall.

Also the guest minister will speak at both the 9 and 10:30 a.m. rites tomorrow at the Terra Linda Aldersgate Methodist Church. His topic will be "The Church and Social Change."

Churches participating in the eight-day observance are Aldersgate Methodist, Christ Presbyterian Church, St. Isabella's, Temple Rodef Sholom and the Episcopal Church of the Nativity.

Joint Worship Group Is Named

CHICAGO (UPI) —An Inter-Lutheran Commission on Worship has been formally constituted by representatives of five North American church bodies as a step toward potential development of common worship materials.

The five bodies represented are the Lutheran Church in America, the American Lutheran Church, the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, the Synod of Evangelical Lutheran Churches and the new Evangelical Lutheran Church of Canada.

Installation Of New Officers

Ordination and installation services for new officers of Sleepy Hollow Presbyterian Church, 100 Terry Road, San Anselmo, will be held at 10:30 a.m. tomorrow.

Seated as elders will be Burton Milnes, Harold McCarty, Wilson Mignery, William Worth and John Rogers.

Deacons to be installed include Mrs. Gerald Curtis, Mrs. Harold Humphrey and Mrs. Jack Patterson.

Conduction the rites will be Rev. Gene Burris, pastor.

Marin As The Gulls See Her

All of Marin County—except for the tips of Point Reyes on the west and Tiburon, San Quentin and San Pedro points on the east—is spread to view in this aerial shot. In the lower right, at the end of Golden Gate Bridge is Fort Baker with its small harbor. The highlands in the foreground, now virtually deserted, may one day hold the planned community of Marincello, spreading from the ridgeline westward toward the ocean. The ridge, itself, running north, serves to divide pastoral West Marin from the more highly developed eastern section. On one side a succession of bays and inlets—Rodeo Lagoon, Tennessee Cove, Stinson Beach and Bolinas Bay, Drake's and Tomales bays. On the other side, the communities of Sausalito, Tamalpais Valley, Mill Valley, Corte Madera and the cities to the north of them. Where the rain falls heaviest is clearly shown by the dark areas with their lush, green vegetation.

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Make The Right Plan And Then Explain Your Action

In some hands the fairly good player is irresistibly tempted to make the wrong play. The average player and the expert make the right play, but for very different reasons.

PLAYS LOW

West leads the six of clubs, and declarer plays low from dummy. If East is a fairly good player he is quite likely to try a finesse with the ten of clubs.

This preserves the king to use whenever dummy's queen is played.

In this case East has a long wait for the next club play. South wins the first trick with the jack of clubs, runs the four spades and the five diamonds and may even try the heart finesse if he wants to add insult to injury.

Even without the heart finesse South has the first eleven tricks.

AVERAGE PLAY

If East is the average bridge player he plays the king of clubs at the first trick. What is the problem? He has been taught to play "third hand high," and his automatic play works well in this case since a club return gives the defenders the first six tricks.

If East is an expert he plays the king of clubs at the first trick for two reasons.

First, the situation is pretty hopeless unless West has led from a long club suit headed by the ace or ace-jack. Second, South doesn't hold the ace of clubs because if he did have A-x or A-x-x of clubs, or the like, he would play dummy's queen of clubs at the first trick.

CORRECT PLAY

If you make the correct play in a situation of this kind, don't be too quick to give your reasons. You might make it clear that you were just an average player. Your best bet is to smile a superior smile and say that an expert makes the right play and leaves it to others to work out the reasons.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with 1 no trump (16 to 18 points), and the next player passes.

You hold.

♣ A 9 8 6 4 3.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass.

Your partner will probably do pretty well at notrump, and there is no compelling reason to think that you will do better at clubs. If you use the Stayman Convention, you cannot play the hand at two clubs because that asks your partner to bid a major suit; your first resting place is three clubs, which may not be a great bargain.

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, Jan. 21, the 21st day of 1967 with 344 to follow.

The moon is approaching the full stage. The morning stars are Mars and Jupiter. The evening stars are Venus, Saturn and Jupiter.

French fashion designer Christian Dior was born on this day in 1905.

On this day in history:

In 1861, Jefferson Davis resigned from the U.S. Senate, 12 days before Mississippi seceded from the Union.

In 1918, the Soviet Council ruled all debts incurred by the former Russian czarist government null and void.

In 1965, Indonesia formally resigned from the United Nations.

A Thought for the Day — Former U.S. President Harry Truman said, "The responsibility of the great states is to serve and not dominate the world."

TIME AND TIDE

Department of Commerce, United States Coast Geodetic Survey, Western District headquarters. Times and heights of tides at San Francisco (Golden Gate):

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

Make The Right Plan And Then Explain Your Action

PLAYS LOW

West leads the six of clubs, and declarer plays low from dummy. If East is a fairly good player he is quite likely to try a finesse with the ten of clubs.

This preserves the king to use whenever dummy's queen is played.

In this case East has a long wait for the next club play. South wins the first trick with the jack of clubs, runs the four spades and the five diamonds and may even try the heart finesse if he wants to add insult to injury.

Even without the heart finesse South has the first eleven tricks.

AVERAGE PLAY

If East is the average bridge player he plays the king of clubs at the first trick. What is the problem? He has been taught to play "third hand high," and his automatic play works well in this case since a club return gives the defenders the first six tricks.

If East is an expert he plays the king of clubs at the first trick for two reasons.

First, the situation is pretty hopeless unless West has led from a long club suit headed by the ace or ace-jack. Second, South doesn't hold the ace of clubs because if he did have A-x or A-x-x of clubs, or the like, he would play dummy's queen of clubs at the first trick.

CORRECT PLAY

If you make the correct play in a situation of this kind, don't be too quick to give your reasons. You might make it clear that you were just an average player. Your best bet is to smile a superior smile and say that an expert makes the right play and leaves it to others to work out the reasons.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with 1 no trump (16 to 18 points), and the next player passes.

You hold.

♣ A 9 8 6 4 3.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass.

Your partner will probably do pretty well at notrump, and there is no compelling reason to think that you will do better at clubs. If you use the Stayman Convention, you cannot play the hand at two clubs because that asks your partner to bid a major suit; your first resting place is three clubs, which may not be a great bargain.

AVERAGE PLAY

If East is the average bridge player he plays the king of clubs at the first trick. What is the problem? He has been taught to play "third hand high," and his automatic play works well in this case since a club return gives the defenders the first six tricks.

If East is an expert he plays the king of clubs at the first trick for two reasons.

First, the situation is pretty hopeless unless West has led from a long club suit headed by the ace or ace-jack. Second, South doesn't hold the ace of clubs because if he did have A-x or A-x-x of clubs, or the like, he would play dummy's queen of clubs at the first trick.

CORRECT PLAY

If you make the correct play in a situation of this kind, don't be too quick to give your reasons. You might make it clear that you were just an average player. Your best bet is to smile a superior smile and say that an expert makes the right play and leaves it to others to work out the reasons.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with 1 no trump (16 to 18 points), and the next player passes.

You hold.

♣ A 9 8 6 4 3.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass.

Your partner will probably do pretty well at notrump, and there is no compelling reason to think that you will do better at clubs. If you use the Stayman Convention, you cannot play the hand at two clubs because that asks your partner to bid a major suit; your first resting place is three clubs, which may not be a great bargain.

Baker Invokes 'Best Friends' In Testimony

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bobby Baker, after fervently denying he pocketed $80,000 of senatorial campaign funds, plans to offer further testimony next week in his U.S. District Court trial.

His appearance on the witness stand yesterday was marked by reference to his "best friends" on Capitol Hill—Lyndon B. Johnson and the late Sen. Robert S. Kerr, D-Okla.

The former secretary to Senate Democrats, on trial for larceny, tax evasion and conspiracy, said that in 1962 he needed money because of problems in building the Carousel Motel in Ocean City, Md.

He testified he took his problem "to the best friend I had around the Capitol, the then vice president." Johnson was vice president at the time.

"He picked up the phone," Baker said, "called his friend and my friend, Sen. Kerr, and then advised me to go see Sen. Kerr, which I did immediately."

The result, he said, was that the multimillionaire Kerr arranged a $250,000 loan for him from an Oklahoma City bank and pledged a $50,000 iersonal loan which Kerr gave him in installments.

The White House declined to comment on Baker's testimony.

New Regional Postal Chief

WASHINGTON (AP)—Former Rep. Kenneth W. Dyal, D-Calif., was sworn in yesterday as the Post Office Department's San Francisco regional director.

Dyal was postmaster at San Bernardino, from 1947 to 1954. He was a mail carrier earlier.

Dyal succeeds Raymond R. Holmquist, now regional program coordinator for the 12 states in the San Francisco, Seattle and Denver regions.

The San Francisco region includes 1,400 post offices and 78,000 postal employees. Dyal's pay will be $28,500 a year.

Amazing Nicklaus Becomes Hacker, But Still Leads

Independent-Journal Sports

THIRD SECTION Sat., Jan. 21, 1967 21

By JACK STEVENSON

PEBBLE BEACH (AP) — Winner of the U.S. Open, the Masters and the PGA Tournament, big Jack Nicklaus surprised everyone including himself with three straight double bogeys in the Bing Crosby Golf Tournament.

Even more amazing, Jack, who celebrates his 27th birthday today, leads the $104,500 tournament by two strokes.

"I can't recall ever getting three double bogeys in a row since I was 10 years old," the Ohio slugger commented after blowing six of his eight-stroke lead yesterday in the gale winds at Cypress Point.

"I am very fortunate. When you have three double bogeys and still are out in front, you are just plain lucky."

Big Jack finished with a one-over-par 73 and 36-hole total of 142 on a day when only three of the 168 pros broke par. He's the only one under regulation figures at the halfway point.

Cypress Point, Pebble Beach and Spyglass Hill each plays to a par 72, and by tonight all the pros and their amateur partners will have toured all three.

Gale winds and occasional rain whipped through the Monterey Peninsula yesterday, a day when a tremendous first nine by Nicklaus might have encouraged duffers to give up the game. He then proved even the great can blow up when he went two over par on each of the 15th, 16th and 17th holes.

Trying to explain his double bogey triplets, big Jack said:

"I went on hitting my shots one after another and they kept going astray.

"Up to the 15th hole, I had hit 32 consecutive greens in regulation figures but there, on that little 122-yard, trap-surrounded short hole, my tee shot buried deep in the top of a sand bunker in front of the green.

"I barely wedged out, ran 10 feet past the cup and missed my putt."

Nicklaus carded a five on the par three test.

Then he came to the treacherous hole where a golfer can either hit his tee shot over the ocean on a direct line or go around the long way by land. The late Porky Oliver once had a 16 on this par three, 222-yard demon. Hans Merrill, a lesser known pro, beat that with a 19 in another Crosby tournament.

"I played it safe, shooting at the big cypress tree 35 yards to the left of the water," Nicklaus continued in a calm dissertation to newsmen. "The wind ballooned my ball to the right over the seacliff into the water."

It was unplayable, and he had to drop and take a stroke penalty. His pitch to the green wound up 10 feet from the hole and he missed the putt.

Nicklaus slammed a long drive on the 367-yard, par four 17th only to have the ball land among cypress trees.

He hit a nine iron out after taking a penalty shot.

Next he sliced a No. 4 iron to the green, 25 feet from the hole and took two putts.

Unrattled, Nicklaus nevertheless hit his tee shot on the 18th to the edge of some trees. "I was locked up tight," he said. "And I had to gamble."

He hit through branches to the green and two-putted for his par.

Meanwhile, Arnold Palmer wound up with a 75 and 149, saying the wind on the Pebble Beach ocean holes nearly blew him off his footing. U.S. Open champion Billy Casper had 74 at Spyglass Hill and 146. And Joe Carr, the unknown who led the first day with 68, disappeared again with an 82.

My Daredevil Candidates For Riverside 500-Miler

RIVERSIDE — Tomorrow, at the Riverside Raceway, it says here, 44 of the world's foremost automotive daredevils will vie in a 500-mile stock car race.

I hate to spoil a good story, but A. J. Foyt, Parnelli Jones, David Pearson, et al, don't fit the description at all.

Accordingly, I would like to beef up the field with a few candidates of my own.

LIKE THE GUY in the station wagon on New Year's morning who went around a blind curve on Sunset Blvd. with overhanging foliage and, then, when he got around it, BACKED up onto oncoming traffic. He had three little girls in the back window of the station wagon at the time.

To this guy, I would give the pole.

Other qualifiers who would bump A. J. Parnelli & Co. off the starting grid would be:

GRANDPA NODDINGHEAD—This grand old man of stock car racing has a 1927 Whippet whose accelerator sticks. He's 102 years old and holds the world's record for running red lights. This is because he suffers not only from night blindness, but day blindness, and color blindness. If he walks anywhere, he takes a white cane. But to drive, he won't even wear glasses. He gets his license in a state where all you have to do to qualify is frost a mirror. In fact, they're so lax, one time a guy came in to get a hearse license and they gave it to the corpse by mistake. And, you know something? That corpse drives better than Grandpa Noddinghead, who also holds the world record for the most consecutive miles driven while sound asleep or while dozing off.

SUICIDE SMITH—One of the world's most feared characters behind the wheel since General Rommel. Suicide has just had a fight with his boss, his wife has left him, the car isn't paid for, and is behind 10 payments in fact, the right rear wheel has only two lugs in it, and he hasn't had the brakes looked at in over 100,000 miles. You could read small print through the tires, and Suicide has just lost $10,000 at the crap table, $5,000 of which was the bank's, and the other five was taken from his wife's cancer fund drive. Suicide is behind the wheel for the same reason a guy is on a hotel ledge, and you put him in a back row because he wants to make it look like an accident. If he broadsides the car in front of the field, the insurance won't pay off.

PROFESSOR A. M. NESIA—The good professor is a familiar freeway type—the all-purpose day-dreamer. Professor is so absent-minded, he took his wife to dinner and then whispered, "Let's get a booth in the back in case my wife comes in." He can distinguish colors all right, but keeps forgetting which means "Go" and which means "Stop." This frequently results in causing 53-car pileups at stop lights because the Prof is the only guy in his neighborhood to hit a "Go" light at 40 miles-per-hour and jam on the brakes. Sometimes, he forgets which one is the brake and which one's the accelerator. Which makes his parking jobs interesting. There are parts of parking attendants all over his fenders.

MABEL ANN SNAIL—Mabel could walk faster than she drives. She hugs the center lane, talks with her hands, and puts her lipstick on in the rearview mirror only when she sees she has stacked up 20 cars behind her. She's famous for her home-made jams. She has made the greatest jams in Wilshire Blvd. history. When she wants to go right from the center lane, she does not edge over three blocks ahead of time but three inches too late. This means the inside lanes not only have to let her over, but have to back up. She has wrecked more vehicles than the Battle of the Bulge. She is like the movie company mogul who said, "I don't get ulcers, I give them." She doesn't get in accidents, she causes them. We'll put her in the pace car, and the race won't be over till Mothers' Day.

THIRSTY GALORE—Old Thirsty, whose license number is 502, has more high octane in his stomach than in his gas tank. He gets his bar re-sanded every two weeks, but hasn't had his car in for a check-up in a decade. His front wheels are out

Driver Is Killed At Riverside

RIVERSIDE (AP) — Qualifying concludes today for the $85,000 Motor Trend 500 for stock cars at Riverside International Raceway — where driver Billy Foster lost his life in a careening smash-up.

Foster, 29, of Victoria, B.C., was killed instantly yesterday when his 1967 Dodge Charger slammed against a retaining wall at an estimated 135 miles an hour.

Dr. Irving Omphroy, the track physician, said Foster's helmet probably struck the wall as his car hit the barrier. Foster died instantly of head injuries, the doctor said.

The apparent cause of the fatal crash was brake drum failure, a track spokesman said. He said Foster's car, owned by Rudy Hoerr of Peoria, Ill., was equipped with special racing brake drums.

Foster qualified ninth Thursday, averaging 105.297 m.p.h. around the 2.7-mile, nine-turn course. The 10th qualifier, Jerry Grant of Escondido, will move into the No. 9 starting position.

Five more drivers qualified yesterday for positions No. 10 through 14.

They were: Lee Roy Yarbrough of Jacksonville, Fla., 106.009 m.p.h. in a 1966 Dodge Charger; Paul Goldsmith, of Munster, Ind., 105.149 m.p.h. in a 1966 Plymouth; Don White, of Keokuk, Iowa, 104.865 m.p.h. in a 1966 Dodge Charger; Jim Paschal, of High Point, N.C., 104.511 m.p.h. in a 1966 Plymouth, and Curtis Turner, of Charlotte, N.C., 104.146 m.p.h. in a 1967 Mercury.

The additional 30 starting places are scheduled to be filled today, completing the field of 44 drivers.

Foster began his racing career in 1955 around Victoria. In 1965, he joined the USAC stock car circuit and was honored as the stock car driver rookie of the year. He also raced twice in the Indianapolis 500.

Schafer Leads Indians, 49 To 47

Packed House Watches Buc Rally Fall Short

By GARY TISCHLER

Pat Schafer, a slender, 6-3 junior center for Tamalpais High School's basketball team, came of age last night in the Indians' jam-packed roaring gym.

And Drake's Pirates, the defending champions of the Marin County Athletic League, found that you cannot expect one man, no matter how big or how good, to always win a game all by his lonesome, even though he gives it a clutch try.

Schafer and Jerry Sprout, Drake's 6-6, 235-pound center, fought a stirring duel under the boards to a near standoff, with Sprout winning the scoring duel and Schafer the battle of the rebounds, as the Indians barely held off a desperate Pirate rally to pull out a 49-47 victory and sole possession of the MCAL lead in a clash of unbeatens.

The Indians almost blew an 11-point lead with less than two minutes remaining as Drake threw up a scrambling, frantic full court press that almost brought the Pirates even, only to fall short by five feet and some free throws.

EXCELLENT POSITION

Schafer, a top "B" team player last year, was expected to be taught some painful lessons in the fine art of boardsmanship by Sprout, but he looked as if he had already crammed for the test. Getting excellent position throughout the night, Schafer outrebounded Sprout, 16-10, scooped up second shots and dumped in a couple of jumps over Sprout to wind up with 21 points, 9 in the first quarter. He hit on 8 of 12 shots from the field.

Schafer could not stop Sprout. The all-league tackle, a fine shooter from 15 feet and closer, dumped in 25 points, hit on 10 of 15 from the field in a valiant try to keep his team in the battle. But the rest of the Pirates could come up with only 8 of 29 field goal attempts, and Chet Carlisle, who had averaged 13 points per game, managed only 7.

THE DIFFERENCE

That was the difference in the ball game. Schafer got clutch help from backcourt ace Steve Woodward, who, held to four points by a skin-tight defensive job of Stu Clemons in the first half, exploded for 14 of the Indians' 25 points in the second half as he drove and shot the Pirates silly despite a shallow night at the free-throw line where he hit on only four of nine.

The winning points proved to be a jumper by Schafer over Sprout's outstretched hands with two minutes left. That gave the Indians a 48-37 lead and a free throw by Woodward looked like just so much icing. But the cake was not in the oven yet.

Drake, which had not seen the lead since the first quarter when it was on top by 11-9, got its champion dander up with the game all but lost. The Pirates threw up the press for the first time in league play, came up with six straight free throws, missing two amidst the shrill hoots and whistles to cut the gap to 49-44 with 30 seconds left. Another Tam miscue off the press gave Karl Stein a driving bucket for a 49-45 score. Stein again stole the ball, then dumped in a missed shot to cut it to two points with five seconds left.

But Woodward lofted an out-of-bounds pass high in the air with five seconds left and by the time it came down, Sprout only had time for a desperate 40-footer which fell short by five feet.

Warriors Turn Back Hawks

Despite playing without starting guard Paul Neumann, the first-place San Francisco Warriors increased their Western Division lead over the St. Louis Hawks to 9½ games.

Neumann sat out last night's National Basketball Assn. contest because of the flu but the rest of the Warriors guards picked up the slack in beating St. Louis 142-115 in San Rrancisco.

Al Attles, Jeff Mullins and Jim King each had hot streaks in the backcourt as the Warriors took a quick lead in the third period.

Mullins finished with 22 points, high for the guard threesome. But all triggered fast breaks with timely steals as giant Nate Thurmond sealed off the middle and smothered Zelmo Beaty, who scored only five points.

Rick Barry led scorers with 27 points for San Francisco. Rod Thorn and Lou Hudson each scored 22 for the losing Hawks.

San Rafael High's frosh cage team nipped its Terra Linda counterparts 41-38 yesterday evening at Terra Linda to increase its Marin County Athletic League record to 3-2 while handing the Trojanbabes their second loss in four starts.

Singer Involved In New Oakland Pro Cage Team

OAKLAND (AP) — Singer Pat Boone, it was disclosed yesterday, will be one of three owners of the proposed Oakland franchise of the planned professional American Basketball Assn.

"Yes, I'm involved in the franchise for an Oakland basketball team and I'm very excited about it," Boone said.

The league would operate in competition to the National Basketball Assn.

Baker Invokes 'Best Friends' In Testimony

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bobby Baker, after fervently denying he pocketed $80,000 of senatorial campaign funds, plans to offer further testimony next week in his U.S. District Court trial.

His appearance on the witness stand yesterday was marked by reference to his "best friends" on Capitol Hill—Lyndon B. Johnson and the late Sen. Robert S. Kerr, D-Okla.

The former secretary to Senate Democrats, on trial for larceny, tax evasion and conspiracy, said that in 1962 he needed money because of problems in building the Carousel Motel in Ocean City, Md.

He testified he took his problem "to the best friend I had around the Capitol, the then vice president." Johnson was vice president at the time.

"He picked up the phone," Baker said, "called his friend and my friend, Sen. Kerr, and then advised me to go see Sen. Kerr, which I did immediately."

The result, he said, was that the multimillionaire Kerr arranged a $250,000 loan for him from an Oklahoma City bank and pledged a $50,000 iersonal loan which Kerr gave him in installments.

The White House declined to comment on Baker's testimony.

Visconti's Brilliant Rally Wins Figure Skating Title

Scott Allen Is Dethroned In Nationals

By JERRY LISKA

Visconti's brilliant free skating rally last night led the 5-foot-3 junior college stylist to his second dethroning of 17-year-old Scott Allen in three years.

Last night's victories by Visconti and smooth gold dance team of Lorna Dyer and John Carrell of Seattle, Wash., left five championships to be decided in today's windup of the four-day national meet.

Two titles were considered already in the bag — the women's singles diadem by three-time winner Peggy Fleming, 18, of Colorado Springs, the reigning world champion, and the senior pairs crown by defending champions Cynthia and Ronald Kauffman, youthful sister-brother team from Seattle.

Both Miss Fleming and the Kauffmans completely dominated earlier compulsory figures and were regarded as shoo-ins in the free style finals.

The novice championships for men and women were to be settled this afternoon, and the silver dance finals along with the senior women and senior pair finals will be held tonight.

Visconti's strong free style finish came after Allen built a slight lead in Thursday's compulsory figures.

Visconti, last to free skate in the nine-man senior field, was a confident and graceful performer from start to finish in his five-minute program which brought a one-minute ovation from the crowd of 6,100 at Ak-Sar-Ben Coliseum.

Allen, whose free skating appeared a little below par, and Visconti each wound up with two first place votes from the five judges in the overall scoring. But the 120-pound Visconti collected second place votes from all three other judges while Allen's other votes were one each for second, third and fourth.

Visconti executed several crisp double axels and double lutz's and his blurring spin finish brought a roar from the crowd.

"In the middle of my fourth minute, I told myself 'I'm gonna win. I'm gonna win,' " Visconti said.

"I can do three different triple jumps, but it was too close tonight and I didn't want to take a chance of making the same mistake I did last year when I fell on a triple toe loop."

Allen politely said. "I was very pleased with my overall performance, but Visconti was skating very well."

The next two finishers, third place Tim Wood of Detroit and J. Misha Petkevich of Great Falls, Mont., said in agreement: "It was a very close competition, but Gary just went out and did better."

38 YEARS LATE, BUT O'Doul Gets Award

NEW YORK (AP)—Lefty O'Doul, the 69-year-old boulevardier from San Francisco who once played for all three New York teams, was named today the recipient of the New York Baseball Writers' Assn. Retroactive Player of the Year Award.

The slugging outfielder of the 1920s and 1930s will be the seventh player to receive the award established by the New York Chapter to honor veterans who never got the recognition they received during their active major league days.

He is being honored specifically for the 1929 season with the Philadelphia Phillies, one of five big league teams with whom he played when he batted .398 to lead the majors. He had a lifetime batting average of .348.

String At Marin; Ace In The Hole

Marin Country Club's nine-hole string tournament ended in a three-way snarl for low net honors in the Class A division this week.

Mesdames R. K. Childress, Axel Mikkelsen and J. R. Long all came up with 41s to tie for top honors.

The B division wound up in a two-way deadlock with Mmes. Walter Kessler and Carl Johnson both carding 44s. Next was Mrs. H. D. Fifer at 45 and Mrs. Mort Weiss at 46. Mrs. A. H. McConnell took low net honors in the C division with a 47 followed by Mrs. H. C. H. Rossi with a 49.

AT THE MILL VALLEY Golf Course, Syl Auteri of San Mateo fired a hole-in-one last week on the 134-yard eighth hole. He used a nine iron. The witnesses in his foursome were Byron Eggleston, Phil Lindsay, and Tom Wallace.

Seals Bow To Canucks

VICTORIA, B.C. (AP)—With their seven-game victory streak shattered, the California Seals moved into Victoria for a game tonight against the Maple Leafs.

The Vancouver Canucks not only beat California 2-1 last night, but moved into a second-place tie with the Seals in the Western Hockey League standings.

Larry Cahan scored quickly for the Canucks, slapping a wrist shot past Seals' goalie Jack McCartan 89 seconds after the game began. About 11 minutes later, Larry Popein made it 2-0.

Forbes Kennedy scored the last goal of the evening before the end of the first period and the Seals spent the remainder of the contest unsuccessfully trying to penetrate the Vancouver defense.

NFL Stars Clash On Television

LOS ANGELES (AP)— The 17th annual Pro Bowl football game — and it may be the last in its present form — takes over the grid scene tomorrow with the best of the National Football League on display in Memorial Coliseum.

It's East versus West as stars of the Eastern and Western conferences of the NFL go into action before a hoped-for-crowd of 50,000 and a national television audience.

CBS does the television with the kickoff set for 1:05 p.m., P.S.T. Los Angeles and a radius of 75 miles are screened out.

This is a prestige game for the players who are selected to play by the NFL coches, an honor that has significance when talking next season's contracts with the club bosses.

Coach George Allen of the Los Angeles Rams, the West's coach, named Baltimore's famed Johnny Unitas to lead off at quarterback, but Green Bay's equally celebrated Bart Starr won't be long coming on the scene.

Coach Tom Landry of the Dallas Cowboys, the East's guardian, selected his own quarterback, Don Meredith, to start, but as with the other team, Frank Ryan of the Cleveland Browns will share the honors.

Generally the Pro Bowl games are wide open since the coaches don't have too much time to perfect defenses.

Last year it was all wide open —for the East as Blanton Collier's warriors, behind Ryan, romped away, 34-7.

The talent, needless to say, is abundant.

The West offers Deacon Jones, Merlin Olsen, Roger Brown, Willie Davis, Dave Robinson, Dick Butkus and Maxie Baughan.

The West is favored by 3 points and part of this may well be due to the presence of eight of the world champion Green Bay Packers on its squad.

Independent-Journal Sports

SANTA ROSA—Smooth-driving Bob Phillips and substitute Russ Williams ignited two College of Marin flurries and Terry Overlid commandeered the boards to lead the Tars to a run away 103-82 victory over Napa in a Golden Valley Conference clash here last night.

Phillips, despite early foul trouble, sparked a Tar outburst late in the second half that turned a six-point lead into a fifteen-point advantage and chilled Napa's ace guard George Lambrecht, an All-conference honorable mention and third-best scorer in the league last year, to a five point performance.

Phillips finished with 21 points, tops for the Tars, followed by steady guard Bill Pandiani's 21 points.

In all, five Tars hit in double figures, with Overlid adding 16 points and Russ Smith and Williams 14 each. The fifth Tar starter, Tom Stetson had nine points.

Overlid took over on the boards with 13 rebounds and helped Marin pull away in the second half with a scoring flurry.

Williams, with Pandiani and Phillips in foul trouble in the first half, came off the bench with the Tars nursing a five-point margin, and scored eight quick points to give Marin its first big margin.

"Phillips was our money man," Tar coach Cal Riemcke said. "He did a fine job on Lambrecht and came through with the points when we needed them."

The victory gave the league-leading Tars a 5-1 Western Division record in the Golden Valley while Napa is 1-4. The Tars now have an 11-9 record for the season.

Giants, Trojans Win Big

Terra Linda Overpowers San Rafael

By RALPH CHATOIAN

When you talk about improvement, you're talking about the Terra Linda High School Trojan basketball team.

What was expected to be a close game against San Rafael High School last night in the Terra Linda gym turned out to be a rout, the Trojans dumping the Bulldogs 78-45.

Led by Fred Smith and Bruce Kilby, the Trojans ruled from start to finish. It was 21-12 at the first quarter 37-27 at intermission. And when Kilby and Smith teamed up for 13 points in the third quarter, it pushed Terra Linda in front by 21, 56-35.

Smith scored 25 points, including 11 of 20 from the field, before he was taken out of the game with 4 minutes and 55 seconds still remaining on the clock. Score then was 66-39.

TOP REBOUNDERS

Kilby, who left the game a few seconds ahead of Smith, scored 15 points and teammate Paul Lee helped out with 12. Terra Linda outhustled the Bulldogs on the boards, led by its scoring duo, Smith and Kilby. Smith pulled down 11 rebounds and Kilby had 9. Kilby was getting most of his buckets on tip-ins, while Smith was hitting both close and far.

Top scorers for San Rafael were Rich Schau and Chip Tyson, each with 12 points. Roger Widmer, about the only Bulldog who was able to drive in for shots, had 9 points.

Meanwhile, Terra Linda was shooting from everywhere, with everyone on the team getting a chance to score. Almost all of them did as 11 Trojans hit the scoring column. And not too many shots missed their mark, Terra Linda hitting 35 of 67 tries, a whopping percentage of .520. From the floor, Terra Linda was 67 per cent (8x12). San Rafael went 19 for 62, 30 per cent from the field, and 7 for 14, 50 per cent from the line.

Novato Bows In Practice Cage, 65-51

Novato High School's basketball team, winless in Marin athletic League play, tried a non-league opponent last night at Novato and lost, 65-51, to Cardinal Newman of San Rosa.

The Hornets, playing on their own court, beat the visitors from the floor, 20 buckets to 19, but took a pasting from the free throw line, the Cardinal Newman quint making 27 of 42 free throws to 11 of 22 for Novato.

John Howard led Novato's scoring with 17 points, but the Hornets had to play from behind throughout the game.

Redwood Just Too Big For Marin Catholic '5'

By BOB HARVEY

The towering Redwood Giants were just too big and sharp for the tiny, slumping Wildcats of Marin Catholic.

And they used that advantage to hammer out a 51-35 victory last night to increase their Marin County Athletic League basketball record to 3-2 as some 750 fans watched in awe at Marin Catholic.

Thus the Giants of coach Dick Hart now are third in the loop standings, while the Cats, after breezing along with the most impressive non-league mark, dwell close to the cellar at 1-2.

Andre Horn, the game's leading scorer (17), pumped in two quickies and the victors were off in a hurry.

The diminutive 5-9 playmaker proceeded to be a thorn in Marin Catholic's hide all night, darting in for nine rebounds to finish second in that department.

But he had lots of help from the likes of 5-11 guard Barry Stockwell and Jim Marc, Tom Seidenberg and Al Fritz, all 6-5. Fritz, who didn't even make his appearance until the second half, came on to snare 10 rebounds. He didn't score, but was a stalwart defensively.

The Cats were way off form from the field (only 4x24 in the second half) and were handicapped by their lack of height with 6-2 center Ches Bornia their tallest player.

Hart singled out no one but of course had praise for Horn, Fritz and Fritzhenry, the latter for his passing and feeding. "We played as a team better tonight than we have all year," he added, noting that Redwood's sizzling 51 per cent did not hurt things either.

Bornia finished with just 5 points but must have had most of Marin's 36 rebounds and played an outstanding game along with Paul Vickers, Rick Garms and high-point man Paul McCarthy (12).

Amazing Nicklaus Becomes Hacker, But Still Leads

By JACK STEVENSON

PEBBLE BEACH (AP) — Winner of the U.S. Open, the Masters and the PGA Tournament, big Jack Nicklaus surprised everyone including himself with three straight double bogeys in the Bing Crosby Golf Tournament.

Even more amazing, Jack, who celebrates his 27th birthday today, leads the $104,500 tournament by two strokes.

"I can't recall ever getting three double bogeys in a row since I was 10 years old," the Ohio slugger commented after blowing six of his eight-stroke lead yesterday in the gale winds at Cypress Point.

"I am very fortunate. When you have three double bogeys and still are out in front, you are just plain lucky."

Big Jack finished with a one-over-par 73 and 36-hole total of 142 on a day when only three of the 168 pros broke par. He's the only one under regulation figures at the halfway point.

Cypress Point, Pebble Beach and Spyglass Hill each plays to a par 72, and by tonight all the pros and their amateur partners will have toured all three.

Gale winds and occasional rain whipped through the Monterey Peninsula yesterday, a day when a tremendous first nine by Nicklaus might have encouraged duffers to give up the game. He then proved even the great can blow up when he went two over par on each of the 15th, 16th and 17th holes.

Trying to explain his double bogey triplets, big Jack said:

"I went on hitting my shots one after another and they kept going astray.

"Up to the 15th hole, I had hit 32 consecutive greens in regulation figures but there, on that little 122-yard, trap-surrounded short hole, my tee shot buried deep in the top of a sand bunker in front of the green.

"I barely wedged out, ran 10 feet past the cup and missed my putt."

Nicklaus carded a five on the par three test.

Then he came to the treacherous hole where a golfer can either hit his tee shot over the ocean on a direct line or go around the long way by land. The late Porky Oliver once had a 16 on this par three, 222-yard demon. Hans Merrill, a lesser known pro, beat that with a 19 in another Crosby tournament.

"I played it safe, shooting at the big cypress tree 35 yards to the left of the water," Nicklaus continued in a calm dissertation to newsmen. "The wind ballooned my ball to the right over the seacliff into the water."

It was unplayable, and he had to drop and take a stroke penalty. His pitch to the green wound up 10 feet from the hole and he missed the putt.

Nicklaus slammed a long drive on the 367-yard, par four 17th only to have the ball land among cypress trees.

He hit a nine iron out after taking a penalty shot.

Next he sliced a No. 4 iron to the green, 25 feet from the hole and took two putts.

Unrattled, Nicklaus nevertheless hit his tee shot on the 18th to the edge of some trees. "I was locked up tight," he said. "And I had to gamble."

He hit through branches to the green and two-putted for his par.

Meanwhile, Arnold Palmer wound up with a 75 and 149, saying the wind on the Pebble Beach ocean holes nearly blew him off his footing. U.S. Open champion Billy Casper had 74 at Spyglass Hill and 146. And Joe Carr, the unknown who led the first day with 68, disappeared again with an 82.

My Daredevil Candidates For Riverside 500-Miler

RIVERSIDE — Tomorrow, at the Riverside Raceway, it says here, 44 of the world's foremost automotive daredevils will vie in a 500-mile stock car race.

I hate to spoil a good story, but A. J. Foyt, Parnelli Jones, David Pearson, et al, don't fit the description at all.

Accordingly, I would like to beef up the field with a few candidates of my own.

LIKE THE GUY in the station wagon on New Year's morning who went around a blind curve on Sunset Blvd. with overhanging foliage and, then, when he got around it, BACKED up onto oncoming traffic. He had three little girls in the back window of the station wagon at the time.

To this guy, I would give the pole.

GRANDPA NODDINGHEAD—This grand old man of stock car racing has a 1927 Whippet whose accelerator sticks. He's 102 years old and holds the world's record for running red lights. This is because he suffers not only from night blindness, but day blindness, and color blindness. If he walks anywhere, he takes a white cane. But to drive, he won't even wear glasses. He gets his license in a state where all you have to do to qualify is frost a mirror. In fact, they're so lax, one time a guy came in to get a hearse license and they gave it to the corpse by mistake. And, you know something? That corpse drives better than Grandpa Noddinghead, who also holds the world record for the most consecutive miles driven while sound asleep or while dozing off.

SUICIDE SMITH—One of the world's most feared characters behind the wheel since General Rommel. Suicide has just had a fight with his boss, his wife has left him, the car isn't paid for, and is behind 10 payments in fact, the right rear wheel has only two lugs in it, and he hasn't had the brakes looked at in over 100,000 miles. You could read small print through the tires, and Suicide has just lost $10,000 at the crap table, $5,000 of which was the bank's, and the other five was taken from his wife's cancer fund drive. Suicide is behind the wheel for the same reason a guy is on a hotel ledge, and you put him in a back row because he wants to make it look like an accident. If he broadsides the car in front of the field, the insurance won't pay off.

PROFESSOR A. M. NESIA—The good professor is a familiar freeway type—the all-purpose day-dreamer. Professor is so absent-minded, he took his wife to dinner and then whispered, "Let's get a booth in the back in case my wife comes in." He can distinguish colors all right, but keeps forgetting which means "Go" and which means "Stop." This frequently results in causing 53-car pileups at stop lights because the Prof is the only guy in his neighborhood to hit a "Go" light at 40 miles-per-hour and jam on the brakes. Sometimes, he forgets which one is the brake and which one's the accelerator. Which makes his parking jobs interesting. There are parts of parking attendants all over his fenders.

MABEL ANN SNAIL—Mabel could walk faster than she drives. She hugs the center lane, talks with her hands, and puts her lipstick on in the rearview mirror only when she sees she has stacked up 20 cars behind her. She's famous for her homemade jams. She has made the greatest jams in Wilshire Blvd. history. When she wants to go right from the center lane, she does not edge over three blocks ahead of time but three inches too late. This means the inside lanes not only have to let her over, but have to back up. She has wrecked more vehicles than the Battle of the Bulge. She is like the movie company mogul who said, "I don't get ulcers, I give them." She doesn't get in accidents, she causes them. We'll put her in the pace car, and the race won't be over till Mothers' Day.

THIRSTY GALORE—Old Thirsty, whose license number is 502, has more high octane in his stomach than in his gas tank. He gets his bar re-sanded every two weeks, but hasn't had his car in for a check-up in a decade. His front wheels are out

RIVERSIDE (AP) — Qualifying concludes today for the $85,000 Motor Trend 500 for stock cars at Riverside International Raceway — where driver Billy Foster lost his life in a careening smash-up.

Foster, 29, of Victoria, B.C., was killed instantly yesterday when his 1967 Dodge Charger slammed against a retaining wall at an estimated 135 miles an hour.

Dr. Irving Omphroy, the track physician, said Foster's helmet probably struck the wall as his car hit the barrier. Foster died instantly of head injuries, the doctor said.

The apparent cause of the fatal crash was brake drum failure, a track spokesman said. He said Foster's car, owned by Rudy Hoerr of Peoria, Ill., was equipped with special racing brake drums.

Foster qualified ninth Thursday, averaging 105.297 m.p.h. around the 2.7-mile, nine-turn course. The 10th qualifier, Jerry Grant of Escondido, will move into the No. 9 starting position.

Five more drivers qualified yesterday for positions No. 10 through 14.

They were: Lee Roy Yarbrough of Jacksonville, Fla., 106.009 m.p.h. in a 1966 Dodge Charger; Paul Goldsmith, of Munster, Ind., 105.149 m.p.h. in a 1966 Plymouth; Don White, of Keokuk, Iowa, 104.865 m.p.h. in a 1966 Dodge Charger; Jim Paschal, of High Point, N.C., 104.511 m.p.h. in a 1966 Plymouth, and Curtis Turner, of Charlotte, N.C., 104.146 m.p.h. in a 1967 Mercury.

The additional 30 starting places are scheduled to be filled today, completing the field of 44 drivers.

Foster began his racing career in 1955 around Victoria. In 1965, he joined the USAC stock car circuit and was honored as the stock car driver rookie of the year. He also raced twice in the Indianapolis 500.

Schafer Leads Indians, 49 To 47

Packed House Watches Buc Rally Fall Short

By GARY TISCHLER

Pat Schafer, a slender, 6-3 junior center for Tamalpais High School's basketball team, came of age last night in the Indians' jam-packed roaring gym.

And Drake's Pirates, the defending champions of the Marin County Athletic League, found that you cannot expect one man, no matter how big or how good, to always win a game all by his lonesome, even though he gives it a clutch try.

Schafer and Jerry Sprout, Drake's 6-6, 235-pound center, fought a stirring duel under the boards to a near standoff, with Sprout winning the scoring duel and Schafer the battle of the rebounds, as the Indians barely held off a desperate Pirate rally to pull out a 49-47 victory and sole possession of the MCAL lead in a clash of unbeatens.

The Indians almost blew an 11-point lead with less than two minutes remaining as Drake threw up a scrambling, frantic full court press that almost brought the Pirates even, only to fall short by five feet and some free throws.

EXCELLENT POSITION

Schafer, a top "B" team player last year, was expected to be taught some painful lessons in the fine art of boardsmanship by Sprout, but he looked as if he had already crammed for the test. Getting excellent position throughout the night, Schafer outrebounded Sprout, 16-10, scooped up second shots and dumped in a couple of jumps over Sprout to wind up with 21 points, 9 in the first quarter. He hit on 8 of 12 shots from the field.

Schafer could not stop Sprout. The all-league tackle, a fine shooter from 15 feet and closer, dumped in 25 points, hit on 10 of 15 from the field in a valiant try to keep his team in the battle. But the rest of the Pirates could come up with only 8 of 29 field goal attempts, and Chet Carlisle, who had averaged 13 points per game, managed only 7.

THE DIFFERENCE

That was the difference in the ball game. Schafer got clutch help from backcourt ace Steve Woodward, who, held to four points by a skin-tight defensive job of Stu Clemons in the first half, exploded for 14 of the Indians' 25 points in the second half as he drove and shot the Pirates silly despite a shallow night at the free-throw line where he hit on only four of nine.

The winning points proved to be a jumper by Schafer over Sprout's outstretched hands with two minutes left. That gave the Indians a 48-37 lead and a free throw by Woodward looked like just so much icing. But the cake was not in the oven yet.

Drake, which had not seen the lead since the first quarter when it was on top by 11-9, got its champion dander up with the game all but lost. The Pirates threw up the press for the first time in league play, came up with six straight free throws, missing two amidst the shrill hoots and whistles to cut the gap to 49-44 with 30 seconds left. Another Tam miscue off the press gave Karl Stein a driving bucket for a 49-45 score. Stein again stole the ball, then dumped in a missed shot to cut it to two points with five seconds left.

But Woodward lofted an out-of-bounds pass high in the air with five seconds left and by the time it came down, Sprout only had time for a desperate 40-footer which fell short by five feet.

Singer Involved In New Oakland Pro Cage Team

OAKLAND (AP) — Singer Pat Boone, it was disclosed yesterday, will be one of three owners of the proposed Oakland franchise of the planned professional American Basketball Assn.

"Yes, I'm involved in the franchise for an Oakland basketball team and I'm very excited about it," Boone said.

The league would operate in competition to the National Basketball Assn.

Warriors Turn Back Hawks

Despite playing without starting guard Paul Neumann, the first-place San Francisco Warriors increased their Western Division lead over the St. Louis Hawks to 9½ games.

Neumann sat out last night's National Basketball Assn. contest because of the flu but the rest of the Warriors guards picked up the slack in beating St. Louis 142-115 in San Rrancisco.

Al Attles, Jeff Mullins and Jim King each had hot streaks in the backcourt as the Warriors took a quick lead in the third period.

Mullins finished with 22 points, high for the guard threesome. But all triggered fast breaks with timely steals as giant Nate Thurmond sealed off the middle and smothered Zelmo Beaty, who scored only five points.

38 YEARS LATE, BUT O'Doul Gets Award

NEW YORK (AP)—Lefty O'Doul, the 69-year-old boulevardier from San Francisco who once played for all three New York teams, was named today the recipient of the New York Baseball Writers' Assn. Retroactive Player of the Year Award.

The slugging outfielder of the 1920s and 1930s will be the seventh player to receive the award established by the New York Chapter to honor veterans who never got the recognition they received during their active major league days.

He is being honored specifically for the 1929 season with the Philadelphia Phillies, one of five big league teams with whom he played when he batted .398 to lead the majors. He had a lifetime batting average of .348.

of alignment, but so, usually, is he. He also has trouble with his rear-end suspension. He keeps falling off the bar stool. The longest he's ever been on the wagon is from Vermont to Hoover on Wilshire. He couldn't get the cork out. He drinks so much, National Distillers has taken out a policy against his going on the wagon. The premium is very low, covered by the same company that insures Zsa Zsa against going into a nunnery. Thirsty is the only guy in the world who got arrested for drunk driving at a funeral. He's been driving drunk so long, his car hiccups.

PUT ALL THESE characters in the "Riverside 500" and you can keep Dan Gurney and Richie Ginther and Mario Andretti. I'll keep the glasses on THESE daredevils, if you don't mind. And, just to spice it up for the spectators, we'll hold the race on that 90-degree curved street where six cars crashed into houses last weekend. Be the first time they have to run under the yellow light while they haul a house off the track.

SPORTS BRIEFS

By Associated Press

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. — Former PGA champion Chandler Harper, Portsmouth, Va., and Stan Brion, Archer Lake Mich., won semifinal matches and will meet Saturday in the 36-hole finals of the PGA National Golf Clubs Match Play Championships.

FREEPORT, British West Indies — Stan Mosel, New Jersey veteran, took the lead at 36 holes in the Second Grand Bahama Open at Kings Inn Golf Course with a two-under-par 70 and a two round total of 139.

Tennis

ADELAIDE, Australia — All four United States players on the first day's program of the Australian National championships advanced to the second round, with Cliff Richey of Dallas, Tex., showing the best form.

Auto Racing

MONTE CARLO — A tiny Mini Cooper's narrow victory over an Italian Lancia Fulvia climaxed the 36th Monte Carlo Rally, sending celebrating Britons into the streets and cafes in revelry reminiscent of pre-World War II days.

Football

Basketball

BALTIMORE — The Baltimore Bullets announced that a three-way trade involving Rudy LaRusso of the Los Angeles Lakers, Ray Scott of Detroit, and Mel Counts of the Bullets had been cancelled, because the Detroit club had been unable to presuade LaRusso to join it. The Lakers reinstated LaRusso after a brief suspension.

General

NEW YORK — Mayor John V. Lindsay announced that New York City will enter a bid for the 1976 Olympics, and that the city is prepared to spend about $500 million to build a stadium, swimming pool, dormitories, and dining facilities to accommodate between 6,000 and 8,000 athletes.

Horce Racing

ARCADIA, Calif. — Diamond M., $22.40, rallied in the stretch and overtook early pacesetter Copper King to win the featured $10,000 Alhambra Purse by four lengths at Santa Anita.

GOLF

String At Marin; Ace In The Hole

Marin Country Club's nine-hole string tournament ended in a three-way snarl for low net honors in the Class A division this week.

Mesdames R. K. Childress, Axel Mikkelsen and J. R. Long all came up with 41s to tie for top honors.

The B division wound up in a two-way deadlock with Mmes. Walter Kessler and Carl Johnson both carding 44s. Next was Mrs. H. D. Fifer at 45 and Mrs. Mort Weiss at 46. Mrs. A. H. McConnell took low net honors in the C division with a 47 followed by Mrs. H. C. H. Rossi with a 49.

AT THE MILL VALLEY Golf Course, Syl Auteri of San Mateo fired a hole-in-one last week on the 134-yard eighth hole. He used a nine iron. The witnesses in his foursome were Byron Eggleston, Phil Lindsay, and Tom Wallace.

Seals Bow To Canucks

VICTORIA, B.C. (AP)—With their seven-game victory streak shattered, the California Seals moved into Victoria for a game tonight against the Maple Leafs.

The Vancouver Canucks not only beat California 2-1 last night, but moved into a second-place tie with the Seals in the Western Hockey League standings.

Larry Cahan scored quickly for the Canucks, slapping a wrist shot past Seals' goalie Jack McCartan 89 seconds after the game began. About 11 minutes later, Larry Popein made it 2-0.

Forbes Kennedy scored the last goal of the evening before the end of the first period and the Seals spent the remainder of the contest unsuccessfully trying to penetrate the Vancouver defense.

Bowie race track, located midway between Baltimore and Washington, D.C., is Maryland's youngest major racing plant.

Scott Allen Is Dethroned In Nationals

By JERRY LISKA

Visconti's brilliant free skating rally last night led the 5-foot-3 junior college stylist to his second dethroning of 17-year-old Scott Allen in three years.

Last night's victories by Visconti and smooth gold dance team of Lorna Dyer and John Carrell of Seattle, Wash., left five championships to be decided in today's windup of the four-day national meet.

Two titles were considered already in the bag — the women's singles diadem by three-time winner Peggy Fleming, 18, of Colorado Springs, the reigning world champion, and the senior pairs crown by defending champions Cynthia and Ronald Kauffman, youthful sister-brother team from Seattle.

Both Miss Fleming and the Kauffmans completely dominated earlier compulsory figures and were regarded as shoo-ins in the free style finals.

The novice championships for men and women were to be settled this afternoon, and the silver dance finals along with the senior women and senior pair finals will be held tonight.

Visconti's strong free style finish came after Allen built a slight lead in Thursday's compulsory figures.

Visconti, last to free skate in the nine-man senior field, was a confident and graceful performer from start to finish in his five-minute program which brought a one-minute ovation from the crowd of 6,100 at Ak-Sar-Ben Coliseum.

Allen, whose free skating appeared a little below par, and Visconti each wound up with two first place votes from the five judges in the overall scoring. But the 120-pound Visconti collected second place votes from all three other judges while Allen's other votes were one each for second, third and fourth.

Visconti executed several crisp double axels and double lutz's and his blurring spin finish brought a roar from the crowd.

"In the middle of my fourth minute, I told myself 'I'm gonna win, I'm gonna win,'" Visconti said.

"I can do three different triple jumps, but it was too close tonight and I didn't want to take a chance of making the same mistake I did last year when I fell on a triple toe loop."

Allen politely said, "I was very pleased with my overall performance, but Visconti was skating very well."

The next two finishers, third place Tim Wood of Detroit and J. Misha Petkevich of Great Falls, Mont., said in agreement: "It was a very close competition, but Gary just went out and did better."

Fights Last Night

MARACAIBO, Venezuela — Carlos Hernandez, 136, Venezuela, knocked out Lennox Beckles, 144, England, 4.

BALTIMORE — Hubert Hilton, 193¼, Glen Cove, N.Y., knocked out Prentice Snipes, 189½, Miami, Fla., 3.

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. — Ken Koontz, 196, Bakersfield, outpointed Lars Noorling, 192, Los Angeles, 10.

EDMONTON, Ont. — Amos (Big Train) Lincoln, 202, Los Angeles, outpointed Archie Ray, Phoenix, Ariz., 10.

EDMONTON, Ont. — Billy McGrangle, Edmonton, outpointed Tony Porter, Phoenix, Ariz., 10, featherweights.

NFL Stars Clash On Television

LOS ANGELES (AP)— The 17th annual Pro Bowl football game — and it may be the last in its present form — takes over the grid scene tomorrow with the best of the National Football League on display in Memorial Coliseum.

It's East versus West as stars of the Eastern and Western conferences of the NFL go into action before a hoped-for-crowd of 50,000 and a national television audience.

CBS does the television with the kickoff set for 1:05 p.m., P.S.T. Los Angeles and a radius of 75 miles are screened out.

This is a prestige game for the players who are selected to play by the NFL coches, an honor that has significance when talking next season's contracts with the club bosses.

Coach George Allen of the Los Angeles Rams, the West's coach, named Baltimore's famed Johnny Unitas to lead off at quarterback, but Green Bay's equally celebrated Bart Starr won't be long coming on the scene.

Coach Tom Landry of the Dallas Cowboys, the East's guardian, selected his own quarterback, Don Meredith, to start, but as with the other team, Frank Ryan of the Cleveland Browns will share the honors.

Generally the Pro Bowl games are wide open since the coaches don't have too much time to perfect defenses.

Last year it was all wide open —for the East as Blanton Collier's warriors, behind Ryan, romped away, 34-7.

The talent, needless to say, is abundant.

The West offers Deacon Jones, Merlin Olsen, Roger Brown, Willie Davis, Dave Robinson, Dick Butkus and Maxie Baughan.

The West is favored by 3 points and part of this may well be due to the presence of eight of the world champion Green Bay Packers on its squad.

SANTA ROSA—Smooth-driving Bob Phillips and substitute Russ Williams ignited two College of Marin flurries and Terry Overlid commandeered the boards to lead the Tars to a run away 103-82 victory over Napa in a Golden Valley Conference clash here last night.

Phillips, despite early foul trouble, sparked a Tar outburst late in the second half that turned a six-point lead into a fifteen-point advantage and chilled Napa's ace guard George Lambrecht, an All-conference honorable mention and third-best scorer in the league last year, to a five point performance.

Phillips finished with 21 points, tops for the Tars, followed by steady guard Bill Pandiani's 21 points.

In all, five Tars hit in double figures, with Overlid adding 16 points and Russ Smith and Williams 14 each. The fifth Tar starter, Tom Stetson had nine points.

Overlid took over on the boards with 13 rebounds and helped Marin pull away in the second half with a scoring flurry.

Williams, with Pandiani and Phillips in foul trouble in the first half, came off the bench with the Tars nursing a five-point margin, and scored eight quick points to give Marin its first big margin.

"Phillips was our money man," Tar coach Cal Riemcke said. "He did a fine job on Lambrecht and came through with the points when we needed them."

The victory gave the league-leading Tars a 5-1 Western Division record in the Golden Valley while Napa is 1-4. The Tars now have an 11-9 record for the season.

Giants, Trojans Win Big

Terra Linda Overpowers San Rafael

By RALPH CHATOIAN

When you talk about improvement, you're talking about the Terra Linda High School Trojan basketball team.

What was expected to be a close game against San Rafael High School last night in the Terra Linda gym turned out to be a rout, the Trojans dumping the Bulldogs 78-45.

Led by Fred Smith and Bruce Kilby, the Trojans ruled from start to finish. It was 21-12 at the first quarter 37-27 at intermission. And when Kilby and Smith teamed up for 13 points in the third quarter, it pushed Terra Linda in front by 21, 56-35.

Smith scored 25 points, including 11 of 20 from the field, before he was taken out of the game with 4 minutes and 55 seconds still remaining on the clock. Score then was 66-39.

TOP REBOUNDERS

Kilby, who left the game a few seconds ahead of Smith, scored 15 points and teammate Paul Lee helped out with 12. Terra Linda outhustled the Bulldogs on the boards, led by its scoring duo, Smith and Kilby. Smith pulled down 11 rebounds and Kilby had 9. Kilby was getting most of his buckets on tip-ins, while Smith was hitting both close and far.

Top scorers for San Rafael were Rich Schau and Chip Tyson, each with 12 points. Roger Widmer, about the only Bulldog who was able to drive in for shots, had 9 points.

Meanwhile, Terra Linda was shooting from everywhere, with everyone on the team getting a chance to score. Almost all of them did as 11 Trojans hit the scoring column. And not too many shots missed their mark, Terra Linda hitting 35 of 67 tries, a whopping percentage of .520. From the floor, Terra Linda was 67 per cent (8x12). San Rafael went 19 for 62, 30 per cent from the field, and 7 for 14, 50 per cent from the line.

Novato Bows In Practice Cage, 65-51

Novato High School's basketball team, winless in Marin athletic League play, tried a non-league opponent last night at Novato and lost, 65-51, to Cardinal Newman of San Rosa.

The Hornets, playing on their own court, beat the visitors from the floor, 20 buckets to 19, but took a pasting from the free throw line, the Cardinal Newman quint making 27 of 42 free throws to 11 of 22 for Novato.

John Howard led Novato's scoring with 17 points, but the Hornets had to play from behind throughout the game.

By BOB HARVEY

The towering Redwood Giants were just too big and sharp for the tiny, slumping Wildcats of Marin Catholic.

And they used that advantage to hammer out a 51-35 victory last night to increase their Marin County Athletic League basketball record to 3-2 as some 750 fans watched in awe at Marin Catholic.

Thus the Giants of coach Dick Hart now are third in the loop standings, while the Cats, after breezing along with the most impressive non-league mark, dwell close to the cellar at 1-2.

Andre Horn, the game's leading scorer (17), pumped in two quickies and the victors were off in a hurry.

The diminutive 5-9 playmaker proceeded to be a thorn in Marin Catholic's hide all night, darting in for nine rebounds to finish second in that department.

But he had lots of help from the likes of 5-11 guard Barry Stockwell and Jim Marc, Tom Seidenberg and Al Fritz, all 6-5. Fritz, who didn't even make his appearance until the second half, came on to snare 10 rebounds. He didn't score, but was a stalwart defensively.

The Cats were way off form from the field (only 4x24 in the second half) and were handicapped by their lack of height with 6-2 center Ches Bornia their tallest player.

Hart singled out no one but of course had praise for Horn, Fritz and Fritzhenry, the latter for his passing and feeding. "We played as a team better tonight than we have all year," he added, noting that Redwood's sizzling 51 per cent did not hurt things either.

Bornia finished with just 5 points but must have had most of Marin's 36 rebounds and played an outstanding game along with Paul Vickers, Rick Garms and high-point man Paul McCarthy (12).

Sacramento Girl Sets Swim Mark

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—Debbie Meyer, 14, of Sacramento, broke the world's record for the 1,650-yard freestyle swim over a short course by turning the distance last night in 17:48.6 at the Sacramento YMCA pool.

The previous mark was 18:10 set last year by Sharon Finneran of Santa Clara.

Miss Meyer swam over the 25-yard long pool in the Sacramento YMCA's Senior Invitational meet, an Amateur Athletic Union approved meet.

Reagan Appearing Dead Serious On The Economy

WHEN LYNDON JOHNSON took office in the White House, his grandstand play on economy was met with near-universal applause.

Remember? He turned off unnecessary lights at the White House. He ordered a hiring freeze in hopes of stemming the tide of ever-increasing numbers of people on federal payrolls.

His actions were so popular that they were aped by some in our own Marin County Civic Center.

The lights are long since all ablaze again in the White House. The federal hiring freeze is long forgotten. And there is no evidence that any permanent economy was effected following the flurry of public declarations on the subject at Marin's Civic Center.

COMES NOW RONALD REAGAN in Sacramento.

There is evidence that his is much more than a grandstand play for economy. There is increasing evidence that he—naive as it may seem to many—really intends and expects to achieve some savings in some segments of state government.

To repeat, it is becoming increasingly apparent that this is not a grandstand play by Governor Reagan; he is serious.

One would think that in the cloistered halls of our great institutions of learning, this move by our new state chief executive would be watched with great clinical interest.

How many times in the history of democracy has a successful candidate actually proceeded to try and make good on his campaign promises? (Remember FDR's solemn campaign pledge for a 25 per cent reduction in federal government expenditures?)

But our academic community — at least the segment heard from most loudly—is behaving in a manner far short of adult maturity. What we are hearing from our academic ivy halls are emotional outbursts, the mark of immaturity.

Irresponsible behavior by civil rights leaders contributed mightily to the passage of Prop. 14 which repealed the Rumford Fair Housing Law in this state.

Irresponsible behavior on the part of groups of educators in our highest institutions of learning could trigger a public revulsion against increased support for higher education in California. This could be disastrous.

THE NEED FOR ADDITIONAL higher educational facilities — more and bigger campuses for the University of California and the State Colleges—is self-evident.

Facing the necessity for the huge capital outlays in the immediate future, we must try to attain operating economies, obviously.

This laudable goal seems to be what Governor Reagan is aiming for.

But there is no sign in the emotional outbursts from our campuses that the basic facts of the situation are recognized by administration or faculty.

IS IT BECAUSE our university and state college faculites are so heavily weighted with "liberals" that they automatically react adversely to any suggestion from a "conservative" governor?

In the present confused situation, these facts seem clear:

1. The Governor wants the University of California and the State Colleges to take a long look at themselves to see if some economic corners can be cut, presumably without hurting the quality of education. This looks like a reasonable approach.

2. The University and the State College administrations should, in good conscience, make an earnest effort to see if economies can be effected. This they owe to the heavily burdened taxpayers who support them.

3. This faculty should refrain from politically motivated interference and, instead, cooperate in an earnest effort to achieve economy and efficiency, putting emotionalism aside.

4. If the faculty and administration persists in demonstrative outbursts, they run the risk of triggering public revulsion against bearing the heavy burden of tax support for the university and our state colleges, just as civil rights extremists unwittingly triggered the repeal of our fair housing law.

5. We are going to need vastly increased facilities for higher education in the years ahead; we cannot afford to have anything trigger a public refusal to meet this need.

Our University and State College administrations—and faculties, too—need to demonstrate good faith in trying to achieve operating economies before they denounce the governor who seeks to encourage economy.

Bouquets And Brickbats

BRICKBATS to thoughtless patrons in supermarkets who leave their grocery carts in the middle of aisles and block the passageways for other patrons.

A BOUQUET to Edward Cadogan for his 20 years of service as art teacher and head of the art department and fine arts division at College of Marin. He resigned, effective July 1, to devote full time to his own work as a professional artist.

BRICKBATS to medical men who leave their medical kits inside their unlocked automobiles, thus unwittingly inviting the theft of drugs.

A BOUQUET to dramatic soprano Lorie Kutsko of Sausalito, Bay Area winner in the Metropolitan Opera auditions held last week at San Francisco State College. She will go to Los Angeles to vie for the western state regional title.

BRICKBATS to irresponsible gunmen who fire weapons in populated areas with wild abandon, endangering lives and property and maiming household pets.

A BRICKBAT to Point Reyes lighthouse at the National Seashore for closing the doors to visitors at 3:30 p.m. when official National Park Service announcements state that visitors are welcome on weekends and holidays from 1 to 4 p.m.

BRICKBATS to the weatherman for pouring it on all at once. First, the long, cold, dry spell, and then comes the drowning. Can't he space it out in gradual stages?

MOTHER THANKS POLICE FOR ARRESTING SON

One mother wrote a letter thanking police for arresting her son. The statement of her appreciation to a California sheriff was sent after her 17-year-old boy had been arrested for curfew violation and possession of liquor.

"Please accept my profound thanks for picking up my son," the letter said. "All the big brother, heart-to-heart talks, all the lectures, all the articles, all the 'voices of experience' apparently didn't penetrate. This personal experience with the police shook him up." Then she added: "It also gives us quite a lever—his hair is cut, he wears a shirt, and now he's breaking in a nice new home."

Sometimes it takes a considerable shock to awaken persons, young or old, to their basic responsibilities to God, their families and the public at large.

The more that parents try to bring up their children from their earliest years in an atmosphere of love and openness, the less likely they will be to have such a jarring experience.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Highway 17 Is Hurting Us All

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Highway 17 will be with us until it is settled; many people are apprehensive as to whether the property is theirs or the Division of Highways; the real estate values have come to a standstill, there are no sales; also remodeling; it is having a serious repercussion on the economic values in the county. Your Editorial of Dec. 20—"Blind opposition can scuttle Freeway" could hardly have been digested without some comment, so it was good to read the late printing of these letters, Priscilla Gray, Sophia Spencer, Anne West and Don Lange. They explained we are not averse to progress in transportation; quite to the contrary, we all know the needs of Marin County but it is not a freeway to Pt. Reyes! We might add this continuation of 17 is being pressed by the east bay, to go over the Richmond-S.R. Bridge.

We had expected some support from our paper the (I-J) but you have been known to be unpredictable by the readers.

When you wrote about the predictions for 1967—what did you mean? "Beware of pleas for delays in Route 17 hearings, remember how the state highway Com. acceded to pleas for temporary delays only three or four months on Shoreline Highway Progress, that was several years ago."

That note was a reminder to check the record to see if facts indicate most pleas for delay are really stalling tactics by the opponents bent on scuttling any action at all; it still deserves to be checked out, hung onto it a bit longer.

We will do just that; but we are all anxious to get a decision so we can get back to normal living! We hope that our Sen. McCarthy and Assemblyman Bagley will assist in this very important means of transportation; I have read that the new administration will not go ahead with new highways unless they consult those who are involved. This ordeal has brought many people of the different communities together in one common cause; they are not selfish; if we don't want our homes and businesses destroyed why inflict it on some one else!

So we hope the New Year will come up with some constructive idea for a route to the Point Reyes Seashore and find it in the wide open spaces, and let us have the security of our homes!

Salaries And The Hub Council

Editor, Independent-Journal:

There has been so much comment on the San Anselmo City Council's motion to pay themselves $150 a month that perhaps a fuller report on their meeting is indicated.

City Atty. John Buresh opened the discussion by stating that if the councilmen voted themselves any salary at all, it would have to be in accordance with state law which provides a salary of exactly $150 a month for councilmen in cities of this population. To raise or lower the salary requires a vote of the people.

Advocates of the salary measure (Councilmen Capurro, Ragan and Smith) argued that councilmen should be reimbursed for their expense and time, and that a salary might well attract people who could not otherwise run for office, thus upgrading the level of candidates. Novato city councilmen are now paid $25 per meeting with a $75 a month maximum, they said; while $150 a month might well be too much, the only way to get $50 or $75 a month was to vote the ordinance in effect and put the lower salary range on the next election ballot. (No proviso for this latter argument was, however, incorporated in the motion.)

The opponents (Councilmen Reichmuth and Scott) said that on the contrary, a salary might degrade the level of candidates for council by attracting those who were interested primarily in the money. The salaries would be an unnecessary additional expense at a time when the city has been much concerned over effecting economies in the budget. Present councilmen had been elected because of their interest in the city. If councilmen are paid $150 a month, the city might unfortunately get someone who was worth just that.

The agenda and speakers for the next San Anselmo Homes Assn. meeting (8 p. m. Jan. 26 at Isabel Cook School) had already been lined up when this issue arose. However, it is now the last item on the agenda. We will discuss it and forward the majority opinion to the council. The public is, as always, invited to attend.

Fluoridation Story Cleared

Editor, Independent-Journal:

The Science Service article of Jan. 11 promoting fluoride is based upon an entirely different matter from artifical fluoridation in regard to the actual chemicals involved.

The quoted study of 1,000 North Dakota residents concerned naturally-occuring calcium fluoride only. But the authors of the paper, Drs. Hegsted and Fredrick Stare, imply that this would be the same as sodium fluoride, which is the artifical form they want to add to drinking waters. Naturally fluoridated waters are accompanied by a protective balance of minerals, particularly a predominance of calcium and magnesium. Other studies have indicated that it is the calcium and magnesium which is beneficial and essential to forming strong, healthy bones and teeth.

In a similar study Dr. Lewis Barnett made extensive analyses for all of the minerals in the soil and waters of Deaf Smith County, Texas. His conclusions indicate that the only mineral truly important in building resistance to osteoporosis is magnesium phosphate. Dr. Stare's nutrition team, however, made no attempt to determine the presence of any minerals other than fluoride in the water supplies of their North Dakota area.

Sodium fluoride is an active enzyme poison which has been proven to cause tooth decay and kidney disease in experimental animals, and which has been proven to only delay the onset of tooth decay in humans for one to three years, not by forming strong teeth but by interfering with the formation and eruption of the teeth. Even in small doses sodium fluoride, like arsenic, is a cumulative poison which should be dispensed only upon the prescription of a physician.

Johnson Takes The Blockbuster Out Of Vietnam War Financing

WASHINGTON — President Johnson, who might almost be called a new man because of his revised tactics in public relations, has shown how to take some of the thump out of a blockbuster.

In this case the blockbuster is the $73 billion he will ask Congress to approve for defense spending in the 1968 fiscal year, beginning July 1.

Johnson in his State of the Union message Jan. 10 told Congress and the country his budget for all government spending in the next fiscal year would be $135 billion, a record figure.

THE COUNTRY had been prepared for something like that. There had been a lot of guessing about it for weeks. Some guesses had run as high as $145 billion.

Since the country gets bigger every year, there are more people making more money, and the government's responsibilities increase, the budget is a cinch to keep going up.

But, if it weren't for the expense of fighting the war in Vietnam, Johnson's budget would be a lot less than $135 billion. There also had been a lot of guessing about how much Johnson would ask of Congress for defense spending.

HE CLEARED that up Tuesday night by calling in newsmen to say the figure would be $73 billion, although he estimated this would be only $5 billion more than the level for the present fiscal year.

But, by calling in the newsmen, Johnson was able to explain how hard he is trying to keep down expenses, despite the war. That $73 billion was the second highest estimate on defense spending in history.

In 1944, when he figured his total budget at $100 billion, President Franklin D. Roosevelt estimated spending on World War II activities for fiscal 1945 would be $88 billion. Those "war activities" covered practically everything connected with the war.

As an example of how defense spending has climbed because of Vietnam, in his last budget message President Dwight D. Eisenhower for fiscal 1962 in 1961 gave Congress a budget of $80.8 billion, with defense spending at $46 billion.

AT THE PEAK of the Korean War President Harry S Truman—in his 1953 message for fiscal 1954—laid out a budget of $79 billion, with $59.9 billion in military spending. In 1950, Truman had asked only $13 billion for defense.

Johnson, aware, of course, about some of the protests over his request to Congress on Jan. 10 for a tax increase, took pains when asked about it to inform newsmen on all the consulting he had done with the government's top economic experts.

He listed those who had recommended the tax boost.

After his news conference on Dec. 31, 1966, there could be no doubt Johnson has changed his approach to public relations. This came after months of relative silence in which he saw his popularity slipping.

AT THAT NEWS conference which was televised and broadcast — Johnson eliminated the facial expressions which he had used in the past. He deadpanned the reporters without smiles or gestures and, remaining simply straight-faced, answered their questions.

This change was evident for more than an hour the night of Jan. 10 when his State of the Union message to Congress was nationally televised. This was a straight-faced delivery, too.

Even the color of previous messages was absent from that one although, oddly enough, Johnson was then criticized by some for not being more colorful although, if he had been, he probably would have been criticized for being too fancy or optimistic.

Boards Sometimes Forget The Negro

By WHITNEY M. YOUNG JR.

MANY OF THE key decisions affecting our lives are taken by non-elective officers and boards.

A library board decides when libraries open and close, the board of a charitable organization decides what services it will provide and where, a zoning commission can alter the future of a neighborhood by its decisions. Because of the far-ranging influence of these bodies, it is essential that all elements of the community be represented in their membership.

Unfortunately, as in so many other areas of American life, Negroes are often excluded. This means that plans and decisions vitally affecting the lives of many Negro citizens are made in their absence.

THERE IS A double tragedy here. First, this separation between the decision-makers and the community encourages a feeling of alienation and powerlessness. Second, it results in a misuse of human resources, as the talents of the Negro community are neglected and underutilized.

The many Negroes who have established their leadership and capabilities, both on the job and in the many fraternal and charitable organizations which perform such excellent work, could contribute a great deal to the community at large.

In addition to this vast pool of under-utilized leadership, the Negro community includes still more people who have the qualities so sorely needed by these institutions, but lack the training.

TO HELP DEVELOP this latent leadership, the Urban League has a 10-city Leadership Development Program. About 1,800 people are being trained in community organization and leadership and civic affairs, and then attempt to gain appointment to the boards which influence their lives. A study made to establish the need for this program showed that city after city had no non-white participation boards like the board of elections, the civil service commission, the zoning commission, and other institutions, including private charitable groups.

The program is aimed mainly at people who have never involved themselves before in the life of the community — ordinary people who were surprised to find that they too, could do something of importance and help their friends and neighbors.

One man got so involved in the program that he decided to run for office and was elected mayor of his town. A mother on welfare became a member of her city's Poverty Program Committee. A housewife was appointed to the Goodwill Industries Board.

IN ONE CITY, some people in the program decided their neighborhood needed a better recreational program for kids and drew up plans for such a program, which was funded by the city.

In all of the participating cities there are many examples of individuals who had ability and leadership qualities and who just never made full use of them, getting appointments to city-wide boards and representing their community.

Despite the obvious need for minority representation, and despite the availability of people willing to serve, many agencies are still blind to the need to mend their ways. I recall one man in the program who was a civil servant in a large city and expressed an interest in working with a charitable agency.

Expansion Of U. S. Parks

By RICHARD F. NEWCOMB
AP Newsfeatures Writer

"We should continue to carry to every corner of the nation our campaign for a beautiful America—to clean up our towns to make them more beautiful, our cities, our countryside by creating more parks and more seashores and more open spaces for our children to play in and for the generations that come after us to enjoy."

That was President Johnson speaking, in his State of the Union message Jan. 10. And, of course, the system of national areas has been growing rapidly in recent years.

In the period 1961-66, no less than 45 national monuments, historic sites, seashores, parks, riverways, recreation areas and reserves have been added to the federal system. These were spread over 26 states, the District of Columbia and the Virgin Islands. Twenty states received at least one new national site, three states got two, three states got three and two states (New York and Texas) received five each.

Some of the additions were relatively small, such as Theodore Roosevelt's birthplace, a four-story brownstone house at 28 East 20th Street in New York City. Others are large areas, intended mostly for conservation and recreation.

Seashores and lakeshores are a comparatively new idea in national areas. In the past six years national seashores have been created at Point Reyes; Cape Cod, Mass.; Fire Island, N.Y.; Cape Lookout, N.C.; Padre Island, Tex., and Assateague Island, Md.-Va. The new national lakeshores are Indiana Dunes, Ind., and Pictured Rocks, Mich.

The remaining acquisitions fell into classes such as homes of prominent Americans—Lincoln, Edison, Herbert Hoover; historic forts—Davis in Texas, Smith in Arkansas, Larned in Kansas; unusual features — Ice Age Scientific Reserve in Wisconsin, agate fossil beds in Nebraska, the Alibates flint quarries in Texas; and just plain recreation areas, like Delaware Water Gap, N. J.-Pa., and Bighorn Canyon, Mont.-Wyo.

Put toegther, they make an ever-growing area of America being preserved for future generations for reasons of history, conservation, recreation and information.

For 1967, a dozen new areas have been approved by various government bureaus and will be presented to Congress for addition to the national preserves. These are:

Amistad National Recreation Area, Tex.; Boston National Historic Sites, Mass.; Constellation National Historic Site, Md.; Flaming Gorge National Recreation Area, Utah-Wyo.

Big Daddy Unruh Holds The Key To Reagan's 'Creative Society'

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan is busily fashioning his new program for California, but its enactment may be up to the "big daddy" of the state's politics.

Within the next few weeks, Jesse Marvin Unruh, 44-year-old Democratic speaker of the California Assembly, may have as much to say about the course of California's law-making as the new Republican Governor in his drive for a "creative society." So far he isn't saying.

If what anybody says goes in the California legislature, it's what Jess Unruh says. Politically, he is still "big daddy," but they stopped calling him that when a crash diet reduced him from 275 pounds to less than 200 in 1963.

Unruh himself views his political strength and influence as the product of his own making. "When I first took this job it was largely that of presiding over the Assembly," Unruh told an interviewer. "I have vastly expanded the horizons of this job."

Unruh's political muscle stretches through both houses of the legislature—on both sides of the aisle—and California's factious Democratic Party, where he has developed his own political machinery.

Unruh, born in Newton, Kans., of German Mennonite parents, the son of an illiterate sharecropper, attended Wayland Baptist College at Plainview, Tex., on a scholarship.

He interrupted his education to work as a sheet metal worker and serve in the Naval Air Corps and graduated in 1948 from the University of Southern California. He majored in journalism and political science and was named by his class as one of the five outstanding seniors.

Unruh was defeated in his first bid for the Assembly in 1952 by a 14-year Republican incumbent. Two years later, he defeated the Republican and has been re-elected each term since. His rise to prominence in the legislature was meteoric. He was first elected speaker in 1961—on his 39th birthday—and has been overwhelmingly re-elected each session.

In his early years as speaker, Unruh steered fellow Democratic Gov. Edmund G. Brown's state budget through the legislature. But as he gained more strength, he frequently parted political company with Brown and seemed at times to be one of his chief antagonists.

SPEAKER JESSE UNRUH
Holds major key to Reagan's plans

Unruh views Reagan's million-vote election victory as more of a rejection of Brown's third-term bid than a positive pro-Reagan sentiment.

"I don't think the governor wanted another term that badly," he said, "but he listened to the blandishments of the people around him. I never kidded the governor at all. I told him as early as 1963 he was going down the wrong path. But I hold no grudges against the governor whatsoever."

Operating under a Republican governor will be a new experience for Unruh. He says his political relationship with Reagan is uncertain, but "I'm inclined to think our personal relationship will be quite good for a long time."

Reagan's conservatively-slanted "Creative Society" plans run counter to Unruh's own legislative record and he has plans for 1976 which go beyond Reagan's own proposals—including wholesale reform of the state's tax system.

Unruh has remained publicly noncommittal on Reagan's proposed 10 per cent state budget cutbacks and his call for a tuition at the University of California and state colleges, but he counsels:

"You always have a choice of virtually everything that comes along. Both the governor and the legislature is going to have to do some yielding."

SIERRA CLUB IS WINNING FRIENDS

By RONALD S. SUPINSKI

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A powerful Western conservation group—the Sierra Club—is preparing new avenues of attack in a battle with the federal government over the group's ideology and tax status.

The club has opposed establishment of a 45,000-acre Redwood National Park in northern California as proposed by the Johnson administration, and instead, is urging a park twice as large in a different area. The club also succeeded in helping to stall the $1.7 billion Pacific Southwest water project bill in the U.S. House last year.

Its current fight with the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) over whether contributions to the club can remain tax deductible has frightened away several donors but, at the same time, has won thousands of new club members across the United States.

David R. Brower, the gray-haired, erudite executive director of the club, estimated it lost about $125,000 in contributions since June when the IRS decided to audit records of the San Francisco-based organization.

"Over the same period," he said, "club membership increased by 9,000 from 38,000 to 47,000. This apparently was the result of people learning of the threat to the Grand Canyon by two proposed dams on the Colorado River."

The club, celebrating its 75th anniversary this year, battled the Federal Bureau of Reclamation, several congressmen and the Colorado river basin states to help kill the 1966 Pacific Southwest water bill aimed at bringing Colorado River water to arid areas. It was reported out of the House Interior and Insular Affairs Committee but never came to a floor vote because backers counted noses and found affirmative votes lacking.

"These dams would damage the canyon severely, waste water by evaporation and not pay for themselves," said Brower. He described them as merely "cash registers to start a development fund from power sales to help finance importation of water from the Columbia River" in the Northwest.

"We are, and always will be, opposed to construction of both or only one of the dams," added Brower. "One bullet in the head will do the job just as well as two."

As an alternative for the dams, Brower suggests that power at Hoover Dam be raised to finance diversion of Colorado River water into central and southern Arizona.

Proponents of the dams claim they would be far enough away from the canyon to cause only a very slight proportionate rise in the river's water level between reservoirs, and the rise would not be noticed from any public observation point.

They contend the lake behind Hualapai Dam would be 55.5 miles from the canyon's south rim and range from a depth of 89 to zero feet in a 3,000-foot deep gorge over the 13 miles it intrudes into the park.

U.S. Rep. Craig Hosmer, R-Calif., said the Sierra Club's "violently emotional opposition" to the dams under the guise of conservation is thwarting a potential water supply for "perhaps 50,000,000 people by the year 1999...throughout one-twelfth of the U.S."

"A new, reckless breed of leadership has taken hold of that organization," said Hosmer, referring to the conservation club.

"Using the flimsy pretext of saving the wilderness, it is attempting to thrust its monastic views upon a misinformed public, blocking orderly resource development for private political advantage."

The club is now marshalling 1967 forces to press for establishment by Congress of a Redwood National Park of about 90,000 acres in the Redwood creek-prairie area of northern California. Rep. Don H. Clausen, R-Calif., is expected to introduce a compromise proposal for such a park to include the Jedediah Smith Redwood State Park and a 46-mile stretch of seashore extending south to Patricks Point State Park.

Economic factors enter the picture. The lumber industry claims establishment of any large-sized Redwood Park will mean the loss of hundreds of jobs. Clausen said his compromise plan would "make jobs, not take jobs." During 1966, the Sierra Club launched a massive nationwide campaign, including congressional lobbying, against an administration bill calling for establishment of a National Redwood Park of 45,000 acres in the Mill Creek Area.

In ruling that the Sierra Club conducted "substantial legislative activity," Joseph M. Cullen, district director of the IRS in San Francisco, cited full-page advertisements placed in a few newspapers by the club urging support for the larger Redwood National Park and defeat of the Southwest water project authorizing the two Colorado River dams.

Cullen cited a law forbidding non-profit, tax-exempt institutions from engaging in "substantial activities directed toward influencing legislation."

Brower said the club would appeal Cullen's decision to the IRS in Washington and then go to federal courts in an effort to overturn the ruling.

Sen. Burns Questions Tuition Crisis Handling

By EDWIN C. CAPPS
Capitol News Service

SACRAMENTO — Sen. Hugh M. Burns, D-Fresno, president pro tem of the State Senate, thinks Gov. Ronald Reagan made a tactical error in his approach to tuition by discussing it with educators in a "forthright above-board consultation."

Burns comments came as the blacklash at the propaganda campaigns of the administration of the University of California and State Colleges against the tuition plan continued.

Here are some of the other comments and activities concerning the freeze on enrollments ordered by both the university and colleges and their hard-sell campaigns to block Reagan's tuition proposal.

Reagan's office received a bundle of 822 printed form letters, signed by apparent students, objecting to the tuition, which were stamped with the pastage meter at San Fernando Valley State College. Paul Beck, Reagan's assistant press secretary, said this was the only group of form leters received on tuition.

While there had been heavy mail against the proposal at first, Beck said mail now is running three-to-one in favor of the tuition plan and telegrams are running 10-to-one in favor of it.

Reagan questioned the need of a $700,000 annual public relations budget for the university.

Meanwhile, some eyebrows were raised here at the University of California hosting a reception for all legislators and constitutional officers earlier in the week. The biennial affair normally is hosted by the U. C. Alumni Assn. but this year, alumni members denied any connection with it.

Assembly Speaker Jesse M. Unruh, D-Inglewood, who has all but said flatly that he will oppose the tuition plan during this session of the legislature, cautioned professors at the university and state colleges to temper their reaction to Reagan's tuition proposal.

"While I can appreciate the fears which many of our university and college faculty have with regard to the imposition of tiution on their campuses. I believe it would be extremely unwise for them to over-react against this proposal," Unruh said.

This Week In The World

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

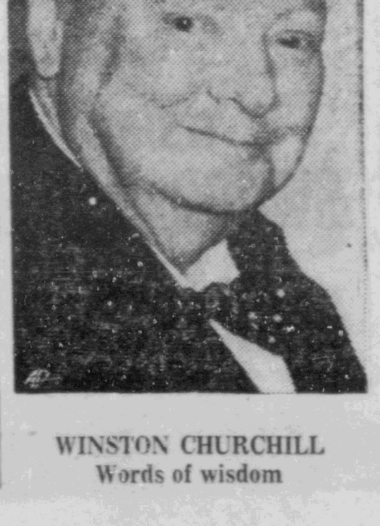
Sir Winston Churchill once described the Communist regime in Russia as "a riddle wrapped in a mystery inside an enigma."

Had he added "inscrutable," a word traditionally applied to Orientals, he would have been describing mainland China today.

A welter of rumors, propaganda and reports have been emanating from Peking concerning the titanic power struggle under way between Communist party Chairman Mao Tse-tung and his political opponents.

Reports this week from Red China said Mao had mounted a new counterattack against his enemies but has not been able to stifle the opposition.

Mao's chief opponent President Liu-Shao-ching is rumored to have fallen into Mao's hands but there was no confirmation of reports he was under house arrest in Peking in a walled compound where high government and party officials reside.



WINSTON CHURCHILL

MAO TSE-TUNG
Is he winning?

The difficulty of direct communication with Red China and the political orientation of many of the news sources have rendered some of the reports suspect.

But Peking itself has admitted the serious nature of the current turmoil.

Peking Radio, which in the past has admitted the existence of considerable unrest throughout the country by peasants and intellectuals broadcast an editorial this week appearing in the pro-Mao Peking People's Daily which called on supporters of Mao to seize control of all press and propaganda media throughout the country.

It seemed to imply that much of the national press was still under control of Mao's opponents.

Around The World, Around The Nation:

Saigon: U.S. military authorities announced that American troops in Vietnam suffered their heaviest casualties of the war last week. Spokesmen said 1,188 servicemen were killed or wounded in action.

Saigon: U.S. Air Force jet bombers for the first time in almost a month struck the Hanoi area fuel dump which supplies North Vietnamese MIG jets.

On the ground in South Vietnam, American troops thrust deeper into the Iron Triangle. The toll of enemy dead in the Iron Triangle sweep mounted close to the 600 mark.

Seoul, Korea: North Korean shore guns sank a South Korean navy patrol craft. Twenty-eight crewmen drowned and 11 others died later of wounds.

New York: Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy's suit over the controversial book "The Death of a President" appeared to be over and settled in her favor.

Reagan Appearing Dead Serious On The Economy

WHEN LYNDON JOHNSON took office in the White House, his grandstand play on economy was met with near-universal applause.

Remember? He turned off unnecessary lights at the White House. He ordered a hiring freeze in hopes of stemming the tide of ever-increasing numbers of people on federal payrolls.

His actions were so popular that they were aped by some in our own Marin County Civic Center.

The lights are long since all ablaze again in the White House. The federal hiring freeze is long forgotten. And there is no evidence that any permanent economy was effected following the flurry of public declarations on the subject at Marin's Civic Center.

COMES NOW RONALD REAGAN in Sacramento.

There is evidence that his is much more than a grandstand play for economy. There is increasing evidence that he—naive as it may seem to many—really intends and expects to achieve some savings in some segments of state government.

To repeat, it is becoming increasingly apparent that this is not a grandstand play by Governor Reagan; he is serious.

One would think that in the cloistered halls of our great institutions of learning, this move by our new state chief executive would be watched with great clinical interest.

How many times in the history of democracy has a successful candidate actually proceeded to try and make good on his campaign promises? (Remember FDR's solemn campaign pledge for a 25 per cent reduction in federal government expenditures?)

But our academic community — at least the segment heard from most loudly—is behaving in a manner far short of adult maturity. What we are hearing from our academic ivy halls are emotional outbursts, the mark of immaturity.

Irresponsible behavior by civil rights leaders contributed mightily to the passage of Prop. 14 which repealed the Rumford Fair Housing Law in this state.

Irresponsible behavior on the part of groups of educators in our highest institutions of learning could trigger a public revulsion against increased support for higher education in California. This could be disastrous.

THE NEED FOR ADDITIONAL higher educational facilities — more and bigger campuses for the University of California and the State Colleges—is self-evident.

Facing the necessity for the huge capital outlays in the immediate future, we must try to attain operating economies, obviously.

This laudable goal seems to be what Governor Reagan is aiming for.

But there is no sign in the emotional outbursts from our campuses that the basic facts of the situation are recognized by administration or faculty.

IS IT BECAUSE our university and state college faculites are so heavily weighted with "liberals" that they automatically react adversely to any suggestion from a "conservative" governor?

In the present confused situation, these facts seem clear:

1. The Governor wants the University of California and the State Colleges to take a long look at themselves to see if some economic corners can be cut, presumably without hurting the quality of education. This looks like a reasonable approach.

2. The University and the State College administrations should, in good conscience, make an earnest effort to see if economies can be effected. This they owe to the heavily burdened taxpayers who support them.

3. This faculty should refrain from politically motivated interference and, instead, cooperate in an earnest effort to achieve economy and efficiency, putting emotionalism aside.

4. If the faculty and administration persists in demonstrative outbursts, they run the risk of triggering public revulsion against bearing the heavy burden of tax support for the university and our state colleges, just as civil rights extremists unwittingly triggered the repeal of our fair housing law.

5. We are going to need vastly increased facilities for higher education in the years ahead; we cannot afford to have anything trigger a public refusal to meet this need.

Our University and State College administrations—and faculties, too—need to demonstrate good faith in trying to achieve operating economies before they denounce the governor who seeks to encourage economy.

Bouquets And Brickbats

BRICKBATS to thoughtless patrons in supermarkets who leave their grocery carts in the middle of aisles and block the passageways for other patrons.

A BOUQUET to Edward Cadogan for his 20 years of service as art teacher and head of the art department and fine arts division at College of Marin. He resigned, effective July 1, to devote full time to his own work as a professional artist.

A BOUQUET to dramatic soprano Lorie Kutsko of Sausalito, Bay Area winner in the Metropolitan Opera auditions held last week at San Francisco State College. She will go to Los Angeles to vie for the western state regional title.

BRICKBATS to irresponsible gunmen who fire weapons in populated areas with wild abandon, endangering lives and property and maiming household pets.

A BRICKBAT to Point Reyes lighthouse at the National Seashore for closing the doors to visitors at 3:30 p.m. when official National Park Service announcements state that visitors are welcome on weekends and holidays from 1 to 4 p.m.

BRICKBATS to the weatherman for pouring it on all at once. First, the long, cold, dry spell, and then comes the drowning. Can't he space it out in gradual stages?

MOTHER THANKS POLICE FOR ARRESTING SON

One mother wrote a letter thanking police for arresting her son. The statement of her appreciation to a California sheriff was sent after her 17-year-old boy had been arrested for curfew violation and possession of liquor.

"Please accept my profound thanks for picking up my son," the letter said. "All the big brother, heart-to-heart talks, all the lectures, all the articles, all the 'voices of experience' apparently didn't penetrate. This personal experience with the police shook him up." Then she added: "It also gives us quite a lever—his hair is cut, he wears a shirt, and now he's breaking in a nice new home."

Sometimes it takes a considerable shock to awaken persons, young or old, to their basic responsibilities to God, their families and the public at large.

The more that parents try to bring up their children from their earliest years in an atmosphere of love and openness, the less likely they will be to have such a jarring experience.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Highway 17 Is Hurting Us All

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Highway 17 will be with us until it is settled; many people are apprehensive as to whether the property is theirs or the Division of Highways; the real estate values have come to a standstill, there are no sales; also remodeling; it is having a serious repercussion on the economic values in the county. Your Editorial of Dec. 20—"Blind opposition can scuttle Freeway" could hardly have been digested without some comment, so it was good to read the late printing of these letters, Priscilla Gray, Sophia Spencer, Anne West and Don Lange. They explained we are not averse to progress in transportation; quite to the contrary, we all know the needs of Marin County but it is not a freeway to Pt. Reyes! We might add this continuation of 17 is being pressed by the east bay, to go over the Richmond-S.R. Bridge.

We had expected some support from our paper the (I-J) but you have been known to be unpredictable by the readers.

When you wrote about the predictions for 1967—what did you mean? "Beware of pleas for delays in Route 17 hearings, remember how the state highway Com. acceded to pleas for temporary delays only three or four months on Shoreline Highway Progress, that was several years ago."

That note was a reminder to check the record to see if facts indicate most pleas for delay are really stalling tactics by the opponents bent on scuttling any action at all; it still deserves to be checked out, hung onto it a bit longer.

We will do just that; but we are all anxious to get a decision so we can get back to normal living! We hope that our Sen. McCarthy and Assemblyman Bagley will assist in this very important means of transportation; I have read that the new administration will not go ahead with new highways unless they consult those who are involved. This ordeal has brought many people of the different communities together in one common cause; they are not selfish; if we don't want our homes and businesses destroyed why inflict it on some one else!

So we hope the New Year will come up with some constructive idea for a route to the Point Reyes Seashore and find it in the wide open spaces, and let us have the security of our homes!

Salaries And The Hub Council

Editor, Independent-Journal:

There has been so much comment on the San Anselmo City Council's motion to pay themselves $150 a month that perhaps a fuller report on their meeting is indicated.

City Atty. John Buresh opened the discussion by stating that if the councilmen voted themselves any salary at all, it would have to be in accordance with state law which provides a salary of exactly $150 a month for councilmen in cities of this population. To raise or lower the salary requires a vote of the people.

Advocates of the salary measure (Councilmen Capurro, Ragan and Smith) argued that councilmen should be reimbursed for their expense and time, and that a salary might well attract people who could not otherwise run for office, thus upgrading the level of candidates. Novato city councilmen are now paid $25 per meeting with a $75 a month maximum, they said; while $150 a month might well be too much, the only way to get $50 or $75 a month was to vote the ordinance in effect and put the lower salary range on the next election ballot. (No proviso for this latter argument was, however, incorporated in the motion.)

The opponents (Councilmen Reichmuth and Scott) said that on the contrary, a salary might degrade the level of candidates for council by attracting those who were interested primarily in the money. The salaries would be an unnecessary additional expense at a time when the city has been much concerned over effecting economies in the budget. Present councilmen had been elected because of their interest in the city. If councilmen are paid $150 a month, the city might unfortunately get someone who was worth just that.

The agenda and speakers for the next San Anselmo Homes Assn. meeting (8 p. m. Jan. 26 at Isabel Cook School) had already been lined up when this issue arose. However, it is now the last item on the agenda. We will discuss it and forward the majority opinion to the council. The public is, as always, invited to attend.

Fluoridation Story Cleared

Editor, Independent-Journal:

The Science Service article of Jan. 11 promoting fluoride is based upon an entirely different matter from artifical fluoridation in regard to the actual chemicals involved.

The quoted study of 1,000 North Dakota residents concerned naturally-occuring calcium fluoride only. But the authors of the paper, Drs. Hegsted and Fredrick Stare, imply that this would be the same as sodium fluoride, which is the artifical form they want to add to drinking waters. Naturally fluoridated waters are accompanied by a protective balance of minerals, particularly a predominance of calcium and magnesium. Other studies have indicated that it is the calcium and magnesium which is beneficial and essential to forming strong, healthy bones and teeth.

In a similar study Dr. Lewis Barnett made extensive analyses for all of the minerals in the soil and waters of Deaf Smith County, Texas. His conclusions indicate that the only mineral truly important in building resistance to osteoporosis is magnesium phosphate. Dr. Stare's nutrition team, however, made no attempt to determine the presence of any minerals other than fluoride in the water supplies of their North Dakota area.

Sodium fluoride is an active enzyme poison which has been proven to cause tooth decay and kidney disease in experimental animals, and which has been proven to only delay the onset of tooth decay in humans for one to three years, not by forming strong teeth but by interfering with the formation and eruption of the teeth. Even in small doses sodium fluoride, like arsenic, is a cumulative poison which should be dispensed only upon the prescription of a physician.

WASHINGTON — President Johnson, who might almost be called a new man because of his revised tactics in public relations, has shown how to take some of the thump out of a blockbuster.

In this case the blockbuster is the $73 billion he will ask Congress to approve for defense spending in the 1968 fiscal year, beginning July 1.

Johnson in his State of the Union message Jan. 10 told Congress and the country his budget for all government spending in the next fiscal year would be $135 billion, a record figure.

THE COUNTRY had been prepared for something like that. There had been a lot of guessing about it for weeks. Some guesses had run as high as $145 billion.

Since the country gets bigger every year, there are more people making more money, and the government's responsibilities increase, the budget is a cinch to keep going up.

But, if it weren't for the expense of fighting the war in Vietnam, Johnson's budget would be a lot less than $135 billion. There also had been a lot of guessing about how much Johnson would ask of Congress for defense spending.

HE CLEARED that up Tuesday night by calling in newsmen to say the figure would be $73 billion, although he estimated this would be only $5 billion more than the level for the present fiscal year.

But, by calling in the newsmen, Johnson was able to explain how hard he is trying to keep down expenses, despite the war. That $73 billion was the second highest estimate on defense spending in history.

In 1944, when he figured his total budget at $100 billion, President Franklin D. Roosevelt estimated spending on World War II activities for fiscal 1945 would be $88 billion. Those "war activities" covered practically everything connected with the war.

As an example of how defense spending has climbed because of Vietnam, in his last budget message President Dwight D. Eisenhower for fiscal 1962 in 1961 gave Congress a budget of $80.8 billion, with defense spending at $46 billion.

AT THE PEAK of the Korean War President Harry S Truman—in his 1953 message for fiscal 1954—laid out a budget of $79 billion, with $59.9 billion in military spending. In 1950, Truman had asked only $13 billion for defense.

Johnson, aware, of course, about some of the protests over his request to Congress on Jan. 10 for a tax increase, took pains when asked about it to inform newsmen on all the consulting he had done with the government's top economic experts.

He listed those who had recommended the tax boost.

After his news conference on Dec. 31, 1966, there could be no doubt Johnson has changed his approach to public relations. This came after months of relative silence in which he saw his popularity slipping.

AT THAT NEWS conference which was televised and broadcast — Johnson eliminated the facial expressions which he had used in the past. He deadpanned the reporters without smiles or gestures and, remaining simply straight-faced, answered their questions.

This change was evident for more than an hour the night of Jan. 10 when his State of the Union message to Congress was nationally televised. This was a straight-faced delivery, too.

Even the color of previous messages was absent from that one although, oddly enough, Johnson was then criticized by some for not being more colorful although, if he had been, he probably would have been criticized for being too fancy or optimistic.

Boards Sometimes Forget The Negro

By WHITNEY M. YOUNG JR.

MANY OF THE key decisions affecting our lives are taken by non-elective officers and boards.

A library board decides when libraries open and close, the board of a charitable organization decides what services it will provide and where, a zoning commission can alter the future of a neighborhood by its decisions. Because of the far-ranging influence of these bodies, it is essential that all elements of the community be represented in their membership.

Unfortunately, as in so many other areas of American life, Negroes are often excluded. This means that plans and decisions vitally affecting the lives of many Negro citizens are made in their absence.

THERE IS A double tragedy here. First, this separation between the decision-makers and the community encourages a feeling of alienation and powerlessness. Second, it results in a misuse of human resources, as the talents of the Negro community are neglected and underutilized.

The many Negroes who have established their leadership and capabilities, both on the job and in the many fraternal and charitable organizations which perform such excellent work, could contribute a great deal to the community at large.

In addition to this vast pool of under-utilized leadership, the Negro community includes still more people who have the qualities so sorely needed by these institutions, but lack the training.

TO HELP DEVELOP this latent leadership, the Urban League has a 10-city Leadership Development Program. About 1,800 people are being trained in community organization and leadership and civic affairs, and then attempt to gain appointment to the boards which influence their lives. A study made to establish the need for this program showed that city after city had no non-white participation boards like the board of elections, the civil service commission, the zoning commission, and other institutions, including private charitable groups.

The program is aimed mainly at people who have never involved themselves before in the life of the community — ordinary people who were surprised to find that they too, could do something of importance and help their friends and neighbors.

One man got so involved in the program that he decided to run for office and was elected mayor of his town. A mother on welfare became a member of her city's Poverty Program Committee. A housewife was appointed to the Goodwill Industries Board.

IN ONE CITY, some people in the program decided their neighborhood needed a better recreational program for kids and drew up plans for such a program, which was funded by the city.

In all of the participating cities there are many examples of individuals who had ability and leadership qualities and who just never made full use of them, getting appointments to city-wide boards and representing their community.

Despite the obvious need for minority representation, and despite the availability of people willing to serve, many agencies are still blind to the need to mend their ways. I recall one man in the program who was a civil servant in a large city and expressed an interest in working with a charitable agency.

Robert G. Miller, 15-year-old Redwood High School freshman, will receive his Eagle Scout badge at a Court of Honor at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the school's Little Theater.

Rob's achievement of Scouting's highest award comes two-and a half years after he hovered for weeks between life and death after being struck by a car on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard not far from his Greenbrae home at 30 Corte Loyola, July 9, 1964.

Despite doctors' fears at the time that he might never fully recover, if he lived, Rob made his comeback.

In scouting since he was 8, he is a member of Greenbrae Troop 59. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Miller.

Appeal Notice In Dope Search

Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales today said he has filed notice of appeal in the Jan. 9 ruling by Judge Joseph G. Wilson of Marin Superior Court that a San Rafael police search of a car containing $20,000 worth of marijuana was illegal.

Judge Wilson dismissed counts of marijuana possession and having marijuana for sale against Garth J. B. Upton, 22-year-old San Francisco State College student, because a search of the car Upton was driving was made after Upton had already been arrested for other violations and the car had been moved to the county courthouse.

He said a search without a search warrant must be conducted at the scene and during the process of arrest.

Upton is free pending outcome of the appeal

Merger Discussed

Consolidation of police and fire services throughout Marin County was discussed Wednesday evening by Almonte Improvement Club directors, but no action was taken, club president Herbert E. Davis reported.

State Accepts Controversial History Text

NEWPORT BEACH (AP)—A final revised version of "Land of the Free," controversial eighth - grade American history textbook, was accepted yesterday by the State Curriculum Commission.

The action clears the way for the book to be in schools next fall.

The new version was ordered after the original text, adopted last May, drew criticism from at least two Republican legislators who felt it presented an un-American view of American history.

RAFFERTY STAND

"We should not allow objections to the book in its original form to block approval of the revised book," said Dr. Max Rafferty, state superintendent for public instruction and chairman of the commission.

Rafferty said he disagreed with critics' statements that the book was "pro-communist" and did not treat Negroes fairly. "In fact," he said, "it contained some of the most scathing denunciations of communism I have seen in a textbook."

Rafferty said the book portrayed Negroes and other ethnic minorities fairly, as required by a law recently passed by the legislature.

More than 100 persons attended the hearing at which speakers denounced and defended the book.

Jay Risser, a trustee of the Pasadena area Junior College district said the controversy over the book jeopardized its effectiveness as an educational tool.

NAACP APPROVAL

Samuel Sheets, Altadena, president of the Pasadena branch of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP), called the book oustanding and said it dealt accurately with history, avoiding stereotypes and myths.

Commissioner D. Russell Parks, Fullerton, said that local districts may use previously adopted state books and books which they buy themselves in addition to the state book.

NAPA DEFENDER

Commissioner H. M. McTherson, Napa, called the book "exciting" and said teachers and students would like it.

"Land of the Free" is published by Franklin Publications of Pasadena. The main author is John W. Caughey, professor of history at University of California.

The commission postponed until its March 29-30 meeting a decision on whether it should endorse multiple adoption of textbooks. Such a system would give local school districts a choice of books to be provided by the state.

Woman's Cash Taken

THIS PIG DIDN'T WANT TO GO

A peasant who up to this week lived in the Iron Triangle, Viet Cong stronghold north of Saigon, has to drag his pig, who obviously fears he might be going to market. Tam Students Offered Tour In South Seas

An all-expense paid summer tour of the South Pacific has been offered for two Tamalpais High School students.

Jofgen With-Seidelin of Mill Valley, an owner of Marine Chartering Co. in San Francisco, offered the 45-day tour for his firm after discussing the idea with the school's Parent-Teacher assn.

"We would like to see eyes and ears go out in the world," he said. "We don't want just the best student or athlete; we're interested in those who would like to go to learn what is going on in the world in a small way."

Minimum age of the two students, either juniors or seniors, is 16 — and they must be boys. "They will share a two-berth cabin," With-Seidelin explained.

They will sail mid-July from San Francisco aboard the Italian freighter Graziella Zeta to Tahiti and American Samoa. The voyage will end in late August at Los Angeles. The 3,000-ton ship carries six passengers.

Selection of the two students will be by a five-man committee, consisting of With-Seidelin, Theodore R. Mitchell, school counselor, and three persons to be chosen by the Parent-Teacher Assn.

Report Due On Tiburon Downtown

Tiburon's downtown plan will again be up for discussion Monday.

A long awaited report on the plan by the Tiburon Peninsula Advisory Committee will be received by the city council at 8 p.m. at city hall.

Reports from the council's lands and development committee and the parks and recreation commission have already been reviewed by councilmen.

Any changes in the plan will have to be referred to the planning commission before the council can act. At least one public hearing will have to be held before final adoption.

An application for a community television antenna franchise from Clearview Cable Systems will be considered.

Supt. of public works, Louis F. Brunini, will recommend the council buy a new street sweeper rather than a used "high-maintenance piece of machinery" offered by the City of Salinas.

Frederick G. Zelinsky will appeal denial by the board of design review of a sign permit for Tiburon Lodge.

System Bids Slated

Bids for maintenance of the electrical distribution system at the Mill Valley Air Force station have been called by the base procurment office at Hamilton Air Force Base, to be opened at 3:30 p. m. Feb. 13.

Expansion Of U. S. Parks

By RICHARD F. NEWCOMB
AP Newsfeatures Writer

"We should continue to carry to every corner of the nation our campaign for a beautiful America—to clean up our towns to make them more beautiful, our cities, our countryside by creating more parks and more seashores and more open spaces for our children to play in and for the generations that come after us to enjoy."

That was President Johnson speaking, in his State of the Union message Jan. 10. And, of course, the system of national areas has been growing rapidly in recent years.

In the period 1961-66, no less than 45 national monuments, historic sites, seashores, parks, riverways, recreation areas and reserves have been added to the federal system. These were spread over 26 states, the District of Columbia and the Virgin Islands. Twenty states received at least one new national site, three states got two, three states got three and two states (New York and Texas) received five each.

Some of the additions were relatively small, such as Theodore Roosevelt's birthplace, a four-story brownstone house at 28 East 20th Street in New York City. Others are large areas, intended mostly for conservation and recreation.

Seashores and lakeshores are a comparatively new idea in national areas. In the past six years national seashores have been created at Point Reyes; Cape Cod, Mass.; Fire Island, N.Y.; Cape Lookout, N.C.; Padre Island, Tex., and Assateague Island, Md.-Va. The new national lakeshores are Indiana Dunes, Ind., and Pictured Rocks, Mich.

The remaining acquisitions fell into classes such as homes of prominent Americans—Lincoln, Edison, Herbert Hoover; historic forts—Davis in Texas, Smith in Arkansas, Larned in Kansas; unusual features — Ice Age Scientific Reserve in Wisconsin, agate fossil beds in Nebraska, the Alibates flint quarries in Texas; and just plain recreation areas, like Delaware Water Gap, N.J.-Pa., and Bighorn Canyon, Mont.-Wyo.

Put toegther, they make an ever-growing area of America being preserved for future generations for reasons of history, conservation, recreation and information.

For 1967, a dozen new areas have been approved by various government bureaus and will be presented to Congress for addition to the national preserves. These are:

Amistad National Recreation Area, Tex.; Boston National Historic Sites, Mass.; Constellation National Historic Site, Md.; Flaming Gorge National Recreation Area, Utah-Wyo.

SIERRA CLUB IS WINNING FRIENDS

By RONALD S. SUPINSKI

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A powerful Western conservation group—the Sierra Club—is preparing new avenues of attack in a battle with the federal government over the group's ideology and tax status.

The club has opposed establishment of a 45,000-acre Redwood National Park in northern California as proposed by the Johnson administration, and instead, is urging a park twice as large in a different area. The club also succeeded in helping to stall the $1.7 billion Pacific Southwest water project bill in the U.S. House last year.

Its current fight with the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) over whether contributions to the club can remain tax deductible has frightened away several donors but, at the same time, has won thousands of new club members across the United States.

David R. Brower, the gray-haired, erudite executive director of the club, estimated it lost about $125,000 in contributions since June when the IRS decided to audit records of the San Francisco-based organization.

"Over the same period," he said, "club membership increased by 9,000 from 38,000 to 47,000. This apparently was the result of people learning of the threat to the Grand Canyon by two proposed dams on the Colorado River."

The club, celebrating its 75th anniversary this year, battled the Federal Bureau of Reclamation, several congressmen and the Colorado river basin states to help kill the 1966 Pacific Southwest water bill aimed at bringing Colorado River water to arid areas. It was reported out of the House Interior and Insular Affairs Committee but never came to a floor vote because backers counted noses and found affirmative votes lacking.

"These dams would damage the canyon severely, waste water by evaporation and not pay for themselves," said Brower. He described them as merely "cash registers to start a development fund from power sales to help finance importation of water from the Columbia River" in the Northwest.

"We are, and always will be, opposed to construction of both or only one of the dams," added Brower. "One bullet in the head will do the job just as well as two."

As an alternative for the dams, Brower suggests that power at Hoover Dam be raised to finance diversion of Colorado River water into central and southern Arizona.

Proponents of the dams claim they would be far enough away from the canyon to cause only a very slight proportionate rise in the river's water level between reservoirs, and the rise would not be noticed from any public observation point.

They contend the lake behind Hualapai Dam would be 55.5 miles from the canyon's south rim and range from a depth of 89 to zero feet in a 3,000-foot deep gorge over the 13 miles it intrudes into the park.

U.S. Rep. Craig Hosmer, R-Calif., said the Sierra Club's "violently emotional opposition" to the dams under the guise of conservation is thwarting a potential water supply for "perhaps 50,000,000 people by the year 1999...throughout one-twelfth of the U.S."

"A new, reckless breed of leadership has taken hold of that organization," said Hosmer, referring to the conservation club.

"Using the flimsy pretext of saving the wilderness, it is attempting to thrust its monastic views upon a misinformed public, blocking orderly resource development for private political advantage."

The club is now marshalling 1967 forces to press for establishment by Congress of a Redwood National Park of about 90,000 acres in the Redwood creek-prairie area of northern California. Rep. Don H. Clausen, R-Calif., is expected to introduce a compromise proposal for such a park to include the Jedediah Smith Redwood State Park and a 46-mile stretch of seashore extending south to Patricks Point State Park.

Economic factors enter the picture. The lumber industry claims establishment of any large-sized Redwood Park will mean the loss of hundreds of jobs. Clausen said his compromise plan would "make jobs, not take jobs." During 1966, the Sierra Club launched a massive nationwide campaign, including congressional lobbying, against an administration bill calling for establishment of a National Redwood Park of 45,000 acres in the Mill Creek Area.

In ruling that the Sierra Club conducted "substantial legislative activity," Joseph M. Cullen, district director of the IRS in San Francisco, cited full-page advertisements placed in a few newspapers by the club urging support for the larger Redwood National Park and defeat of the Southwest water project authorizing the two Colorado River dams.

Cullen cited a law forbidding non-profit, tax-exempt institutions from engaging in "substantial activities directed toward influencing legislation."

Brower said the club would appeal Cullen's decision to the IRS in Washington and then go to federal courts in an effort to overturn the ruling.

Sen. Burns Questions Tuition Crisis Handling

By EDWIN C. CAPPS
Capitol News Service

SACRAMENTO — Sen. Hugh M. Burns, D-Fresno, president pro tem of the State Senate, thinks Gov. Ronald Reagan made a tactical error in his approach to tuition by discussing it with educators in a "forthright above-board consultation."

Burns comments came as the blacklash at the propaganda campaigns of the administration of the University of California and State Colleges against the tuition plan continued.

Here are some of the other comments and activities concerning the freeze on enrollments ordered by both the university and colleges and their hard-seil campaigns to block Reagan's tuition proposal.

Reagan's office received a bundle of 822 printed form letters, signed by apparent students, objecting to the tuition, which were stamped with the pastage meter at San Fernando Valley State College. Paul Beck, Reagan's assistant press secretary, said this was the only group of form leters received on tuition.

While there had been heavy mail against the proposal at first, Beck said mail now is running three-to-one in favor of the tuition plan and telegrams are running 10-to-one in favor of it.

Reagan questioned the need of a $700,000 annual public relations budget for the university.

Meanwhile, some eyebrows were raised here at the University of California hosting a reception for all legislators and constitutional officers earlier in the week. The biennial affair normally is hosted by the U. C. Alumni Assn. but this year, alumni members denied any connection with it.

Assembly Speaker Jesse M. Unruh, D-Inglewood, who has all but said flatly that he will oppose the tuition plan during this session of the legislature, cautioned professors at the university and state colleges to temper their reaction to Reagan's tuition proposal.

"While I can appreciate the fears which many of our university and college faculty have with regard to the imposition of tiution on their campuses. I believe it would be extremely unwise for them to over-react against this proposal," Unruh said.

Burns made his comments during the weekly televised news conference with Unruh, generally called the "Hughie-Jesse Show."

NO MOVES YET

Big Daddy Unruh Holds The Key To Reagan's 'Creative Society'

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan is busily fashioning his new program for California, but its enactment may be up to the "big daddy" of the state's politics.

Within the next few weeks, Jesse Marvin Unruh, 44-year-old Democratic speaker of the California Assembly, may have as much to say about the course of California's law-making as the new Republican Governor in his drive for a "creative society." So far he isn't saying.

If what anybody says goes in the California legislature, it's what Jess Unruh says. Politically, he is still "big daddy," but they stopped calling him that when a crash diet reduced him from 275 pounds to less than 200 in 1963.

Unruh himself views his political strength and influence as the product of his own making. "When I first took this job it was largely that of presiding over the Assembly," Unruh told an interviewer. "I have vastly expanded the horizons of this job."

Unruh's political muscle stretches through both houses of the legislature—on both sides of the aisle—and California's factious Democratic Party, where he has developed his own political machinery.

Unruh, born in Newton, Kans., of German Mennonite parents, the son of an illiterate sharecropper, attended Wayland Baptist College at Plainview, Tex., on a scholarship.

He interrupted his education to work as a sheet metal worker and serve in the Naval Air Corps and graduated in 1948 from the University of Southern California. He majored in journalism and political science and was named by his class as one of the five outstanding seniors.

Unruh was defeated in his first bid for the Assembly in 1952 by a 14-year Republican incumbent. Two years later, he defeated the Republican and has been re-elected each term since. His rise to prominence in the legislature was meteoric. He was first elected speaker in 1961—on his 39th birthday—and has been overwhelmingly re-elected each session.

In his early years as speaker, Unruh steered fellow Democratic Gov. Edmund G. Brown's state budget through the legislature. But as he gained more strength, he frequently parted political company with Brown and seemed at times to be one of his chief antagonists.

Unruh views Reagan's million-vote election victory as more of a rejection of Brown's third-term bid than a positive pro-Reagan sentiment.

"I don't think the governor wanted another term that badly," he said, "but he listened to the blandishments of the people around him. I never kidded the governor at all. I told him as early as 1963 he was going down the wrong path. But I hold no grudges against the governor whatsoever."

Operating under a Republican governor will be a new experience for Unruh. He says his political relationship with Reagan is uncertain, but "I'm inclined to think our personal relationship will be quite good for a long time."

Reagan's conservatively-slanted "Creative Society" plans run counter to Unruh's own legislative record and he has plans for 1976 which go beyond Reagan's own proposals—including wholesale reform of the state's tax system.

Unruh has remained publicly noncommittal on Reagan's proposed 10 per cent state budget cutbacks and his call for a tuition at the University of California and state colleges, but he counsels:

"You always have a choice of virtually everything that comes along. Both the governor and the legislature is going to have to do some yielding."

This Week In The World

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Sir Winston Churchill once described the Communist regime in Russia as "a riddle wrapped in a mystery inside an enigma."

Had he added "inscrutable," a word traditionally applied to Orientals, he would have been describing mainland China today.

A welter of rumors, propaganda and reports have been emanating from Peking concerning the titanic power struggle under way between Communist party Chairman Mao Tse-tung and his political opponents.

Reports this week from Red China said Mao had mounted a new counterattack against his enemies but has not been able to stifle the opposition.

Mao's chief opponent President Liu-Shao-ching is rumored to have fallen into Mao's hands but there was no confirmation of reports he was under house arrest in Peking in a walled compound where high government and party officials reside.

The difficulty of direct communication with Red China and the political orientation of many of the news sources have rendered some of the reports suspect.

But Peking itself has admitted the serious nature of the current turmoil.

Peking Radio, which in the past has admitted the existence of considerable unrest throughout the country by peasants and intellectuals broadcast an editorial this week appearing in the pro-Mao Peking People's Daily which called on supporters of Mao to seize control of all press and propaganda media throughout the country.

It seemed to imply that much of the national press was still under control of Mao's opponents.

Is he winning?

Around The World, Around The Nation:

Saigon: U.S. military authorities announced that American troops in Vietnam suffered their heaviest casualties of the war last week. Spokesmen said 1,188 servicemen were killed or wounded in action.

Saigon: U.S. Air Force jet bombers for the first time in almost a month struck the Hanoi area fuel dump which supplies North Vietnamese MIG jets.

On the ground in South Vietnam, American troops thrust deeper into the Iron Triangle. The toll of enemy dead in the Iron Triangle sweep mounted close to the 600 mark.

Seoul, Korea: North Korean shore guns sank a South Korean navy patrol craft. Twenty-eight crewmen drowned and 11 others died later of wounds.

New York: Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy's suit over the controversial book "The Death of a President" appeared to be over and settled in her favor.

ROBERT G. MILLER
Eagle Scout

Robert Miller Will Receive Eagle Rank

Robert G. Miller, 15-year-old Redwood High School freshman, will receive his Eagle Scout badge at a Court of Honor at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the school's Little Theater.

Rob's achievement of Scouting's highest award comes two-and a half years after he hovered for weeks between life and death after being struck by a car on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard not far from his Greenbrae home at 30 Corte Loyola, July 9, 1964.

Despite doctors' fears at the time that he might never fully recover, if he lived, Rob made his comeback.

In scouting since he was 8, he is a member of Greenbrae Troop 59. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Miller.

Appeal Notice In Dope Search

Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales today said he has filed notice of appeal in the Jan. 9 ruling by Judge Joseph G. Wilson of Marin Superior Court that a San Rafael police search of a car containing $20,000 worth of marijuana was illegal.

Judge Wilson dismissed counts of marijuana possession and having marijuana for sale against Garth J. B. Upton, 22-year-old San Francisco State College student, because a search of the car Upton was driving was made after Upton had already been arrested for other violations and the car had been moved to the county courthouse.

He said a search without a search warrant must be conducted at the scene and during the process of arrest.

Upton is free pending outcome of the appeal

Merger Discussed

Consolidation of police and fire services throughout Marin County was discussed Wednesday evening by Almonte Improvement Club directors, but no action was taken, club president Herbert E. Davis reported.

State Accepts Controversial History Text

NEWPORT BEACH (AP)—A final revised version of "Land of the Free," controversial eighth-grade American history textbook, was accepted yesterday by the State Curriculum Commission.

The action clears the way for the book to be in schools next fall.

The new version was ordered after the original text, adopted last May, drew criticism from at least two Republican legislators who felt it presented an un-American view of American history.

RAFFERTY STAND

"We should not allow objections to the book in its original form to block approval of the revised book," said Dr. Max Rafferty, state superintendent for public instruction and chairman of the commission.

Rafferty said he disagreed with critics' statements that the book was "pro-communist" and did not treat Negroes fairly. "In fact," he said, "it contained some of the most scathing denunciations of communism I have seen in a textbook."

Rafferty said the book portrayed Negroes and other ethnic minorities fairly, as required by a law recently passed by the legislature.

More than 100 persons attended the hearing at which speakers denounced and defended the book.

Jay Risser, a trustee of the Pasadena area Junior College district said the controversy over the book jeopardized its effectiveness as an educational tool.

NAACP APPROVAL

Samuel Sheets, Altadena, president of the Pasadena branch of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP), called the book oustanding and said it dealt accurately with history, avoiding stereotypes and myths.

Commissioner D. Russell Parks, Fullerton, said that local districts may use previously adopted state books and books which they buy themselves in addition to the state book.

NAPA DEFENDER

Commissioner H. M. McTherson, Napa, called the book "exciting" and said teachers and students would like it.

"Land of the Free" is published by Franklin Publications of Pasadena. The main author is John W. Caughey, professor of history at University of California.

The commission postponed until its March 29-30 meeting a decision on whether it should endorse multiple adoption of textbooks. Such a system would give local school districts a choice of books to be provided by the state.

Woman's Cash Taken

Theft of $45 in cash was reported Thursday to Mill Valley police by Francis V. Adams, 169 Throckmorton Avenue.

THIS PIG DIDN'T WANT TO GO

A peasant who up to this week lived in the Iron Triangle, Viet Cong stronghold north of Saigon, has to drag his pig, who obviously fears he might be going to market. Instead, peasant, pig and belongings were among 8,000 civilians evacuated from the Iron Triangle and relocated by U.S. and Vietnamese officials, so a scorched earth sweep can be made of the Reds' hiding place. Tam Students Offered Tour In South Seas

An all-expense paid summer tour of the South Pacific has been offered for two Tamalpais High School students.

Jofgen With-Seidelin of Mill Valley, an owner of Marine Chartering Co. in San Francisco, offered the 45-day tour for his firm after discussing the idea with the school's Parent-Teacher assn.

"We would like to see eyes and ears go out in the world," he said. "We don't want just the best student or athlete; we're interested in those who would like to go to learn what is going on in the world in a small way."

Minimum age of the two students, either juniors or seniors, is 16 — and they must be boys. "They will share a two-berth cabin," With-Seidelin explained.

They will sail mid-July from San Francisco aboard the Italian freighter Graziella Zeta to Tahiti and American Samoa. The voyage will end in late August at Los Angeles. The 3,000-ton ship carries six passengers.

Selection of the two students will be by a five-man committee, consisting of With-Seidelin, Theodore R. Mitchell, school counselor, and three persons to be chosen by the Parent-Teacher Assn.

Report Due On Tiburon Downtown

Tiburon's downtown plan will again be up for discussion Monday.

A long awaited report on the plan by the Tiburon Peninsula Advisory Committee will be received by the city council at 8 p.m. at city hall.

Reports from the council's lands and development committee and the parks and recreation commission have already been reviewed by councilmen.

Any changes in the plan will have to be referred to the planning commission before the council can act. At least one public hearing will have to be held before final adoption.

An application for a community television antenna franchise from Clearview Cable Systems will be considered.

Supt. of public works, Louis F. Brunini, will recommend the council buy a new street sweeper rather than a used "high-maintenance piece of machinery" offered by the City of Salinas.

Frederick G. Zelinsky will appeal denial by the board of design review of a sign permit for Tiburon Lodge.

System Bids Slated

Bids for maintenance of the electrical distribution system at the Mill Valley Air Force station have been called by the base procurment office at Hamilton Air Force Base, to be opened at 3:30 p. m. Feb. 13.

The Smothers Are Back—This Time With Their Kind Of Show

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The Smothers Brothers, Tom and Dick, return to television in a couple of weeks, after being booted off the air last year, to replace Garry Moore, who was axed this year.

It is fair to ponder why CBS-TV would gamble again with the brothers. And the answer is fairly simple. This time they are going with a live audience in a variety format.

Titled "The Smother Brothers Comedy Hour," the new series is a refreshing departure from their defunct situation comedy show which was more situation than comedy.

"WE FEEL THAT show was an artistic flop but a rating success," said Dick over a Mexican lunch which disagreed with his digestive system.

"Yeah, we were victims of the sponsor dropping us," Tom added, nursing an ulcer with a glass of milk. "But we didn't like working on film without an audience. And we don't like cliche situation comedy."

The boys are convinced the new show, which beams Feb. 5, is the real them.

"OUR CAREERS have been based on live performances," said Dick. "And our best television shots have been as guest performers on live shows like Johnny Carson."

More importantly to both young singer-comedians is a free hand to produce the kind of show they want.

Last year they were embattled with writers, producers and executives who thought they knew what they Smothers did best. They were wrong.

"THIS NEW SHOW is our own company production," Dick said. "It's our responsibility."

Tom gulped his milk and said, "We will express our own feelings and taste. If the show isn't a success it will be our fault. But we expect it to be a good show.

"Our first guests will be Ed Sullivan, Jim Nabors and Jill St. John. And later on we've got George Burns, Jack Benny, Jimmy Durante and Bette Davis. We'll have other guests in songs, sketches and special departments."

THE NETWORK has a firm 26-week commitment for the series which raises it above the level of a replacement show to fill out the balance of the season.

If it is a hit the boys will be recalled for active duty in the television wars next fall. If not, it will perish this summer.

The vexing problem is that the Smothers Bros. are on the air opposite "Bonanza," the No. 1 show in the ratings for the past five years or so.

The Cartwright clan has killed off more opposition and broken more hearts than all the polls and ratings put together. Tom and Dick Smothers will have to be funny, very funny, to hold their own.

The Smothers Are Back—This Time With Their Kind Of Show

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The Smothers Brothers, Tom and Dick, return to television in a couple of weeks, after being booted off the air last year, to replace Garry Moore, who was axed this year.

It is fair to ponder why CBS-TV would gamble again with the brothers. And the answer is fairly simple. This time they are going with a live audience in a variety format.

Titled "The Smother Brothers Comedy Hour," the new series is a refreshing departure from their defunct situation comedy show which was more situation than comedy.

"WE FEEL THAT show was an artistic flop but a rating success," said Dick over a Mexican lunch which disagreed with his digestive system.

"Yeah, we were victims of the sponsor dropping us," Tom added, nursing an ulcer with a glass of milk. "But we didn't like working on film without an audience. And we don't like cliche situation comedy."

The boys are convinced the new show, which beams Feb. 5, is the real them.

"OUR CAREERS have been based on live performances," said Dick. "And our best television shots have been as guest performers on live shows like Johnny Carson."

More importantly to both young singer-comedians is a free hand to produce the kind of show they want.

Last year they were embattled with writers, producers and executives who thought they knew what they Smothers did best. They were wrong.

"THIS NEW SHOW is our own company production," Dick said. "It's our responsibility."

Tom gulped his milk and said, "We will express our own feelings and taste. If the show isn't a success it will be our fault. But we expect it to be a good show.

"Our first guests will be Ed Sullivan, Jim Nabors and Jill St. John. And later on we've got George Burns, Jack Benny, Jimmy Durante and Bette Davis. We'll have other guests in songs, sketches and special departments."

THE NETWORK has a firm 26-week commitment for the series which raises it above the level of a replacement show to fill out the balance of the season.

If it is a hit the boys will be recalled for active duty in the television wars next fall. If not, it will perish this summer.

The vexing problem is that the Smothers Bros. are on the air opposite "Bonanza," the No. 1 show in the ratings for the past five years or so.

The Cartwright clan has killed off more opposition and broken more hearts than all the polls and ratings put together. Tom and Dick Smothers will have to be funny, very funny, to hold their own.

Jamie Has Courage And Talent

Blind Girl Plans Career As A Professional Singer

What 12-year-old Jamie Giragi of Santa Venetia doesn't have is sight.

She has been blind since birth.

But what Jamie does have in super abundance is talent and courage.

The talent is demonstrated in a sweet voice that enables her to sing like a bird.

The courage is shown in her high spirits and unfailing optimism. And in her plans, despite her handicaps, for a professional career as a singer.

THOSE WHO know Jamie are betting that she will make it.

Jamie was born three months prematurely, and as a result was afflicted by crippling, paralyzing cerebral palsy.

One effect of its ravages was blindness.

The 12 years that have followed are testimony to what faith and hope can do, even for those stricken with one of mankind's most dreaded ailments.

The fact that every piece of reading material she uses must be in braille is no deterrent to her quest for knowledge.

She is an active member of the Girl Scouts, and participates faithfully and actively in all their outings.

SHE IS A member of the school chorus — and there is where her God-given talent of a beautiful voice is evident.

Mrs. Giragi says her daughter began singing "almost as soon as she started talking."

While Jamie's voice won the admiration of her mother, it attracted no special attention at first. Then she was enrolled for voice lessons from Jane Bowman. And Mrs. Giragi was informed that not only did Jamie possess an excellent voice—but that it was one which was going to get better.

HER TWO favored songs are "Scarlet Ribbons" and "All My Trials."

These she sings in a clear, rich voice, the lyrics delivered with great meaning.

By herself, Jamie has learned to accompany her singing on the auto-harp, similar to a zither.

RECENTLY, SHE was presented in a recital at Dominican College in San Rafael.

Music is not Jamie's only interest. Instead she maintains a keen awareness and appreciation of all the wonderful things the world has to offer.

For example, she is among the foremost fans of the San Francisco Giants baseball team.

Her favorite singing group is the We Five, heard often in Marin.

WHEN SHE discusses the younger generation, Jamie speaks with the insight of a member, but with the maturity and perception of a much older person.

"The trouble today with the younger generation is their self-interest and self-pity," she says. "They should be concerned about helping others, not about themselves."

Of her own misfortune, she says: "As long as you have a problem and you can't do anything to change it, you just have to live with it as best you can."

AFTER TWO major operations, daily physical therapy, leg braces and a walker, Jamie can now walk independently, with the aid of crutches.

She still has physical therapy at Marindale School in Terra Linda.

For this progress, Jamie gives thanks to organizations such as the United Cerebral Palsy of Marin Inc., currently conducting its annual fund campaign, which have made possible the special services and treatment that would be financially impossible for the average family.

NOT EVEN these organizations and the generous citizens who support them can give Jamie the precious gift of sight.

But this 12-year-old has done a pretty good job on her own of overcoming that handicap.

You don't have to see to sing. Nor to set your sights upon a career goal and work toward its realization.

SHARON CARNES, who represented her home state of Minnesota in the Miss America Pageant, is now a resident of Mill Valley, commuting to San Francisco five days a week to her job as featured singer on "The John Bartholomew Tucker Show" on KPIX (Channel 5).

SHARON CARNES

Miss Minnesota Is Now A Marinite

By DON KEOWN

Sharon Carnes, a one-time Miss Minnesota, is very much a Marinite now.

"We love it here," she says of the Mill Valley home where she and her stock broker husband Neil Aslin reside.

The trouble is that her busy career on television hasn't always permitted her as much time at home as she might like.

She's the singing star of "The John Bartholomew Tucker Show" which originates five days a week in the KPIX studios in San Francisco and which is seen weekdays at 3:30 p. m. on Channel 5 in the Bay Area.

IN ADDITION to singing a lot and dancing a little, Sharon serves generally as host Tucker's "right-hand girl" on the variety-interview format show.

"Although it keeps me on the run, I love it," she says.

The Tucker show, however, is going off the air after next week, following a long and successful run on Channel 5.

Sharon, a 22-year-old blue-eyed blonde, says she has been singing "since I was a baby."

Her parents, while not professional musicians, did enjoy music "and we had a sort of family quartet in our church—my father, my mother, my brother and myself."

IN HER JUNIOR high school years, Sharon joined with two other girls to form a singing trio that continued to perform through their high school and University of Minnesota years.

Before breaking up, the trio won a national talent contest entered by some 8,000 acts.

"The McGuire Sisters were our idols," Sharon says. "I'm afraid we copied them a bit too much."

It was in 1964 that she won the Miss Minnesota title. She went on to place 11th in the Miss America Pageant at Atlantic City, N. J.

SHE RETURNED to her hometown of St. Paul, Minn., to perform in musicals with the St. Paul Civic Opera. Then in 1965 she went to New York City to bid for a career.

She appeared on the Merv Griffin and Jimmy Dean shows, and was featured in a number of singing commercials made for television.

There followed auditions by the Westinghouse Broadcasting Co., first in New York, then in San Francisco, for the new show it was contemplating to be hosted by John Bartholomew Tucker. It was then she first met Tucker.

Sharon won the contract and the job.

TELEVISION writers describe her as "pert and vivacious." She is five feet four inches tall. Indicative of her fondness for outdoor sports such as swimming, tennis, ice skating and skiing are the freckles that occasionally pop out.

Tito then proceeds to follow Sharon about the television building with boundless energy.

ASKED WHO her personal favorite is among the singers, like so many people in the profession Sharon Carnes answers

Pert Singer Has Won Fans On TV Show

without hesitation: "Frank Sinatra. People seem to either like or dislike him a lot. Well, I like him."

Pressed for other names, she selects Doris Day and Barbra Streisand among the women singers, but adds: "There are a lot of others I like, too."

"In fact," she says, "I like music of all kinds."

She is especially fond of opera and classical music.

ROCK 'N' ROLL, too, holds her interest.

"I don't sing it often because it is something I just can't do well," she says. "But I like it —particularly dancing to it."

The Beatles, she believes, have great and genuine talent.

"But I try not to be influenced by others in my own singing," she says. "I have tried to develop my own style as much as possible."

GENERALLY, she avoids the standard top 100 chart tunes.

"I choose the songs I enjoy," she explains, "because I feel I can transmit my own enjoyment to my listeners."

She also strives for variety. But most of her selections fall in the "pop" or "show tune" categories.

Once in awhile she takes on something out of the ordinary— "I even do a little rock 'n' roll."

"I LIKE TO think my songs have wide appeal," she says.

The Tucker shows largest audiences have been the housewives, as it true of most daytime television programs. But the show also has a following among the retired, and, particularly in the summer, among young people.

She describes, Tucker, also a Mill Valley resident. as being "like the boy next door. He is as natural and as likable off camera as he is on camera. I think he has a manner that is very appealing. And he is delightful to work with."

HER ASSOCIATION with the television show frequently brought her into contact with celebrities. The show business personalities are the ones she remembers best—"perhaps because they are the ones I am most often asked about."

Included have been the likes of Charlton Heston, Jerry Lewis, Art Linkletter, Jimmy Dean and many other "exciting people," as Sharon terms them.

Lewis, despite his reputation for temperament, was "an angel" on the day he appeared on the Tucker show, Sharon says.

The Tucker program began with a guarantee of one-year on the air. Now it is on its own, and this week time ran out for it as it does for all TV shows.

"OUR RATINGS have been excellent," she says.

Thus this week's announcement that the show was being dropped came as a surprise to the singing star. But all is not dark for her. She has a number of other possibilities, including indications she may be in line for a continuing role in a television situation comedy series.

She has been taking drama and dance lessons at Jack Kosslyn's studio in San Francisco.

OUTSIDE OF a few jingle commercials — pianist Steve Atkin of the Tucker program is in the business — the KPIX series has occupied all of Sharon's working time since she came west.

"If we're not on the air, it seems that I am either rehearsing in the studio or at home," she says.

She likes television and would like to make a movie, preferring both TV and films to the legitimate stage. "Still I hope to do some summer stock," she says.

In the meantime, Sharon is enjoying the Bay Area in what free time her television work leaves her.

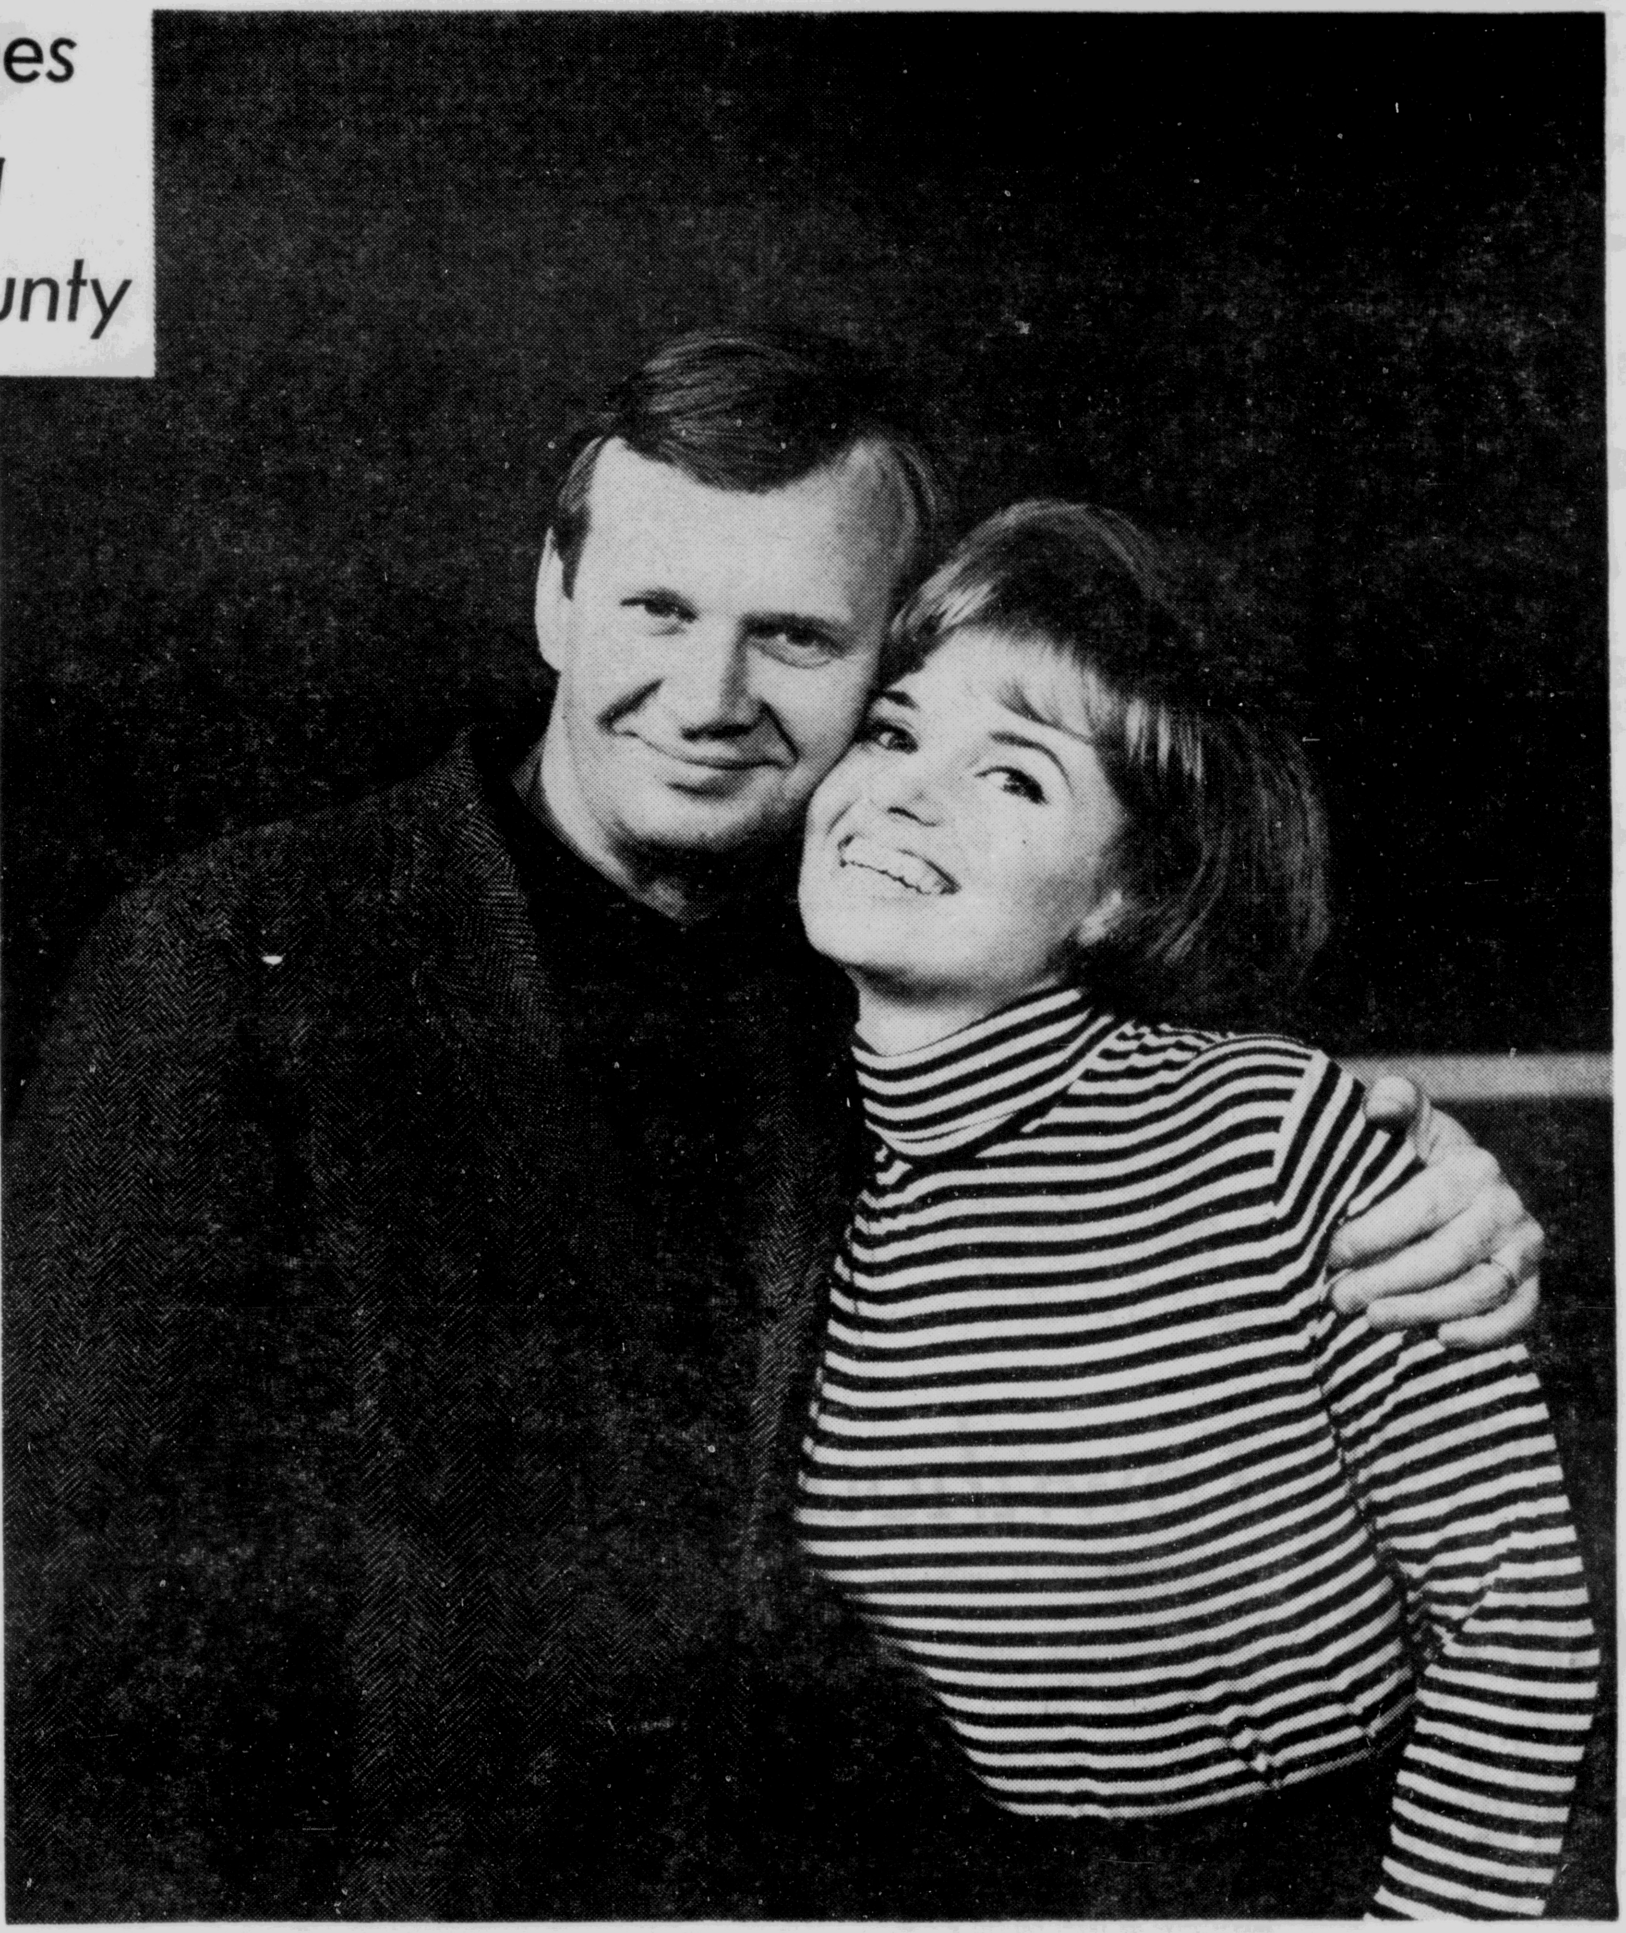
SHE STILL describes herself as "basically a Midwest girl." But she loves Marin and the San Francisco area.

"The restaurants are particularly interesting," she says. "I even tasted raw fish."

She admits to having a liking for sweets and pastries that sometimes brings her up against temptation.

SHE AND husband Neil (she calls him "Jack" because his middle name is Jackson) also enjoy occasional visits to the Lake Tahoe area.

"The slot machines are fascinating," she says. "Still I feel guilty, even when I lose one dollar."



HOST JOHN Bartholomew Tucker gets together with his favorite singer, Sharon Carnes, for an affectionate pose. The two have worked well together in the interview and variety format featured on the "The John Bartholomew Tucker Show" that closes next week. Both are Mill Valley residents.

Or, looking at it more positively, as does Edwin E. M. Lee, vice president of the Peacock Lagoon Construction Co., developers of the project, one of the more exclusive communities of its kind.

"IN OUR development of this choice piece of land on Biscayne Drive, we aimed specifically at the needs of a relatively limited category of home buyers," Lee says.

Lee lists this potential market as including "refugees" and "shrinking families."

The group of families most interested in townhouse living, he adds, are the "refugees from and in rebellion against a lifetime of weekend gardening and house maintenance work."

THEY ARE now seeking a more relaxed, chore-free way of living.

The "shrinking families," Lee goes on, are those parents whose children are grown and gone, leaving mother and father rattling around in a house that is much too large for their needs.

They find, according to Lee, that compact townhouse living accommodations are tailor-made for them.

WORKING couples and retired couples are the other major segments of the townhouse community.

"In short," says Lee, "these are people who are demanding simplified living where time can be put to pleasant uses such as hobbies, golf, travel, reading or just relaxing beside the townhouse pool."

San Francisco architect Karl Treffinger was asked to design 14 units suited to such discriminating buyers, and to the country club environment of the area.

EXCLUSIVITY and serenity were to be stressed, along with high quality materials and workmanship, and well-planned traffic patterns within the homes themselves.

Peacock Hill townhouses, clustered around a small cul-de-sac off Biscayne Drive, are elegant, private, and demand a minimum of the owner's time in chores.

Captain Short's Pelican

Marin Man's Sailboat Has Big Following

By RICHARD LYTTLE

Seven years ago, Capt. William H. Short of Larkspur designed and built a boat that he hoped would provide dry sailing on the often choppy waters of San Francisco Bay.

There are now more than 2,200 of Short's boat. They are known by the class name of "Pelican."

The design was conceived to make sailing a family affair. That was Short's idea. He did not know there were so many others with the same thought in mind.

HE HAS SENT his plans to many foreign lands. There is a Pelican in Pakistan and two in the West Indies. One of the newest fleets to be organized is in Ontario, Canada.

The first Pelican was the Chloe Maru which Short launched in 1959. The growth of the class got its first publicity boost in 1961 when Marin Magazine ran a feature story about Short's unique 12-foot dinghy. Later, Short wrote an illustrated story for Rudder Magazine. In November, 1966, the Pelican and its plans were featured as cover story on Fawcett Publication's bi-annual publication, "How to Build 20 Boats."

On the cover was the Pelican built by Jack Adams of Mill Valley.

THERE SEEMS little end in sight to the extension of the Pelican's popularity.

Short figures that the safety features, its broad beam with remarkable stability for a 325-pound boat, and its carrying capacity, being able to carry six adults, contribute greatly to its popularity.

Another big contributing factor is that it is easy to build.

The professional builders sell a completed Pelican for about $750. The home builder can construct the boat for tbout $350. Although Short has authorized nine franchises to builders across the country, most sailors want to build their own Pelican.

SHORT AND his wife, Muriel, who live at 203 Hawthorne Avenue, Larkspur, have mailed out about 3,000 plans. The Pelican Racing and Cruising Assn. has registered 415 of these with racing numbers, but Short figures many more have been built by skippers interested only in cruising.

The Pelican is handy for both racing and cruising. She is fast for her length with a flat, planing bottom. The interest in racing the Pelican is attested by the ever growing number of fleets and by the annual Transbay Race put on by the association itself.

The first race in June of 1963 had seven boats competing. The next year there were 28, the next 36 and last June there were 42 boats.

Short, a tugboat captain for Santa Fe, is much concerned with safety. He said that the last Transbay Race was held on an unusually stormy day, but all boats finished.

Just recently, since the article on building the Pelican came out, Short has devised what he believes will give self-righting flotation to his craft. It is conventional foam flotation laid in an unconventional pattern. Instead of putting equal amount of flotation along the sides and under the deck on each beam, Short found through experiments with a model, that the boat would right itself from a bottom-up position, with more on the under deck side and with flotation on one side only.

SOME PELICAN skippers may think this is being overly concerned with safety. It is pretty hard to get a Pelican into a bottom-up position.

The craft can take gales up to 40 miles an hour and not dip her sides. Last summer George Knutsen of Petaluma sailed his Pelican (No. 51) from Inverness, out Tomales Bay and south to San Francisco, a feat skippers on many larger class boats would hesitate to attempt.

Knutsen told his friends it was easy, and just to prove it, he sailed from San Francisco back to Inverness.

R. C. WILD of Encitas, near San Diego, sailed from San Diego to circumnavigate Catalina Island and return to home port. Enroute he passed a whale which was flipping its tail close to the boat.

First fleet was the San Francisco Fleet. Since then a Los Angeles-San Diego Fleet has formed, another on Long Island, another on Ontario and still another at Samish Island, Wash.

Mrs. Short, who handles much of the correspondence involved, said that there are several new fleets being contemplated in the Great Lakes area as well as one in the Hawaiian Islands.

SHORT SELLS plans for $7. Registration, handled by fleet Capt. Guy C. Rear, 3725 Willis Drive, Napa, costs $5.

Short and his wife are not getting rich through selling blueprints, but the correspondence has brought new friends and much interest.

Once they received a letter from a man who was being transferred to the Virgin Islands and was going to take his Pelican with him. The Shorts were able to put him in touch with another Pelican skipper there.

THE SHORTS are also asked for building and safety advice. A Colorado resident recently wrote that he planned taking his family on a cruise of the Texas inland water way. He wanted to know what happens when a Pelican capsizes. It had never happened to him.

Much credit for getting the boat started as a class should go to George Ingram, part-time San Anselmo resident. Ingram's

MORE GOLF

TOWNHOUSE LIVING is great! You have more time for the "better things of life." In a PEACOCK HILL townhouse, you're just three short blocks from the first tee at Peacock Gap golf course. No guilty conscience will nag when you goof off for a round. You know that somebody else is doing your chores, thanks to townhouse neighbors who share the costs of gardener, pool service and building maintenance. Your share is a pittance . . . and what freedom it buys from time consuming house and garden chores.

IF YOU'RE NO GOLFER, relax in your townhouse living room and enjoy the spectacular view across the 12th fairway, with wooded hills and Mt. Tamalpais as background to your dreams.

THE TIME TO BUY is now. A very limited number of 2-bedroom, 2-bath townhouses is available. Prices are startlingly modest.

A beautifully furnished home is open daily from 12 to 5 for your admiration.

The craft can take gales up to 40 miles an hour and not dip her sides. Last summer George Knutsen of Petaluma sailed his Pelican (No. 51) from Inverness, out Tomales Bay and south to San Francisco, a feat skippers on many larger class boats would hesitate to attempt.

Knutsen told his friends it was easy, and just to prove it, he sailed from San Francisco back to Inverness.

R. C. WILD of Encitas, near San Diego, sailed from San Diego to circumnavigate Catalina Island and return to home port. Enroute he passed a whale which was flipping its tail close to the boat.

First fleet was the San Francisco Fleet. Since then a Los Angeles-San Diego Fleet has formed, another on Long Island, another on Ontario and still another at Samish Island, Wash.

Mrs. Short, who handles much of the correspondence involved, said that there are several new fleets being contemplated in the Great Lakes area as well as one in the Hawaiian Islands.

SHORT SELLS plans for $7. Registration, handled by fleet Capt. Guy C. Rear, 3725 Willis Drive, Napa, costs $5.

Short and his wife are not getting rich through selling blueprints, but the correspondence has brought new friends and much interest.

Once they received a letter from a man who was being transferred to the Virgin Islands and was going to take his Pelican with him. The Shorts were able to put him in touch with another Pelican skipper there.

THE SHORTS are also asked for building and safety advice. A Colorado resident recently wrote that he planned taking his family on a cruise of the Texas inland water way. He wanted to know what happens when a Pelican capsizes. It had never happened to him.

Much credit for getting the boat started as a class should go to George Ingram, part-time San Anselmo resident. Ingram's

TOWNHOUSE LIVING is great! You have more time for the "better things of life." In a PEACOCK HILL townhouse, you're just three short blocks from the first tee at Peacock Gap golf course. No guilty conscience will nag when you goof off for a round. You know that somebody else is doing your chores, thanks to townhouse neighbors who share the costs of gardener, pool service and building maintenance. Your share is a pittance . . . and what freedom it buys from time consuming house and garden chores.

IF YOU'RE NO GOLFER, relax in your townhouse living room and enjoy the spectacular view across the 12th fairway, with wooded hills and Mt. Tamalpais as background to your dreams.

THE TIME TO BUY is now. A very limited number of 2-bedroom, 2-bath townhouses is available. Prices are startlingly modest.

from $29,000

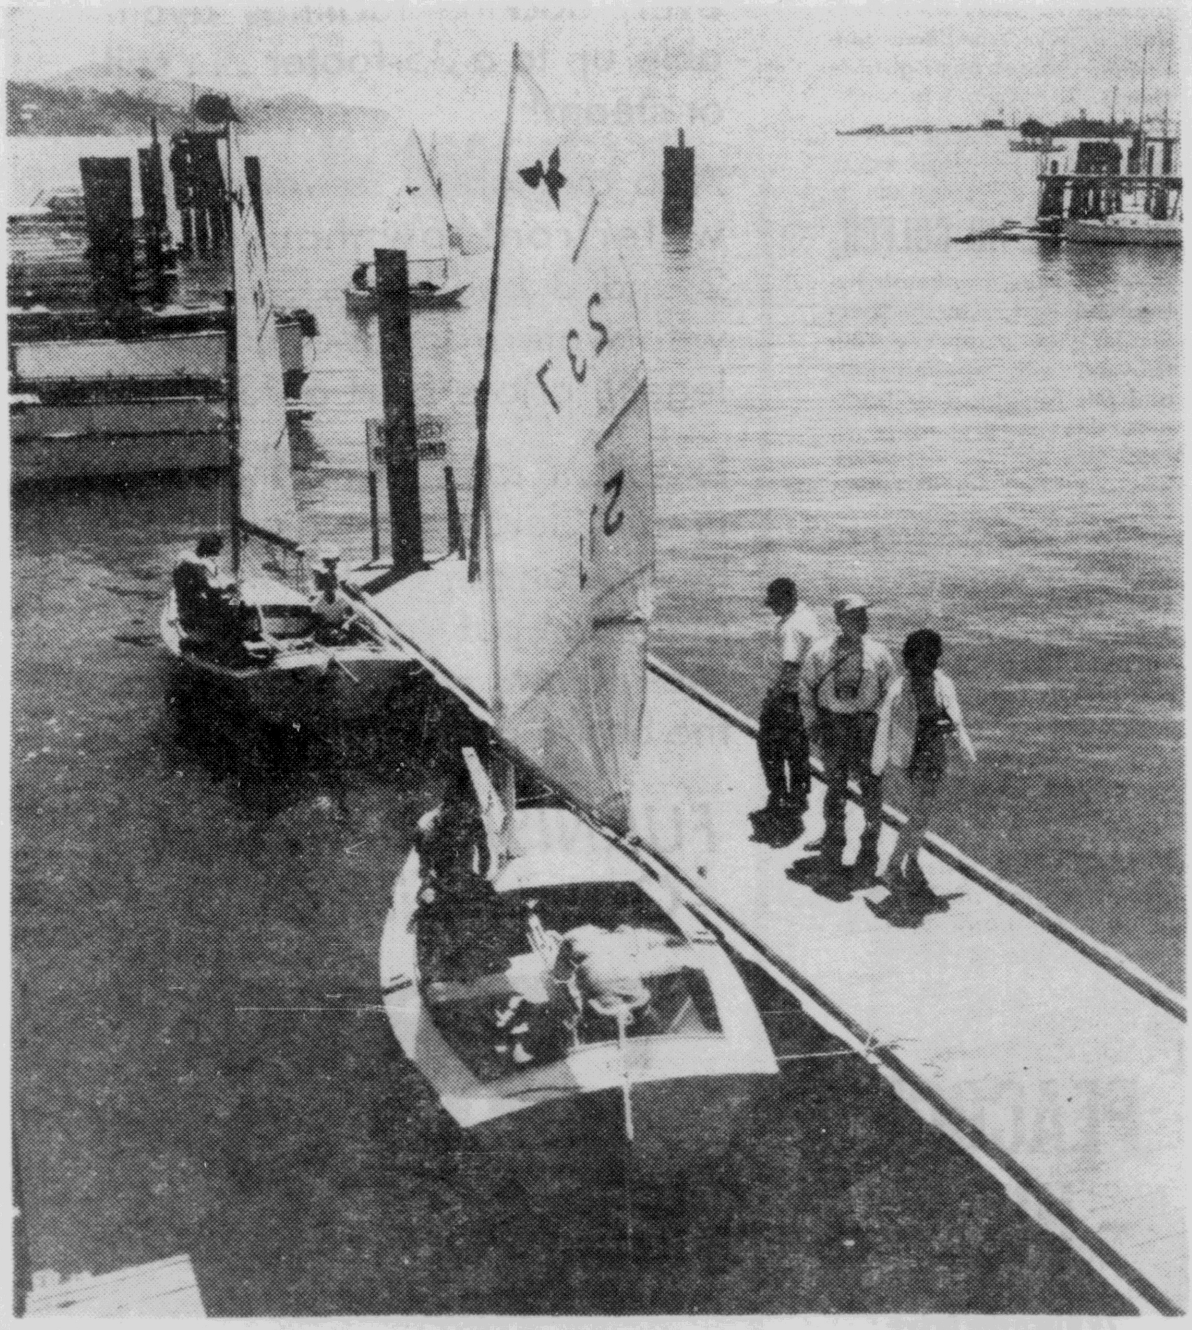
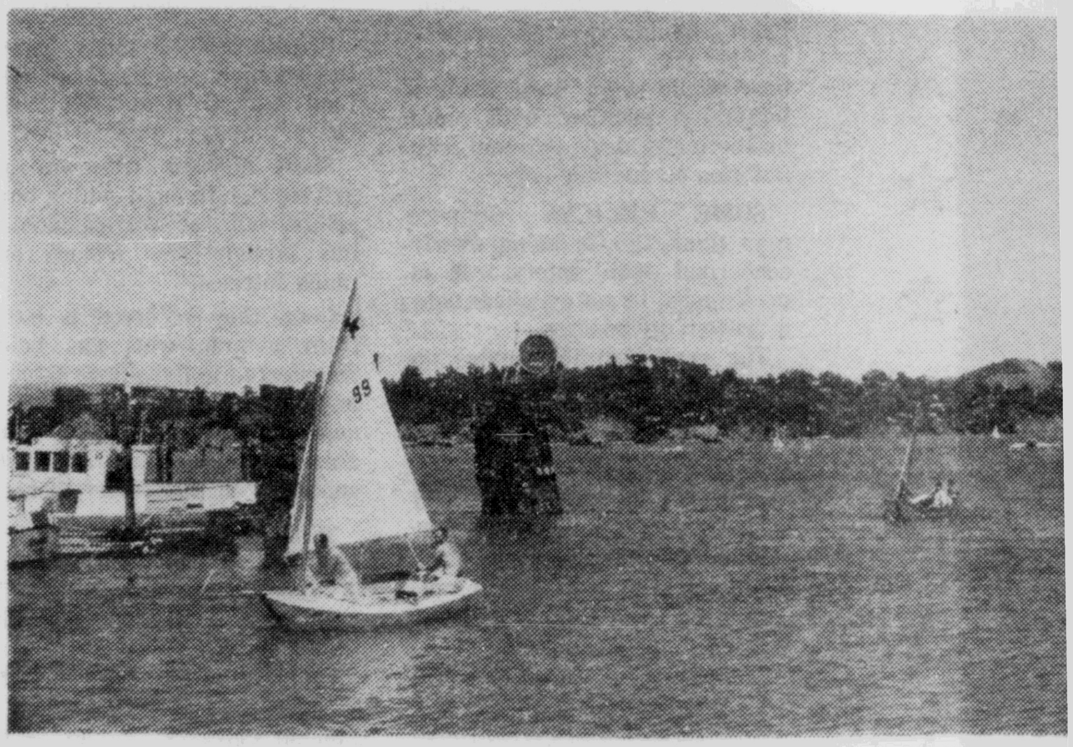
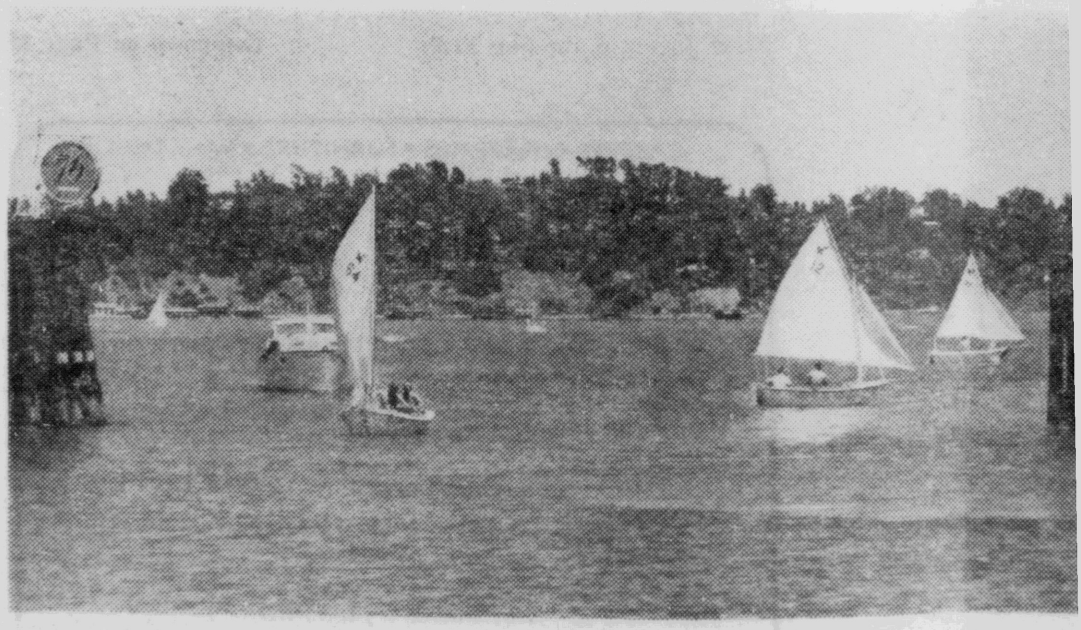
PELICAN FLOCK passes Sausalito at the start of the 1965 Trans-Bay Pelican Assn. Race. William H. Short's Pelicans are popular for both racing and cruising, and their popularity is growing every year. Simple design, safety and roominess are the big factors in attracting sportsmen. The boats are modestly priced and easy for the home craftsman to build.



RACE PREPARATIONS are made by Edgar Krause in stern of near boat as he and his crew get ready to cast off from the dock. Another boat is also nearly ready to go. Still other Pelicans tack in the distance, waiting for start of race.



PELICAN 99 comes in on the mainsail alone as Pelican astern has both sheets in with the crew paddling. Many Pelican use a small motor for cruising whe are chancey.



RACING PELICANS usually carry a crew of just two, but it is possible to sail comfortably with five or six adults. The beamy take heavy loading without losing its sailing ability.

interest was stimulated by the first Marin Magazine article.

Ingram, who has a summer home on Vancouver Island, has long been active in yacht racing. He encouraged some of the first Pelican builders, helping make templates and jigs for construction.

THE JIG, or form on which the plywood boat is built, is loaned from one builder to the next. Short figures there are about 63 jigs extant.

He and his wife try to keep track of these in order to see that the next man starting to build a Pelican has a chance at one.

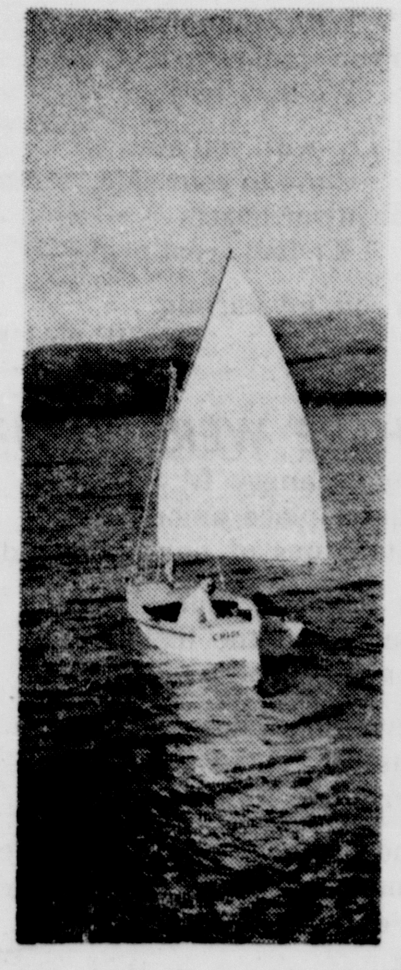
Measuring and building a jig is probably the most exacting and difficult work for the amateur builder.

SHORT'S BOATING interests are not limited to the 12-foot Pelican. In the shed next to his Larkspur home is a 29-foot ketch, under construction. The ketch has much the same dory lines of the Pelican, but it will have a keel and sleeping accommodations for all the Shorts.

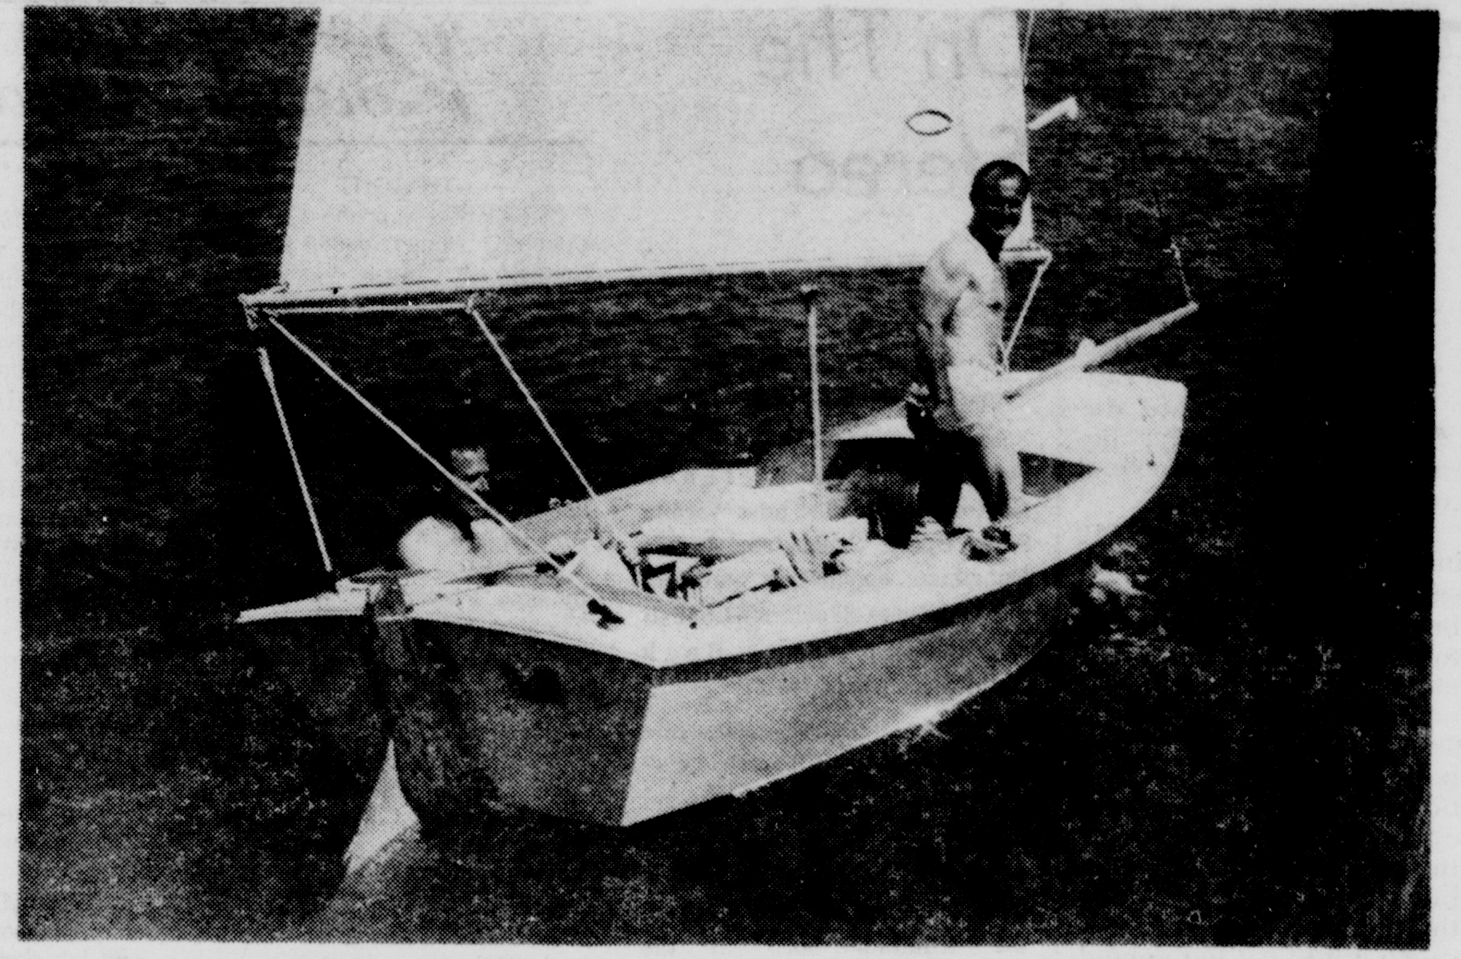
The Short children, Laurie, 15, and Bruce, 13, are enthusiastic sailors.

From the size of the ketch, you might think the Shorts are planning a long voyage.

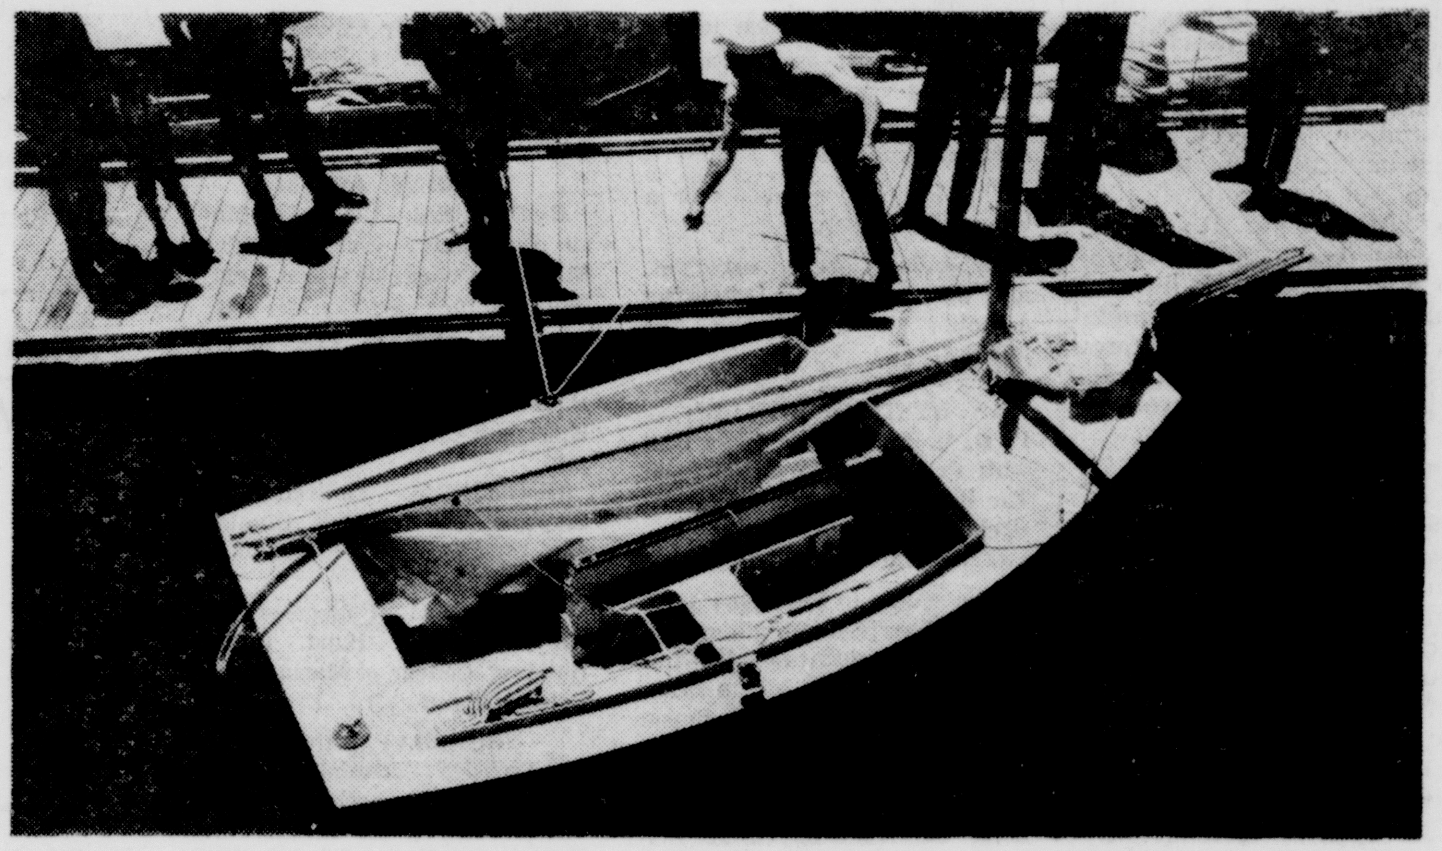
"That might be in the back of my mind," Short says with a smile.



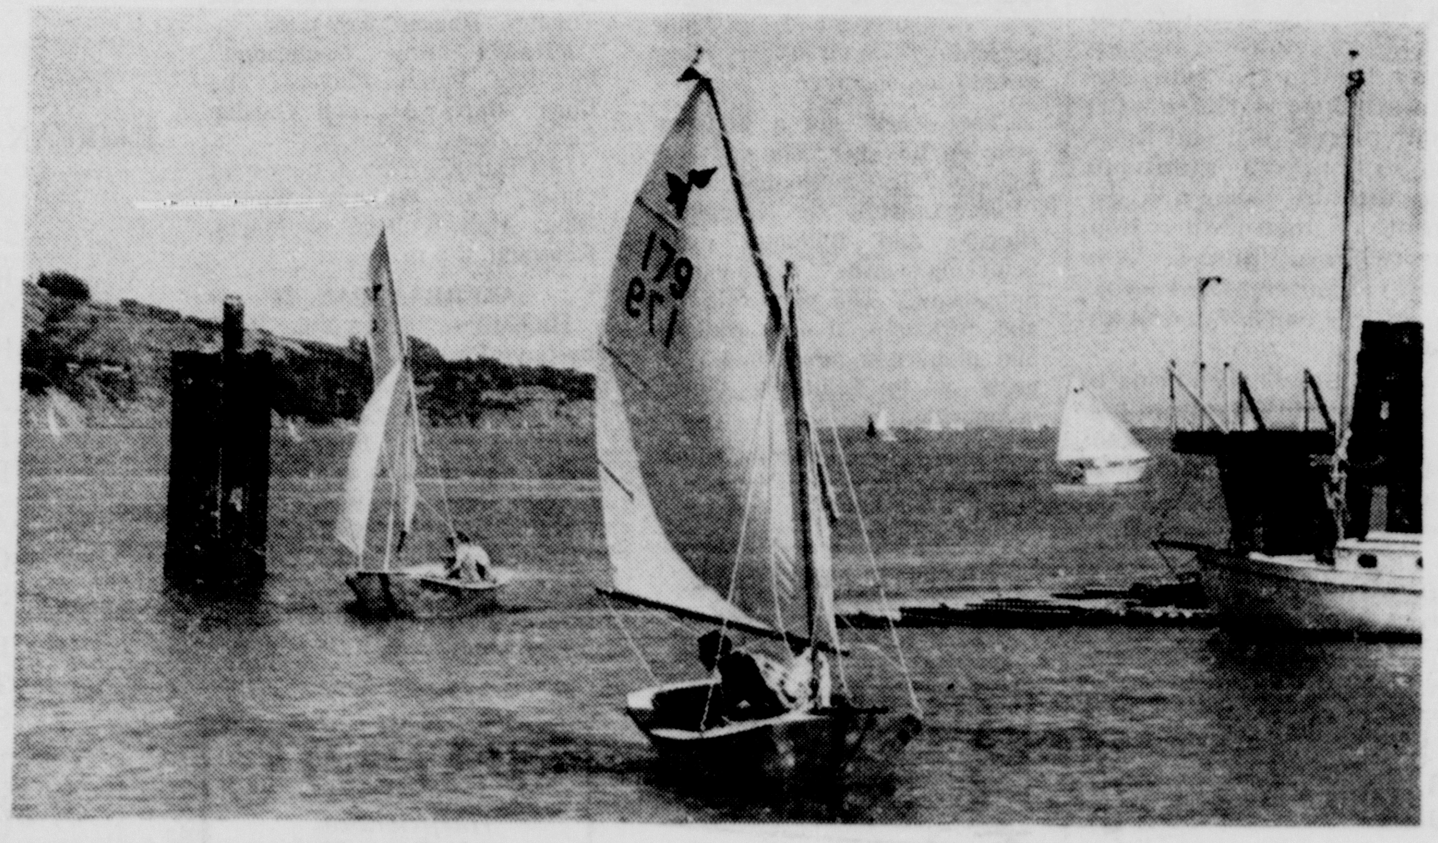
CLASS designer Bill Short and son Bruce were photographed in their Pelican enjoying the waters of Tomales Bay.



COMING IN to dock, skipper Chuck Amundson of Larkspur mans the tiller of his handy Pelican. The jib has been taken in by the crew. The rig is such that the jib can be brought in without leaving the cockpit.



GULL'S EYE VIEW of Pelican shows the roominess of the craft. Not many boats of 12 feet length can provide as much space. Sails are rigged on this boat, ready for skipper William Hampton of San Rafael to hoist and sail off.



GAFF RIGGED Pelican handles well on all sailing points as illustrated by these two boats on a reach and far boat, close hauled. William H. Short, the designer, is a strong advocate of the gaff sail, particularly for its safety and easy handling.

SOLID STATE — During the past two to three years there has been a transition from vacuum tube home music systems to transistor units. Transistors are called solid state devices; namely, because of their physical construction.

For those of you who are interested in a more technical knowledge of differences between tubes and transistors this generalized treatment may be of help. Vacuum tubes can be thought of as the light bulb in your house lights with the addition of a few more metal cylinders incorporated within the glass bulb. In a light bulb, the current flows through the internal wire causing it to get hot enough to emit light.

The wire in a vacuum tube, being of a different material, gets quite hot with current flow, but not hot enough to emit much light. The heat from this wire is a very important part of tube operation; however, the current used to cause this heat does not contribute directly to sound power. It's energy is wasted energy, useful only to heat the tube. When the tube is heated, a small metal cylinder around the heated wire allows minute particles which we call electrons to escape from the surface of the metal.

Another larger metal cylinder surrounds the heated inner cylinder. This larger outer cylinder attracts the emitted electrons and thus a current flow is established. An internal mesh acts like an electronic valve to regulate the amount of this current flow. A small regulation effect from the valve (called a grid) causes large current variations, or in other words, the signal has been amplified.

A transistor is a completely different device. It does not have any heating wire or metal cylinders. In very general terms, a transistor is made up of three very small pieces of metal fused together like a sandwich. The middle piece has different characteristics than the two end pieces. Very small voltages applied across the pieces cause currents to flow.

Again, small variations in the current flowing into one of the metal pieces causes large current variations to flow through the other two pieces; thus, amplification has occurred. No current was wasted to cause an indirect part of the transistor to get hot. All of the action has taken place in solid pieces of metal. A solid state device.

VIVALDI: Dixit — Karla Schlean, soprano/Adele Bonay, contralto/Ugo Benelli, tenor Gastone Sarti, bass/Vienna State Opera Orchestra, Angelo Ephrikian, conducting plus Sinfonia al Santo Sepolcro—I Solisti de Milano/Ephrikian — Bach Guild Stereo BGS-70678:

This is the only recording available of the "Red Priest's" very stereophonic settings of vespers psalms.

Soloists, a double chorus and double orchestras are used in the tradition born in the cathedral of St. Mark, where physical separation in the cathedral was used to achieve exciting antiphonal effects. The tone of the introduction to the actual psalms is especially joyful and radiant, both in the libretto and the musical accompaniment.

This is liturgical music for a loving God, surely.

The soloists are all excellent, and the stereo reproduction an essential to delineating the music.

AN HYSTERIC RETURN — P. D. Q. Bach at Carnegie Hall with Prof. Peter Schickele and The Royal P.D.Q. Bach Festival Orchestra/Jorge Mester — Vanguard Stereo VSD-79223:

This sequel to the first P.D.Q. Bach LP arrived too late to help promote the appearance last fall of his "new" music in San Francisco, but not too late for music lovers to howl and guffaw over a tastefully-done American version of the delightful Hoffnung Festivals of Great Britain.

As many people are now aware, Professor Schickele single-handedly discovered the music of this fortunately forgotten composer and is now presenting it in all its gory glory around the country.

Three works get a working-over on this LP: The massive oratorio "The Seasonings," the "Pervertimento for Bagpipes, Bicycle and Balloons," and Schickele's own "Unbegun Symphony." The puns fall fast and furiously in the oratorio, and plagarism never had it so good as in Schickele "own" composition.

A barrel of laughs for music lovers.

Living without you,
With a shadowy glance
Of having you near—
We have lost a chance.

To realize your distance
Is hard to explain,
For the army gains a soldier
While we feel the pain.

But the months shall pass
With you not here,
So you shall return,
We have no fear.

God be with you always,
Close to your side,
For in our hearts
We feel great pride—

In you, my darling.

WHERE WERE YOU?

Red, in its angry fit, fell
To a quiet place among the Forgotten toys of our childhood.

A lazy patch of blue slowly
Reclined upon the distant
Horizon . . . and slept.

At dawn the waking blades
Of grass stretched their
Slender limbs toward the sky.

But the coolness of grey decided
To remain close to the deserted
Shore of a silent ocean.

And where were you that you
Did not see?
Where were you that you

Romantic Trails Of Germany

THE CHARMING German countryside offers the tourist and film-taker a diversity of subjects, such as this quiet little church, at peace in its rural surroundings. Historic routes take the traveler through the country where legends were born.

Planning a tour of Germany by car or bus?

Then forget about complicated routings. It's not Route 66, but the "Romantic Road," not Highway XYZ, so to speak, but the "Salt Trail," "Alpine Post," "Green Coast Road" and any number of other legendary highways, the ancient byways of history and adventure.

MOST OF Germany's famous travel trails are strung through fascinating towns only slightly off the beaten track—cities that were rich and famous in past centuries.

Today towns like Rothenburg on the "Romantic Road" are celebrated chiefly for their medieval charm, and the great fortresses on the "Castle Road" are more inviting than threatening. Many, in fact, have been converted into comfortable hotels.

The German National Tourist offices in New York, Chicago and San Francisco have attractive literature to help plan a roaming vacation. Contact them or your travel agent and start plotting your own holiday highways.

THE MOST famous travel trail in Germany is the "Romantic Road" from Wurzburg south to the Alpine city Fuessen. The name is most appropriate for here in the medieval heartland of Europe are walled cities with quaint gabled houses, monasteries and castles resplendent with Baroque art.

The nearby "Highway of Castles" connects Heidelburg through the Neckar Valley to Nurnberg; and on the Hohenlohe plain is Europe's finest concentration of noble residences.

The "Niebelungenstrasse" reaches east from Worms to Wurzburg. This mountain district of the Odenwald is the legendary hunting ground of the Niebelungs, celebrated in Richard Wagner's music, and tourists can visit many places associated with legend.

"THE BAROQUE Road" combines several routes into a comprehensive circle of southwest Germany. Following road signs in the form of winged angels, one travels from Ulm to Lake Constance with frequent detours to many of the country's finest artistic sights.

Scenic wonders are discovered on the 'Mountain Road" following the east bank of the Upper Rhine. The climate is curiously mild, encouraging a profusion of beautiful trees and flowers, and the view extends for miles up the river and into France.

Across the valley the "Wine Road" traverses the Palatinate country, one of Germany's great vineyard districts. Many world-famous vintages have originated here, and visitors often take time to savor their own favorites.

THE "BLACK Forest road" from Baden to Freudenstadt travels an endless panorama of rolling hills covered with dark pines, lakes, and lush valleys from which the Neckar and Danube Rivers rise. The forest is a center for sportsmen and visitors attracted from the world over by healing waters of spas such as Baden-Baden.

Another route noted for its scenic beauty is the "Alpine Road" from Lake Constance to Fuessen high in the Allgean. Here one will discover sunlit villages and the majesty that only the Alps can convey.

The "Green Coast Road" is the main route on Germany's north shore, a land of marshes, rolling moors and the vastness of the North Sea. Through quaint farms and fishing villages it extends west to Bremen and Hamburg, industrial center of the North.

The "Salt Road" is an ancient route on which the precious preservative was brought from Lueneburg to Luebeck in Germany's most northern province.

NOTES TO TRAVEL BY

San Francisco Convention and Visitors Bureau has estimated convention business for San Francisco in 1966 at an all-time record of $93 million, a gain of $17 million over the previous high set in 1965. . . . Pacific Area Travel Assn., Department PD-15, 442 Post Street, San Francisco, offers a free booklet "Events in the Pacific" for 1967. . . . Hawaii estimates its 1966 visitors at more than 700,000.

Romantic Trails Of Germany

THE CHARMING German countryside offers the tourist and film-taker a diversity of subjects, such as this quiet little church, at peace in its rural surroundings. Historic routes take the traveler through the country where legends were born.

Planning a tour of Germany by car or bus?

Then forget about complicated routings. It's not Route 66, but the "Romantic Road," not Highway XYZ, so to speak, but the "Salt Trail," "Alpine Post," "Green Coast Road" and any number of other legendary highways, the ancient byways of history and adventure.

MOST OF Germany's famous travel trails are strung through fascinating towns only slightly off the beaten track—cities that were rich and famous in past centuries.

Today towns like Rothenburg on the "Romantic Road" are celebrated chiefly for their medieval charm, and the great fortresses on the "Castle Road" are more inviting than threatening. Many, in fact, have been converted into comfortable hotels.

The German National Tourist offices in New York, Chicago and San Francisco have attractive literature to help plan a roaming vacation. Contact them or your travel agent and start plotting your own holiday highways.

THE MOST famous travel trail in Germany is the "Romantic Road" from Wurzburg south to the Alpine city Fuessen. The name is most appropriate for here in the medieval heartland of Europe are walled cities with quaint gabled houses, monasteries and castles resplendent with Baroque art.

The nearby "Highway of Castles" connects Heidelburg through the Neckar Valley to Nurnberg; and on the Hohenlohe plain is Europe's finest concentration of noble residences.

The "Niebelungenstrasse" reaches east from Worms to Wurzburg. This mountain district of the Odenwald is the legendary hunting ground of the Niebelungs, celebrated in Richard Wagner's music, and tourists can visit many places associated with legend.

"THE BAROQUE Road" combines several routes into a comprehensive circle of southwest Germany. Following road signs in the form of winged angels, one travels from Ulm to Lake Constance with frequent detours to many of the country's finest artistic sights.

Scenic wonders are discovered on the 'Mountain Road" following the east bank of the Upper Rhine. The climate is curiously mild, encouraging a profusion of beautiful trees and flowers, and the view extends for miles up the river and into France.

Across the valley the "Wine Road" traverses the Palatinate country, one of Germany's great vineyard districts. Many world-famous vintages have originated here, and visitors often take time to savor their own favorites.

THE "BLACK Forest road" from Baden to Freudenstadt travels an endless panorama of rolling hills covered with dark pines, lakes, and lush valleys from which the Neckar and Danube Rivers rise. The forest is a center for sportsmen and visitors attracted from the world over by healing waters of spas such as Baden-Baden.

Another route noted for its scenic beauty is the "Alpine Road" from Lake Constance to Fuessen high in the Allgean. Here one will discover sunlit villages and the majesty that only the Alps can convey.

The "Green Coast Road" is the main route on Germany's north shore, a land of marshes, rolling moors and the vastness of the North Sea. Through quaint farms and fishing villages it extends west to Bremen and Hamburg, industrial center of the North.

The "Salt Road" is an ancient route on which the precious preservative was brought from Lueneburg to Luebeck in Germany's most northern province.

An Encyclopedic View Of American Music Is Updated

AMERICA'S MUSIC by Gilbert Chase, revised second edition, McGraw-Hill, 759 pages, $9.95. Reviewed by Maybelle Speckmann.

Though this book is written in an interesting, readable style so that one can read separate parts just for enjoyment, it should be especially valuable as a reference book or text.

The revised second edition of the author's original 1955 work, it covers American music from the Pilgrims to the present and is outstanding for its new material on the scene in the sixties, jazz and experimental music.

The author's knowledge of his subject is encyclopedic. This is not surprising in view of the facts that he is director of the International American Institute for Music Research at Tulane University and has been a music critic, an editor of the International Encyclopedia of Music and Musicians and Latin American specialist in the Music Division of the Library of Congress.

The book has been written with careful attention to scholarly procedures. Though it is not a conventional history, it is based on historical principles in that it attempts to understand, describe, illuminate and evaluate the vital processes and factors that have gone into the making of America's music.

Chase has an enormously broad appreciation of all kinds of music. No mere pedant, he confesses that "my own approach to America's music is not at all respectable—my bete noire is the genteel tradition, and I take my stand with that Connecticut Yankee, Charles Ives, whose most damning adjective was said to be 'nice.' "

He says, in fact, that he believes popular music has been the most important phase of America's music.

Since until the closing decades of the 19th Century emphasis was on vocal music in its simpler and more popular manifestations, this emphasis is reflected in the book.

Chase has a broad sympathy for contemporary composers, and the last part of the book deals with all the latest trends.

A Lively Account Of Vatican Council

AMERICAN BISHOP AT THE VATICAN COUNCIL by Bishop Robert E. Tracy, McGraw-Hill, 242 pages, $6.50. Reviewed by Lee Cadwallader.

This lively report on the Vatican Council compares to Xavier Rynne's reports as capuccino does to plain strong black coffee.

Bishop Tracy has a marvelous facility for larding the meat of these sessions with warm human observations on the Italian people and their devotion to the Church.

He tells of their comfortable and emotional use of the Church to take family pictures with their priest while the Bishop celebrated Mass and other priests conducted Novenas all at the same time, while children scampered around busily investigating sacred objects.

He reports of the Pope that he "is greeted on his formal entrances into St. Peter's by a roar of 'Viva, il Papa!' and a thunder of handclaps."

He answers practical questions that occur to the layman about the daily operations of the council (it was difficult for most bishops to understand Latin in a variety of accents).

But the most important contribution made by this report is its exposition of the effects the rulings will have on the layman in his practice of religion and in his relationship to the Church.

Besides all that, it's a lot of fun to read.

The Chinese Who Live In Asia Outside Of Their Ancestral Land

THE FUTURE OF THE OVERSEAS CHINESE IN SOUTHEAST ASIA by Lea E. Williams, McGraw-Hill, 143 pages, $5.50. Reviewed by Larry Kramer Jr.

Professor Williams, director of the Center for East Asian Studies at Brown University, has written a compact, carefully thought-out essay on the following question: With the political organization of Southeast Asia polarizing into a confrontation between the United States and China, what does the future hold for the more than 12 million Chinese concentrated in the urban centers of every country in the region from Brunei to Thailand?

The Chinese communities in Southeast Asian countries are going through a change of role caused by the collapse of colonialism.

In the colonial setting the Chinese with their energy and intellectual drive were often used at the operating level of government by the ruling Westerners. They were not generally assimilated into or accepted by the local peoples (except in Thailand). Unlike their non-Chinese neighbors, they had the "ability and inclination to save for the attainment of distant goals."

Many Asians work as hard as the Chinese, but they lack the discipline or the desire to save something from today's tiny earnings which could be accumulated in order to buy a better future. As a result, the Chinese have acquired wealth and have also become targets of the rising nationalist groups springing up in every underdeveloped, post-Colonial country.

The author's main thesis is that local political assimilation of the overseas Chinese into their adopted environment is the most constructive and positive resolution to the problems posed by the existence of enclaves of overseas Chinese, even though there are many barriers to the accomplishment of this goal.

Not only are the Chinese racially and economically separate from the local citizenry, but there is the inescapable question of their relationship to Peking or Taipei.

The Communists have not shown much positive interest in the overseas Chinese as a group. Where they have good relations with the local rulers, as in Indonesia until October, 1965, they have urged the Chinese to assimilate and become citizens of their adopted country.

In Malaya, where the period of Communist terrorism known as "The Emergency" was Chinese-led and Chinese-inspired, it was assumed by the terrorists that the Chinese community would come to their support in both supplies and manpower. This support never really developed, even though resistance of the Chinese peasantry to re-settlement or the outbreak of terrorism in Singapore (which is 75 per cent Chinese) would have made the job of the British in putting down the terrorists infinitely more difficult, if not impossible.

Unlike the Communists, who have prohibited burials of overseas Chinese in land needed for agriculture and have tried to gouge them for increased remittances, the Nationalists on Taiwan go out of their way to woo their overseas compatriots. Even with their limited resources, they are trying to create opportunities for overseas students to come to Taiwan for their education. They have had some success, particularly appealing to those young people who are subject to discrimination in their efforts to get advanced education because the native populations of their new homelands are given preference. The Nationalists want the overseas Chinese to maintain their separate identity and their loyalty to Chinese tradition.

With the Communists attempting to use the overseas Chinese communities as tools in their diplomatic dealings with new national governments, and the Nationalists attempting to keep the overseas Chinese communities alive and separate in order to strengthen their claim to legitimacy, what should be the role of U.S. policy?

Professor Williams feels that our best interests will be served by providing educational opportunities in this country for the overseas Chinese and by helping them achieve the most painless assimilation into the native societies and cultures of their adopted homeland.

A Non-Skeptical Look At Man Labeled 'Our Greatest Mystic'

By DON KEOWN

What is vital to any really meaningful appraisal of the qualifications of any prophet is a good, hard, healthy dose of skepticism.

Only if the mystic stands up under such searching scrutiny can the public, except for the hopelessly gullible, be expected to lend any real credence to the claim that here lived a person with extraordinary, other-worldly powers.

Unfortunately, Jess Stearn adopts no such stance in his "Edgar Cayce: The Sleeping Prophet."

It is apparent that from the outset Stearn was already a convinced and confirmed Cayce disciple.

This leads the reader to wondering if he is getting the full story. Have only Cayce's spectacular successes been recorded, and offsetting failures ignored? Just how well and how objectively were those exploits documented? Has Stearn given Cayce the benefit of the most favorable interpretations possible of his forecasts and the results?

What Stearn has to say about Cayce does make interesting—sometimes fascinating—reading. But it leaves unanswered the big question: Did or did not Cayce deserve the title of "America's greatest mystic" awarded him by Stearn and others?

As a prophet, Cayce was often less than precise. His peers into the future often resulted in pronouncements that could be subjected to widely varying interpretations. And time has yet to render its verdict on many of his predictions.

EDGAR CAYCE: THE SLEEPING PROPHET by Jess Stearn, Doubleday, 280 pages, $4.95.

THE BASTILLE DAY PARADE by Kenneth Lamott, David McKay Co., 247 pages, $4.95.

MOTHER LODE RACE INCIDENT edited by Theron Fox, Harlan-Young Press, 72 pages, $4.

Bay Area residents will find little reason to root for a history that ultimately will establish Cayce's authenticity as a mystic. For among his most often voiced predictions, rendered from a trance-like state, was one that most of San Francisco, Los Angeles and New York will all be destroyed by natural disaster sometime between 1958 and 1998. Another: That much of Japan will slip into the sea. Yet another: That the lost continent of Atlantis will soon arise from the ocean's depths.

More impressive than Cayce's prophecies of things to come (at this time, anyway) were his diagnoses (usually by long distance) of illnesses, and his prescribing of treatment. Stearn makes a strong case for the contention that Cayce predated science in employing some of medicine's most recent and most startling advances.

Only on reincarnation does Stearn part company with Cayce and the Cayce's Assn. for Research and Enlightenment that has survived its founder who died two decades ago. Stearn says he is a disbeliever, but in the face of Cayce's affirmation of life after life, he wavers.

There is enough in Stearn's book to demonstrate that those who regarded Edgar Cayce as a prophet and a healer were not without some reason. His life was a series of remarkable coincidences and incidents, if, indeed, he did not possess some extraordinary powers. But the real test of the powers of the sleeping prophet will have to come from some other investigator less a proponent and more of a skeptic than is Jess Stearn.

Stearn, meanwhile, may be quite satisfied that he has authored another book certain to interest and intrigue a large number of people enamored by things occult.

MYSTIC EDGAR CAYCE is the subject of the new book "Edgar Cayce: The Sleeping Prophet," written by former newspaper reporter Jess Stearn.

WHETHER HE is writing fiction or non-fiction, Marin's Kenneth Lamott employs a tough, lean rhetoric that produces maximum impact from a minimum expenditure of language.

He demonstrates this once again in his new novel, "The Bastille Day Parade."

In these days of big, verbose, windy novels, Lamott's ability to write compactly is all the more noteworthy. Into a very few pages, he packs a lot of activity, and, more important, a lot of truth about the human animal and his society.

Even characters that appear only briefly as periphery members of his cast emerge sharply as full-drawn personalities to the reader.

The scene is San Francisco today — with segments set in Marin. It mirrors Northern California's role as headquarters for those of the younger generation who are at war with what they regard as a world of false values.

Lamott is concerned with the differences between generations. But he is also impressed by the deeper, more brutal chasms that have created communications gaps that cross age group boundaries.

Basically, he seems to say, there looms a terrible confrontation between those in revolt against hypocrisy and complacency, and those committed to the defense of orthodoxy. Those who would like to remain uncommitted—to sit on the sidelines and watch the struggle — will find it increasingly difficult to do so. The very swirl of the battle has a momentum that tugs at those around its edges, pulling them into its center and engulfing them.

The catalyst for this whirlpool in the novel is a mammoth parade organized by the young rebels for Bastille Day down San Francisco's Market Street. Lamott makes the point that the protest is not aimed at any one specific cause for complaint. Rather it is a general disenchantment with what the protesters choose to call "the lie machine."

In the course of the book, Lamott, a sensitive as well as competent craftsman, offers us a great deal of insight into the current unrest seething in this country, and about the hard, unyielding resistance that it is encountering with increasing frequency. Things will get worse, tragically so, he is warning us. And those who would be bystanders will find this stance difficult, perhaps impossible, to maintain.

A PECULIAR piece of Californiana has been published by Theron Fox's Harlan-Young Press of San Jose under the title "Mother Lode Race Incident."

The small book consists of a reprinting of correspondence between officers of two IOOF lodges of the Mother Lode of the 1870s concerning alleged "unbecoming conduct" by a miner-member. The man, it seemed, had married a mulatto woman.

The charge led to a lodge hearing and an anti-climactic verdict, also published, that held that since no lodge rule was involved, it was best that "the same be dismissed or ignored."

Fox has contributed an introduction on early California racial problems that makes the point discrimination is no new phenomenon in our state.

Those keenly interested in western history and lore will no doubt enjoy the book. It is doubtful, however, that interest outside those limited ranks would be sufficient to justify the expenditure of $4 for this very thin booklet.

"THE NEW Reader's Digest 1967 Almanac and Yearbook" totals 1,024 pages between paperback covers, and sells for $1.75.

It is a mammoth collection of information for school, office and home use that ranges from the official 1966 election results to a glossary of psychiatric terms.

"More than a million facts," claims the publisher, the Readers Digest Assn. Inc. of Pleasantville, N.Y.

For quick reference on such varied matters as the dates of the religious holidays, the volume of traffic through the Panama Canal, the area and population of Zambia, major American symphony orchestras and their conductors, income tax return rules and the text of the Declaration of Independence, the almanac fits the bill fully and admirably.

FAWCETT has published as Premier paperbacks two volumes on the theater, "Stanislavski and America," edited by Erika Munk, and "Moderns on Tragedy," edited by Lionel Abel, both 95 cents.

UNCLE SILAS by J. S. Le Fanu, Dover, 436 pages, $2. Reviewed by Patricia Perry.

First published in 1864, this "Victorian Gothic novel of mystery" has been reprinted, in paperback, so that the Swinging Sixties can have their marrows chilled too — and how refreshing it is to read a good old-fashioned spine-chilling story of terror.

It's all here: Haunted houses, wicked governess, stormy nights, death and murder, violence and threats. And (how the hackles rise!) there's Uncle Silas, the enigmatic recluse, emanating waves of terror and doom from his opium-suffused room.

Since this reprint is prefaced with a new introduction by Prof. Frederick Shroyer of California State College, it's fairly evident it's destined to become a textbook for English classes; described as "the Victorian mystery story par excellence" Uncle Silas perhaps will be read by students of the Gothic novel for its historical significance.

But read it for fun, for the joy of being chilled by the adventures of Maud Ruthyn, naive orphaned young heiress who is sent to live with her mysterious Uncle Silas in Bantram Haugh. Death prowls the pages, in the grotesque governess Madame de la Rougierre, in the terrifying Uncle Silas, in the haunting terror of the dilapidated mansion.

After all, there's nothing like a little suspense and terror for great bedtime reading.

Only if the mystic stands up under such searching scrutiny can the public, except for the hopelessly gullible, be expected to lend any real credence to the claim that here lived a person with extraordinary, other-worldly powers.

It is apparent that from the outset Stearn was already a convinced and confirmed Cayce disciple.

This leads the reader to wondering if he is getting the full story. Have only Cayce's spectacular successes been recorded, and offsetting failures ignored? Just how well and how objectively were those exploits documented? Has Stearn given Cayce the benefit of the most favorable interpretations possible of his forecasts- and the results?

What Stearn has to say about Cayce does make interesting—sometimes fascinating—reading. But it leaves unanswered the big question: Did or did not Cayce deserve the title of "America's greatest mystic" awarded him by Stearn and others?

As a prophet, Cayce was often less than precise. His peers into the future often resulted in pronouncements that could be subjected to widely varying interpretations. And time has yet to render its verdict on many of his predictions.

EDGAR CAYCE: THE SLEEPING PROPHET by Jess Stearn, Doubleday, 280 pages, $4.95.

Bay Area residents will find little reason to root for a history that ultimately will establish Cayce's authenticity as a mystic. For among his most often voiced predictions, rendered from a trance-like state, was one that most of San Francisco, Los Angeles and New York will all be destroyed by natural disaster sometime between 1958 and 1998. Another: That much of Japan will slip into the sea. Yet another: That the lost continent of Atlantis will soon arise from the ocean's depths.

More impressive than Cayce's prophecies of things to come (at this time, anyway) were his diagnoses (usually by long distance) of illnesses, and his prescribing of treatment. Stearn makes a strong case for the contention that Cayce predated science in employing some of medicine's most recent and most startling advances.

Only on reincarnation does Stearn part company with Cayce and the Cayce's Assn. for Research and Enlightenment that has survived its founder who died two decades ago. Stearn says he is a disbeliever, but in the face of Cayce's affirmation of life after life, he wavers.

There is enough in Stearn's book to demonstrate that those who regarded Edgar Cayce as a prophet and a healer were not without some reason. His life was a series of remarkable coincidences and incidents, if, indeed, he did not possess some extraordinary powers. But the real test of the powers of the sleeping prophet will have to come from some other investigator less a proponent and more of a skeptic than is Jess Stearn.

Stearn, meanwhile, may be quite satisfied that he has authored another book certain to interest and intrigue a large number of people enamored by things occult.

WHETHER HE is writing fiction or non-fiction, Marin's Kenneth Lamott employs a tough, lean rhetoric that produces maximum impact from a minimum expenditure of language.

He demonstrates this once again in his new novel, "The Bastille Day Parade."

In these days of big, verbose, windy novels, Lamott's ability to write compactly is all the more noteworthy. Into a very few pages, he packs a lot of activity, and, more important, a lot of truth about the human animal and his society.

Even characters that appear only briefly as periphery members of his cast emerge sharply as full-drawn personalities to the reader.

"The Bastille Day Parade" deals essentially with an old question — involvement or non-involvement?

The scene is San Francisco today — with segments set in Marin. It mirrors Northern California's role as headquarters for those of the younger generation who are at war with what they regard as a world of false values.

Lamott is concerned with the differences between generations. But he is also impressed by the deeper, more brutal chasms that have created communications gaps that cross age group boundaries.

Basically, he seems to say, there looms a terrible confrontation between those in revolt against hypocrisy and complacency, and those committed to the defense of orthodoxy. Those who would like to remain uncommitted—to sit on the sidelines and watch the struggle — will find it increasingly difficult to do so. The very swirl of the battle has a momentum that tugs at those around its edges, pulling them into its center and engulfing them.

The catalyst for this whirlpool in the novel is a mammoth parade organized by the young rebels for Bastille Day down San Francisco's Market Street. Lamott makes the point that the protest is not aimed at any one specific cause for complaint. Rather it is a general disenchantment with what the protesters choose to call "the lie machine."

In the course of the book, Lamott, a sensitive as well as competent craftsman, offers us a great deal of insight into the current unrest seething in this country, and about the hard, unyielding resistance that it is encountering with increasing frequency. Things will get worse, tragically so, he is warning us. And those who would be bystanders will find this stance difficult, perhaps impossible, to maintain.

It is a highly readable novel, fraught with meaning.

A PECULIAR piece of Californiana has been published by Theron Fox's Harlan-Young Press of San Jose under the title "Mother Lode Race Incident."

The small book consists of a reprinting of correspondence between officers of two IOOF lodges of the Mother Lode of the 1870s concerning alleged "unbecoming conduct" by a miner-member. The man, it seemed, had married a mulatto woman.

The charge led to a lodge hearing and an anti-climactic verdict, also published, that held that since no lodge rule was involved, it was best that "the same be dismissed or ignored."

Fox has contributed an introduction on early California racial problems that makes the point discrimination is no new phenomenon in our state.

Those keenly interested in western history and lore will no doubt enjoy the book. It is doubtful, however, that interest outside those limited ranks would be sufficient to justify the expenditure of $4 for this very thin booklet.

"THE NEW Reader's Digest 1967 Almanac and Yearbook" totals 1,024 pages between paperback covers, and sells for $1.75.

It is a mammoth collection of information for school, office and home use that ranges from the official 1966 election results to a glossary of psychiatric terms.

"More than a million facts," claims the publisher, the Readers Digest Assn. Inc. of Pleasantville, N.Y.

For quick reference on such varied matters as the dates of the religious holidays, the volume of traffic through the Panama Canal, the area and population of Zambia, major American symphony orchestras and their conductors, income tax return rules and the text of the Declaration of Independence, the almanac fits the bill fully and admirably.

FAWCETT has published as Premier paperbacks two volumes on the theater, "Stanislavski and America," edited by Erika Munk, and "Moderns on Tragedy," edited by Lionel Abel, both 95 cents.

GROSSET & Dunlap has published "Walt Disney: Magician of the Movies" by Bob Thomas.

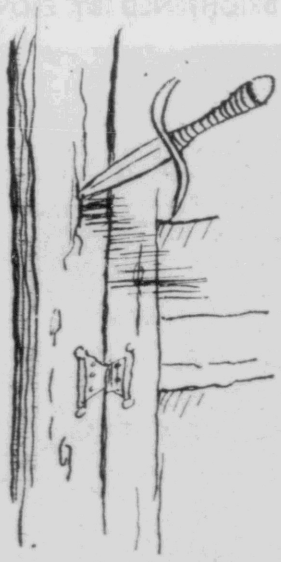
UNCLE SILAS by J. S. Le Fanu, Dover, 436 pages, $2. Reviewed by Patricia Perry.

First published in 1864, this "Victorian Gothic novel of mystery" has been reprinted, in paperback, so that the Swinging Sixties can have their marrows chilled too — and how refreshing it is to read a good old-fashioned spine-chilling story of terror.

It's all here: Haunted houses, wicked governess, stormy nights, death and murder, violence and threats. And (how the hackles rise!) there's Uncle Silas, the enigmatic recluse, emanating waves of terror and doom from his opium-suffused room.

Since this reprint is prefaced with a new introduction by Prof. Frederick Shroyer of California State College, it's fairly evident it's destined to become a textbook for English classes; described as "the Victorian mystery story par excellence" Uncle Silas perhaps will be read by students of the Gothic novel for its historical significance.



But read it for fun, for the joy of being chilled by the adventures of Maud Ruthyn, naive orphaned young heiress who is sent to live with her mysterious Uncle Silas in Bantram Haugh. Death prowls the pages, in the grotesque governess Madame de la Rougierre, in the terrifying Uncle Silas, in the haunting terror of the dilapidated mansion.

An Object Lesson In Good Landscaping

The San Rafael garden of Mr. and Mrs. Bayard Herrick of 15 Locksley Lane, Loch Lomond, is featured in the winter issue of American Home magazine, currently on sale at newstands.

The Curtis Publishing Co. publication cites the Marin home as an example of a development house "whose unusual distinction derives largely from the charm of its surrounding garden."

"THE OWNERS like to garden," relates the magazine, "but rather than do an obviously homemade landscape, they consulted landscape architect William Kapranos. He drew up a plan for them and they did much of the work themselves. One result of their careful planning is a spaciousness that belies the actual dimensions of the property."

In color photographs by Ernie Braun that accompany the article, American Home points out such assets as the pretty white fence separating the entry from the rest of the home, the manner in which white petunias and star jasmine integrate the area with the house, the harmonizing of red fuchsias and begonias with the gray of the house during warm weather until callas take over for the winter.

The exposed aggregate walk edged with brick that makes the transition from driveway to entrance has drainage concealed in the edging.

FLOWERING cherry, iris, geraniums and lantana brighten the side yard, while a low boxwood hedge links front and rear gardens.

The breakfast room bay window looks out into a narrow yard where variegated Algerian ivy grows along the fence, espaliered.

The patio or outdoor room has a circular paved area around a weeping elm added to an existing rectangular slab. Delicate campanula grow around the base of the tree. A gazebo is planned for the future.

THE HERRICK landscaping represents, the magazine says, the benefits of this approach: Rather than trying to landscape your property in one fell swoop, instead work out your plan and then execute it gradually. A plan prevents the piecemeal look. But a gradual accomplishment of the actual construction averts the urge to skimp and compromise to effect economies.

Now's The Time To Think About Summer Shade For Your Yard

Mid-winter may seem a strange time to think about shade, but if you want to enjoy it during summers to come, start thinking.

Most shade trees are deciduous, which means they are dormant right now—a state in which they can be bare-rooted and moved from the nursery to your garden with a minimum of fuss and expense.

DECIDUOUS shade trees have other advantages, too.

They are usually faster growing than their evergreen counterparts, thus giving needed shade in less time. They have a built-in climate control, providing shade in summer when you need it, then shedding their leaves to admit sunlight during the colder winter months.

WITHOUT MEANING to depreciate the value of evergreen shade, we simply point out the above advantages.

When one considers that trees are often a lifetime investment, their placement in the garden becomes all important. It's best to consult with a landscaper or nurseryman, not only about variety, but about placement for maximum benefit in the landscape.

Once you have chosen your tree site, prepare an adequate hole.

HERE AGAIN, remember how long the tree will be around and you'll agree that a little extra effort in the planting is worth while. Dig a hole that's at least twice the size you need to accommodate the root system. Loosen the soil in the bottom and add some good topsoil before placing the tree.

As for varieties to plant, there are many good ones. Be sure to check such excellent performers as Arizona Ash and Modesto Ash, Fruitless Mulberry, Tulip Tree, Pin Oak and the California Sycamore.

The Well-Pruned Plant Is A Happy Rose

For novice gardeners, the most difficult part in pruning a rose lies in building up courage to make the initial cuts.

Once that is done, the rest comes easily; for pruning roses is not much more complicated than cutting their lovely blooms for bouquets.

And therein rests the real reason for pruning—to have lovely blooms for next year's bouquets. Roses bloom on their new growth only and pruning stimulates strong new growth.

THERE'S AN old saying that to be kind to a rose you have to be cruel when it comes to pruning, and that's about the size of it.

The best time for pruning comes late in the dormant period, when new growth buds begin to swell.

Each year, a healthy rose should produce one or two strong new canes, and the aim in pruning is to replace at least one old cane with a new one.

ON LARGE rose bushes, try to replace two old canes with two new ones. If no strong canes developed during the past year, or if the cane is obviously poorly placed or crossing through the bush, remove it and wait until next year for replacement wood.

First remove all dead wood and any suckers that weren't removed during the growing season. Suckers are those canes, usually vigorous, that sprout below the bud union. Next remove any crossing canes completely.

Now for the most important part:

WHAT YOU prune from here on will be taken from canes you are leaving for next season's growth. The less you shorten them, the greater number of blooms you will have. The more you shorten them, the larger will be your blooms. In warmer sections it is better not to shorten the canes severely. In colder climates, severe pruning will not injure the shrub.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

✓ Hydrangeas that have become leggy and overgrown may be cut back severely without damaging them.

✓ Potted plants that have dried out should be deep-soaked in a bucket of water to saturate the roots. Many house plants benefit by similar soaking occasionally.

✓ Camellias are items to shop for this month. Many are in bloom or just coming in bloom.

✓ Prune grapes and berries now if you haven't already. The idea with berries is to cut out the canes which bore fruit last year and to leave the rest to bear fruit next year.

✓ Perennial vegetables may be planted now. Asparagus, artichoke and rhubarb are the big three of this group.

✓ Do not immediately prune frost-damaged appendages from your plants. Give them time to recover from the shock.

✓ Now is a good time for repotting plants in need of such attention. Also clean unsightly algae and salt crust from your clay pots.

"Why Do Stain-Resistant Fabrics Get Stained?"

There are many stain-resistant treatments for fabrics applied by garment manufacturers. Some resist water, some oil. While these treatments may repel stains on the surface, certain definite factors affect the extent of the staining.

For instance, some staining substances may soak into the fabric if not removed soon enough. Pressure and wear can force stains into a fabric, such as sitting on a stained area. Heat tends to set stains in spite of finishes. A stain may penetrate a treated fabric simply through the impact with which it is applied. Some chemical finishes increase a fabric's tendency to pick up oily stains.

The same finish on different fabrics may perform differently in wear and drycleaning, too. The key to satisfactory performance of stained stain-resistant garments is the same as for any other fabric, get it to your drycleaner as soon as possible for his professional care.

That Pesky Mildew

Handyman's Page

Mad dogs and Englishmen may thrive in the midday sun, but mildew never makes an appearance when old Sol is around.

That's why, whenever you find mildew anywhere inside or outside of your house, it will be on some part of the structure to which sun is a stranger.

Mildew — or mold, to give it a more technically correct name — grows under moist conditions. A favorite spot for it is some part of the exterior of the house where shrubbery is close to the foundation, with the foliage touching or almost touching the siding.

THE SHRUBBERY helps the mildew grow in two ways. It hangs on to rain water and moisture, eventually transferring some of it to the house. And it keeps out the sun's rays, which ordinarily would prevent the fungus from growing.

While this information is of some value in the prevention of mildew, it isn't the entire answer, if only because there are some parts of the house which the sun never reaches, shrubbery or no shrubbery.

Also, there is the problem of what to do when mildew already has occurred — and how to keep it from returning.

GENERALLY, YOU can tell at a glance whether the affected area is covered with mildew or just dirt. But if you are in any doubt, wet the marred surface with an ordinary household bleach. If it is mildew, it will turn white in less than five minutes.

About the worst thing you can do is to try to cover the mold with paint, since it will be only a matter of months, perhaps weeks, before the growth comes right through the new paint.

A standard solution for the complete removal of mildew is three ounces of trisodium phosphate, one quart of household bleach, one ounce of a powdered detergent and three quarts of lukewarm water.

MANY REGULAR household cleaning agents are basically trisodium phosphate, and any of them may be used for this mixture. A glance at the label will give you the necessary information before you buy.

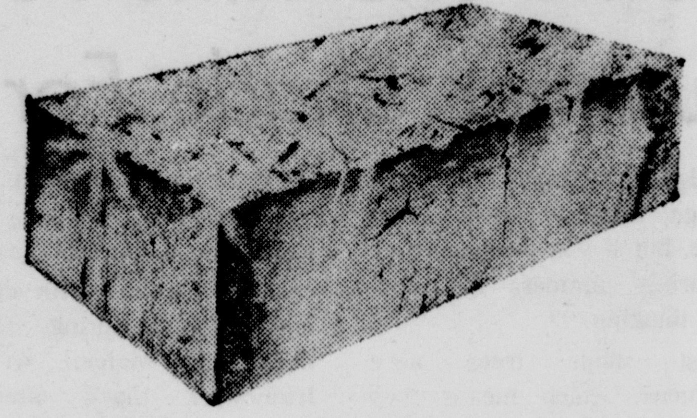
Scrub the mildewed surface with the solution, then rinse well with clear water. Do it as many times as necessary to remove all traces of the mold.

When the area is completely dry, paint it with one of the special mildew-resistant paints. If you already have matching paint on hand and want to utilize it, buy an additive made for the special purpose of protecting against mildew. A small amount of it added to the paint will do the job.

The label on the bottle or container will tell you how much to add.

BRIGHT IDEAS

A Brick That Glistens With Richness Of Gold



With most of our gold buried at Fort Knox and much of it being siphoned overseas, have we any choice but to do-it-ourselves?

Be your own 'Goldfinger!'

With no trepidation and very little investment, make a gold brick of your own. Great as a paper-weight, door-stop, golden-wedding anniversary present, or just as a simple conversation piece. Guaranteed to start conversations of great magnitude, these things do wonders, psychologically. Great morale boosters for the first of the month bill-paying blues.

How to do it?

Invest in a clean, simple, red brick. A can of gold spray from your paint dealer and you have the makings.

Lay the brick on heavy newspaper and spray all sides heavily. No sizing necessary. Make one or many.

Halt Water Waste To Save Yourself Money

"Better water management" is a term you'll be hearing a lot this year.

Even if our area doesn't suffer from shortages, there is much you can do to conserve water and save money in the process.

THESE water-saving tips come from Henry Berger, Northern California regional director in this area for the National Assn. of Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Contractors

1. Have leaky faucets fixed or replaced immediately. A one-sixteenth inch leak wastes 3,000 gallons a month. At average rates, this costs about $30 a year. If the leak is from a hot water faucet, add about $20 for the cost of heating the water.

2. Have a circulating pipe loop installed between your water heater and individual fixtures. You'll get hot water at the fixture immediately instead of having to run it awhile. This can save another $35 a year.

3. Equip your faucets with aerators. They introduce millions of air bubbles into the water. You use less water because it suds up faster.

4. If you have an old-fashioned showerhead, replace it. New ones on the market use less water and actually increase enjoyment of the shower since they permit you to regulate the spray.

5. Add a thermostatic temperature control to the shower. A family of four will average about 1,400 shower baths a year. Hand-valve showers waste about two and a half gallons of hot water while the bather adjusts the water to the desired temperature. A thermostatic control will save you at least $10 a year in water and fuel.

6. Some authorities claim close to 50 per cent of the water from municipal systems is wasted. Consciously work at saving water until it becomes a habit. For example, stopper your sink or use a dishpan when washing dishes. Stack them and rinse them at one time with a hose spray instead of individually. Don't leave the water running while shaving. A running tap while shaving uses about 20 gallons.

7. Keep water in your refrigerator for drinking purposes or have an automatic ice water dispenser installed. You won't have to run the water to cool it when you're thirsty.

8. Give strong moral, political and other support to national and regional leaders who are working to control water pollution.

Handyman's Page

Mad dogs and Englishmen may thrive in the midday sun, but mildew never makes an appearance when old Sol is around.

That's why, whenever you find mildew anywhere inside or outside of your house, it will be on some part of the structure to which sun is a stranger.

Mildew — or mold, to give it a more technically correct name — grows under moist conditions. A favorite spot for it is some part of the exterior of the house where shrubbery is close to the foundation, with the foliage touching or almost touching the siding.

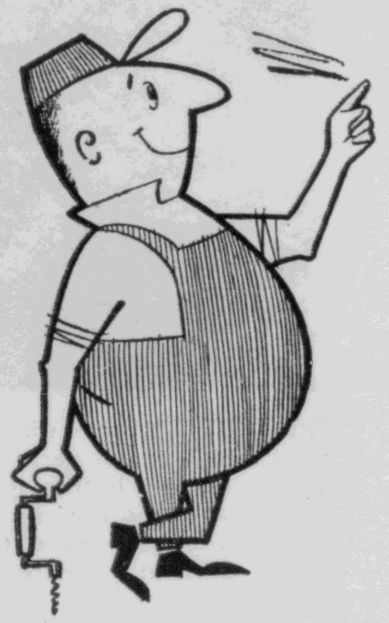
THE SHRUBBERY helps the mildew grow in two ways. It hangs on to rain water and moisture, eventually transferring some of it to the house. And it keeps out the sun's rays, which ordinarily would prevent the fungus from growing.

While this information is of some value in the prevention of mildew, it isn't the entire answer, if only because there are some parts of the house which the sun never reaches, shrubbery or no shrubbery.

Also, there is the problem of what to do when mildew already has occurred — and how to keep it from returning.

GENERALLY, YOU can tell at a glance whether the affected area is covered with mildew or just dirt. But if you are in any doubt, wet the marred surface with an ordinary household bleach. If it is mildew, it will turn white in less than five minutes.

About the worst thing you can do is to try to cover the mold with paint, since it will be only a matter of months, perhaps weeks, before the growth comes right through the new paint.



A standard solution for the complete removal of mildew is three ounces of trisodium phosphate, one quart of household bleach, one ounce of a powdered detergent and three quarts of lukewarm water.

MANY REGULAR household cleaning agents are basically trisodium phosphate, and any of them may be used for this mixture. A glance at the label will give you the necessary information before you buy.

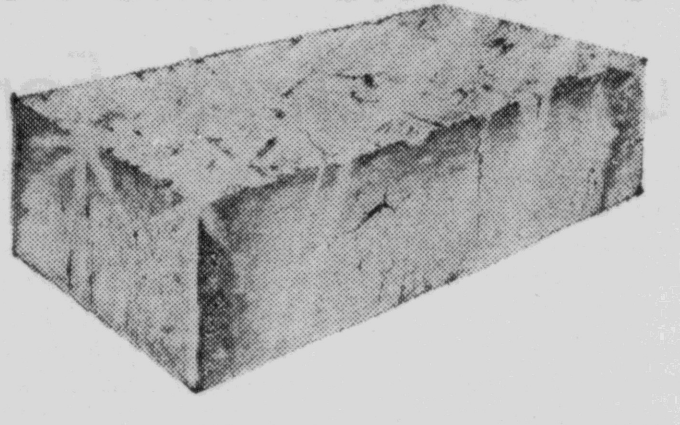
Scrub the mildewed surface with the solution, then rinse well with clear water. Do it as many times as necessary to remove all traces of the mold.

When the area is completely dry, paint it with one of the special mildew-resistant paints. If you already have matching paint on hand and want to utilize it, buy an additive made for the special purpose of protecting against mildew. A small amount of it added to the paint will do the job.

The label on the bottle or container will tell you how much to add.

BRIGHT IDEAS

A Brick That Glistens With Richness Of Gold



With most of our gold buried at Fort Knox and much of it being siphoned overseas, have we any choice but to do-it-ourselves?

Be your own 'Goldfinger!'

With no trepidation and very little investment, make a gold brick of your own. Great as a paper-weight, door-stop, golden-wedding anniversary present, or just as a simple conversation piece. Guaranteed to start conversations of great magnitude, these things do wonders, psychologically. Great morale boosters for the first of the month bill-paying blues.

How to do it?

Invest in a clean, simple, red brick. A can of gold spray from your paint dealer and you have the makings.

Lay the brick on heavy newspaper and spray all sides heavily. No sizing necessary. Make one or many.

Halt Water Waste To Save Yourself Money

"Better water management" is a term you'll be hearing a lot this year.

Even if our area doesn't suffer from shortages, there is much you can do to conserve water and save money in the process.

THESE water-saving tips come from Henry Berger, Northern California regional director in this area for the National Assn. of Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Contractors

1. Have leaky faucets fixed or replaced immediately. A one-sixteenth inch leak wastes 3,000 gallons a month. At average rates, this costs about $30 a year. If the leak is from a hot water faucet, add about $20 for the cost of heating the water.

2. Have a circulating pipe loop installed between your water heater and individual fixtures. You'll get hot water at the fixture immediately instead of having to run it awhile. This can save another $35 a year.

3. Equip your faucets with aerators. They introduce millions of air bubbles into the water. You use less water because it suds up faster.

4. If you have an old-fashioned showerhead, replace it. New ones on the market use less water and actually increase enjoyment of the shower since they permit you to regulate the spray.

5. Add a thermostatic temperature control to the shower. A family of four will average about 1,400 shower baths a year. Hand-valve showers waste about two and a half gallons of hot water while the bather adjusts the water to the desired temperature. A thermostatic control will save you at least $10 a year in water and fuel.

6. Some authorities claim close to 50 per cent of the water from municipal systems is wasted. Consciously work at saving water until it becomes a habit. For example, stopper your sink or use a dishpan when washing dishes. Stack them and rinse them at one time with a hose spray instead of individually. Don't leave the water running while shaving. A running tap while shaving uses about 20 gallons.

7. Keep water in your refrigerator for drinking purposes or have an automatic ice water dispenser installed. You won't have to run the water to cool it when you're thirsty.

8. Give strong moral, political and other support to national and regional leaders who are working to control water pollution.

A Carefree Kind Of Marin Living

Peacock Hill owners have an association which supplies all gardening services and swimming pool maintainance. A monthly fee also provides for group fire and public liability insurance, exterior upkeep of all buildings and similar common services.

ALL UNITS are two bedrooms and two full baths, with the entire living area located on a single floor, thereby eliminating the stairs which are so typical to townhouse developments. Baths are elegantly appointed with cultured marble vanity tops, decorator wallpapers and vinyl floors.

All-electric kitchens by Westinghouse include both refrigerator and dishwasher. Each townhouse contains wall-to-wall carpeting.

Draperies are included on the 30-foot living/dining room glass wall which overlooks either a large balcony or a private patio. Certain units include fieldstone fireplaces.

ARCHITECTURAL variety is achieved and the gently sloping land put to its finest use by designing one group of townhouses on the upslope with two-car garages under. The downslope homes have single car garages at house level to form an atrium type front entrance in which secluded outdoor living may be enjoyed the year around.

Peacock Hill townhouses actually are a series of completely separate homes linked together by a common foundation and roof.

Each home has its own stud wall of two-by-two timbers. This more expensive construction, known as a "double stud wall" more than pays for itself in effectiveness as a sound deadening devise.

PEACOCK HILL townhouses are bought and sold just as is any home on its own lot, with a grant deed conveying title to the individual unit. However, ownership of the land, including gardens, pool and interior street, is shared in common among the 14 owners.

Peacock Hill townhouses are being sold through the unusual device of a "living" model home which is held open daily from noon to 5 p.m. at 74 Biscayne Drive.

The display home, actually the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Jean N. Bell, has proven to be an attractive and effective device to demonstrate how a typical family adjusts to townhouse living with furniture directly out of a previous house. Tapestries, paintings and many object d'art collected by the Bells add interest to this unique model home.

IN THE Peacock Gap Country Club area where home values average approximately $50,000, Peacock Hill townhouse prices for luxury two-bedroom units start at $29,000.

Peacock Gap is reached by turning off Highway 101 onto Second Street, San Rafael, and proceeding east three miles on San Pedro Road. The second entrance, which is Riviera Drive, leads to Biscayne Drive.

THE CENTER OF recreation and relaxation at Peacock Hill is the "community" pool with its large sundeck. There townhouse owners can rest or frolic, while someone else weeds the garden.

ONE OF THE CHIEF attractions of the Peacock Hill townhouses is the sense of privacy, serenity and relaxation that is afforded the dwellers. With but 14 units in the project, the feeling of intimacy and personal ownership is very much present. (Photos by Don Meacham).

SPRING SPECIAL

...A NEW LOW PRICE THAT LOOKS EVEN LOWER WHEN YOU COMPARE WHAT'S INCLUDED!

HOW BIG IS A BARGAIN? It depends on what's included. (If it is actually available at the advertised price. Some pools are not.)

But here's one low priced pool you can actually buy. The MARK ANTHONY (above) includes a white concrete, two-foot wide, pre-cast cantilever deck as well as practically everything else you'll have to have. Based on normal access and soil, price is $2195 in many flat areas. Cost will be additional $200 to $300 in the hills and in other areas of high construction cost. If soil is expansive, such as adobe (where Antho-Deck is not recommended) add approximately $150.

Low monthly payments; no pay till May. Now it's easier to be a pool-owner family.

Anthony builds pools of all sizes and shapes, custom and standard. Call for information or visit an Anthony showroom.
